Jerusalem's Easter.

Not Wets, or Drys Decide.
—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE RISING of the Prince of Peace will be observed in Jerusalem with armored cars patrolling streets and machine guns parked at strategic points.

The different kinds of Christians hate each other, make no secret of it. Among Mohammedans the "pro-mufti" and "anti-mufti" forces are expected to fight.

While Christians gather to celebrate Easter, Jews celebrate the Passover, and Mohammedans the feast of Nabi Moussa. They gather at what is supposed to be the tomb of Moses, whom Mohammed borrowed as one of his prophets.

The angels that know all about us and all about religion must be amused as they look down and watch us at this time of year.

RUMANIA'S GOVERNMENT forbids passage of Soviet cargoes up the Danube. Russia protests to Britain, France, and Italy, and Holland objects to the Danube blockade, well pleased to have Russian goods "dumped" if they are cheap enough.

RUMANIA, LIVING in the shadow of Russia, may be inviting serious trouble in imitating our boyish financiers who underestimate Russia's power.

They might learn from Thomas D. Campbell, of Hardin, Mont., a farmer on a big scale, cultivating 300,000 acres producing hundreds of thousands of bushels of wheat a year.

Mr. Campbell has directed, for Russia's government, the development of a farm that really is a farm. He has under his direction 30,000,000 Russian acres, that would make a strip 15 miles wide from San Francisco to New York.

And Mr. Campbell says:

"The biggest market today for American goods is Russia. And this Russian business would do more to relieve our industrial depression than any other single factor. If we take it now we shall have it for the next 50 years. It is the only foreign business available for any manufacturing country today."

IT IS NOT wise for high-spirited Rumanians or low-spirited Wall street men to underestimate Russia. The Rumanians might lose their territory and Wall street men might lose their chance to make money.

MR. HOOVER says the wage scale must be maintained, and it must, unless we want to shoot prosperity to pieces entirely. It should be remembered, however, that the value of wages depends on the cost of living.

Mr. Campbell, quoted above, says wages, now greatly increased on the farms, make little difference. The skillful American farmer with modern machinery can "seed" his land for 3 cents an acre. They can't do that in China, with earth's cheapest labor.

IN THE LONG run, no foreign farms will compete with American farms in world markets if farmers operate "industrially" on a production basis and get from our government for goods sold at home the same protection as other industries enjoy.

PROF. CARL STEJSKAL, of Vienna, discovers a food paste that can be rubbed into the skin, keeping a man alive indefinitely without swallowing food.

Of the new food, called "dinutron," six ounces, rubbed into the skin, is enough for one day. And you can take a bath 30 minutes after the rubbing without losing its nourishing effects.

This will discourage hunger strikes in prisons, make possible the feeding of insane patients who refuse to eat, and will be of great value in certain surgical operations, when food cannot be administered.

It is believed that dinutron will also be highly valuable in treatment of diabetic cases.

DIFFERENT FROM Vienna's "dinutron" is the German "penetrometer," which enables policemen and customs officials to look into packages and see everything they contain. It is a special X-ray machine, planned to discourage the business of "naziz" and Communists sending bombs to each other and to outsiders.

JOHN J. RASKOB, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, says Democrats will win in 1932, if they take "a courageous stand in their platform, particularly on prohibition, as well as on other economic questions."

That the Democratic party will be wet, there is no doubt. Also, no doubt that the Republican party will be, officially, dry.

But wetness or dryness will not decide the election, and neither decided the last election.

TWO CONVICTS confess that they started a fire that killed 320 prisoners in the Ohio Penitentiary a year ago. They wanted to keep the warden from building a new cell block for fellow prisoners because they didn't want to work on it.

They may be convicted of murder in the first degree, and in the language of the criminals, they may "burn" in the electric chair. In prison or out, the safety of many often depends on the moral character of one or two.

COLUMBUS, O., April 3.—(AP.)—A promise of immediate death in the electric chair will bring a guilty plea Monday from two Ohio Penitentiary convicts who confessed they fired the prison, resulting in the snuffing out of the lives of 320 convicts.

The prisoners, Clinton Grate and Hugh Gibson, indicted for first-degree murder on six counts, told Prosecutor Donald Hoskins and newspapermen today they would plead guilty when arraigned Monday, if the prosecutor could guarantee they would be sentenced and electrocuted immediately. They asked:

"Under the circumstances what else can we do?"

Gibson said:

WETTACH GIVES MANAGER VIEW

The Moore bill, which would have made it possible for Pittsburgh to adopt the city manager form of government, was tabled on motion of Representative James Wettach because there was no general interest in it, he said today.

He did not construe the presence of representatives of scores of civic organizations at the public hearing as being a popular demand.

Declaring that he received only one letter favoring the bill, Wettach said:

"I opposed the bill because there is no evidence of general interest in it. I received only one letter favoring it. Mayor Kline or Senator Coyne never mentioned the bill to me, or sent any message regarding it, to me."

Michelson Stricken Testing Light Speed

PASADENA, Cal., April 3.—(AP.)—Dr. Albert A. Michelson, noted physicist, was critically ill in his home here today. The 79-year-old scientist suffered a nervous collapse brought on by overwork in his latest experiment—an elaborate test of the speed of light. Dr. Michelson, formerly of the University of Chicago, built near Santa Ana a one-mile-long vacuum tube for the experiment, which he said would be his last.

PLAN HOTEL, 35 STORIES, DOWNTOWN

Structure With 600 Rooms May Be Erected at Tenth Street and Liberty Avenue

Plans have been completed for a 35-story hotel project at Liberty avenue and Tenth street, by a group of Pittsburgh businessmen, it was reported today. Formal announcment is expected within a few days.

Fronting 66-feet on Liberty avenue and extending along Tenth street for 110 feet, the hotel would contain 600 rooms, devoted entirely to commercial trade. No arrangements have been made for social or banquet facilities. The architectural firm of Simon, Brittain & English, Inc., have completed the plans, it is said.

Three properties have been reported purchased for the project. The site includes holdings of S. O. Hartje, the Hartje and Watson estates, and Commonwealth Trust Company.

The new hotel would be in the vicinity of the new Pennsylvania Station and a short block from the new Federal Reserve Bank and the Gulf buildings on Grant street. The site has figured in rumors for more than a year.

Previous plans are known to have been completed for a 24-story hotel of the same type. This promotion failed to materialize, though plans were drawn.

Volant Bank Widow Bandit Suspect Admits Guilt

DETROIT, April 3.—(INS.)—Mrs. Vera Phillips, 28-year-old alleged bandit "queen," and Harold Holt, 19-year-old admitted member of her clique, were to leave Detroit late today in custody of Pennsylvania police to be returned to Volant, in that state, to face bank robbery charges. Both waived extradition.

With Mrs. Phillips will go Clyde Hahn, who tried unsuccessfully today to obtain a license to marry the comely blonde widow.

"I'll follow you to Pennsylvania and we'll be married there."

So Hahn, with tears in his eyes, told his sweetheart through cell bars. Michigan's marriage laws, requiring five days to elapse between application and the issuance of marriage licenses, balked Hahn's plan to marry his bandit-sweetheart here.

Following the arrest of her brother, Kenneth Palmer, in Pennsylvania, Mrs. Phillips, according to police, admitted planning the bank robbery. The woman said:

"I'm willing to go back now and face the consequences, and I'm happy because I know that there will be someone waiting for me when I get out."

Turning to Hahn, Mrs. Phillips sobbed:

"Don't let them put me away for too long a time."

He replied:

"Don't worry little girl. I love you and I'll wait for you."

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 3.—(AP.)—Leaving behind them scenes of desolation, some 200 wives and children of United States Marines were evacuating Managua today for Corinto in Pan-American Airways and navy planes.

Thirty-eight persons, including Mrs. James F. Dickey, whose husband was killed, and Maj. Joseph E. Murray, whose wife was killed, were the first to go. They were carried in three Pan-American planes, expected to reach Corinto during the day. There they will board the transport Chaumont, bound for San Francisco, and the Navy ship Relief, sailing for New York.

ROCKNE BURIAL TOMORROW

SOUTH BEND, April 3.—(AP.)—Knute Rockne, that roving, restless spirit, will find his final resting place tomorrow afternoon in the consecrated soil of Highland Cemetery just two and one-half miles from the campus of old Notre Dame.

Surrounded by thousands of his most intimate friends and personal representatives of King Haakon, of Norway, the land of the Vikings from which he came, all that is mortal of the "Rock of Notre Dame" will be taken to the Church of Sacred Heart for impressive, yet simple funeral ceremonies and then lowered forever into his grave. The funeral sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of the university.

SERVICES ON RADIO

An hour's broadcast of the funeral services is to be made by the coast-to-coast network of the Columbia chain. It is to originate from the church on the Notre Dame campus when the services being at 4 p. m., Eastern standard time. (Station WJAS will broadcast the services in Pittsburgh.)

Rains are expected in the East tonight and probably will continue over the week-end.

Hoover Caricature Barred at Art Show

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(INS.)—Aurelius Battaglia's exhibition was placed under cover at the Corcoran School of Art show today, presumably because two of his pictures do not particularly honor President Hoover and Vice President Curtis. They are caricatures of the two statesmen, the one showing Mr. Hoover being labeled a "Psychological Portrait."

C. Powell Minnigerode, director of the Corcoran gallery, announced Battaglia's work was eliminated "because he is not a student of the Corcoran school."

HUNT WITNESS IN FOOD QUIZ

Assistant District Attorney William H. Colvin is making a vigorous search for William Wright, assistant road supervisor for a state contractor and witness who is alleged to have been intimidated after brief testimony at the Department of Public Works hearing Wednesday.

Colvin found two contracting firms with which Wright had been connected, but has been unable to locate him. At the address of 302 Warrington avenue given by Wright he was unknown. Colvin has asked the newspapers for pictures of the witness to aid in the search.

OTHERS NEAR COLLAPSE, DEADLOCK TENSE

Report Inability to Agree on Verdict; Judge Orders Deliberation to Continue

CLEVELAND, April 3.—(AP.)—Several of the jurors on whose deliberations rests the life of "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, were reported near the breaking point today as ballot after ballot failed to bring a verdict on the charge that Martin murdered former Councilman William E. Potter.

It was learned that the emotions of the five women members of the jury had reached such a high pitch that one of them, said to have been Mrs. Anna S. Stofan, fainted and had to be revived by her fellow talesmen.

THREE FOR ACQUITTAL

There were reports about the Courthouse that three members were standing flatly for acquittal, but the results of the jury's ballots were not disclosed.

The jurors reported to Judge Walter McMahon at 1:35 p. m. today they had been unable to come to a verdict. At that time they had considered the case for nine hours.

Judge McMahon asked if it was a question of fact or a question of law that was troubling them. The jurors answered "both."

Judge McMahon advised the jury to consider the case with calmness and to endeavor to arrive at a common conclusion. He reminded them that usually the majority is right in any decision. They returned to their deliberations at 1:40 p. m.

STUDY EXHIBITS

They were understood to have spent most of their time studying Martin's alibis and the exhibits placed in evidence by the prosecution and defense. These included a .38-caliber gun with which the state claims Potter was shot to death; a .32-caliber gun, and the blood-stained davenport on which Potter's body was found last February 8, five days after the killing.

The jurors have before them the instructions of Judge McMahon that the state's admitted purely circumstantial case must leave no room for doubt that Martin either killed Potter or helped in the murder. Martin's alibi should cover enough of the crime to bar the possibility that he committed it. Martin's demeanor on his arrest in Pittsburgh and his trip to Akron the night of the killing should be considered in weighing possible consciousness of guilt, the court said.

Meanwhile, Martin passed away the hours playing cards.

Singer Recovering After Operation

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP.)—Mme. Florence Easton, operatic singer, and former member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, underwent an emergency appendicitis operation last night at the Doctors' Hospital. Her condition after the operation was described as good.

Since leaving the Metropolitan company two years ago, Mme. Easton has been appearing in recitals. She has been separated from her husband, Francis MacLennan, tenor.

Vivian Duncan is Mother Despite Doctors' Fears

PARIS, April 3.—(AP.)—Vivian Duncan, American actress, who says she was told by three American specialists that childbirth would be fatal to her, has come to Paris with a baby daughter, born the night of March 20 at Wurzburg, Bavaria.

She has named the child Evelyn Rosetta Duncan Asther, and her husband and its father, Nils Asther, who played opposite Greta Garbo, is expected here shortly from America to have his first look at it.

Miss Duncan told the Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune that she had confided her fears to the Countess Doussy De Sales, the former Mrs. Cecil Stewart, and at her advice had gone to the Dr. Gauss clinic at Wurzburg.

The first twilight sleep administration did not work well, but on the second she went to sleep at 4 p. m., March 20, and awoke at 6 the next morning. She was well enough when she reached Paris to find an apartment for herself and the infant the first day

PROHIBITION REFERENDUM SENTIMENT GROWS IN CONGRESS

ANTI-DRYS CLAIM 183 VOTES

161 in House, 22 Senators Favor Repeal Test, Asserts Association After Canvass

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Declaring that sentiment for a referendum on the prohibition amendment through state constitutional conventions is growing, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment today claims 183 members of Senate and House favor this action.

The association's claim, which exceeds that generally made by the anti-drys immediately following the election last November, includes many "conversions" since the nationwide vote, according to officials.

The election result generally was tabulated by both wet and dry organizations as giving the anti-prohibitionists about 140 votes in the House.

183 FOR REPEAL

Although the number falls short of a majority in either House, the number of House members favoring the referendum or repeal plan is regarded by the anti-prohibitionists as especially significant.

A movement is now under way to liberalize the rules of the House of Representatives so that 100 members by petition can force a measure to the floor. If this is done, it appears the wets may be able to force a roll call vote which would "smoke out" members pursuing a middle course in the fight over liquor.

The claim of the anti-prohibition association is admittedly open to question upon a few names. Included in those favoring referring the amendment are members of the Illinois and Massachusetts delegations who have not specifically repudiated the results of state referendums.

PARTY PLEDGES

The wet ranks obtained some additions through party platform pledges and the liquor referendums in both states. Some members have declined to say whether they will abide by the vote of last November.

In making the claim of 161 members of the House, officials of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment point out that they could count but 76 wets in the House in 1928 and but 15 in the Senate.

The anti-prohibitionists expect to make further gains through the reapportionment of congressional districts now under way in the states. They expect the dry districts to lose strength and the wet districts to increase their power.

YOUNG STINSON IN ELOPEMENT

DETROIT, April 3.—(AP.)—Elopement more than a month ago of Raymond Stinson, stepson of Eddie Stinson, noted flier and airplane manufacturer, with a 17-year-old dairy farmer's daughter, became known today.

Stinson, who is 19, flew to Bowling Green, O., on March 2, with Miss Ann Nichols, of Belleville, Mich., and they were married there by a Lutheran preacher.

The couple had been acquainted for a year and had been engaged, friends said. While his stepfather was out of the city, Stinson borrowed a plane from the Stinson Aircraft Company's factory and took Miss Nichols for a ride. Then they decided to elope.

committee's action, was in line with the assertion made by Coyne.

The senator said:

"I asked no one to vote to have the Moore bill tabled in the House Elections Committee. I never take a position on a bill originating in the House until it comes to the Senate."

Discussing the linking of his name with the Mayor's name in connection with the action on the bill, Coyne said:

"I don't know that Mayor Kline took any action as he has been convalescing from a slight illness for about 10 days."

ACCUSES EVANS

Wettach, when reminded that delegations from Pittsburgh had gone to Harrisburg to attend the hearing on the Moore Bill, said:

"Whatever delegations came here, were here for the public hearing. The discussion was led by Henry Oliver Evans and a representative of the University of Pittsburgh.

"The only impression Evans' talk left on me was that he delivered a tirade against Mayor Kline and attacked the city administration because of his defeat during his campaign for controller. I don't recall anything he said in outlining the advantages of the bill. His attack was purely personal."

Wettach's assertion that there was no general interest in the Moore bill was at variance with the action of numerous civic and trade groups which sent representatives to Harrisburg with the authority to sanction the bill in the name of their organization.

GROUPS LISTED

Among the groups represented was the Civic Club of Allegheny County, the Allied Boards of Trade, the Chamber of Commerce, the Beechview Civic Club, the Community Chest of Scranton, the State Educational Association, the State Chamber of Commerce, the State Federation of Labor, the State Grange, Executive Council of the Pennsylvania League of Republican Women and representatives from the cities of Williamsport, Oil City, Bradford and New Castle.

The man Wettach described as a representative of the University of Pittsburgh was Dr. Ralph S. Boots, who outlined the advantages of the bill as a representative of the Civic Club of Allegheny County.

Delegates who attended the meeting said that a man from Wilkes-Barre and one from Coalesville, neither of whom represented any organization, were the only ones to oppose the bill.

there for nine years and know what it's like."

FEARS OFFICIALS

Asked if he feared other prisoners would turn on them if they were placed in the penitentiary, he said:

"No. It's not the prisoners, but the officials we're afraid of. Anyway, we would never get out if we got life sentences. It would never be forgotten and we'd have to live there the rest of our lives."

Grate said there was no murder premeditated when they set the fire. He added:

"We started one in December, but the wind blew the wrong direction and the candle didn't light the wooden concrete block forms. The lumber was nowhere near the cell blocks. We only wanted to destroy the forms to prevent the construction of L block in which they were building 48 solitary confinement cells. We didn't want to see anyone go in them. We had hoped the fire would break out while we were at supper. We had no idea that the prisoners would be in their cells when the fire started."

ASK FOR JUDGE

Gibson and Grate met this morning in the county jail when deputies presented copies of the indictments to them.

Both prisoners asked that they be permitted to talk with the trial judge. They said they wanted to put their proposition up to the judge, for they wanted it definitely understood that if they plead guilty they will be electrocuted as soon as possible, and not given life terms.

If electrocuted, they will die in the chair in the little red brick death house behind the penitentiary walls, only 100 feet from the spot where the bodies of the 320 victims of the Easter Monday fire of a year ago were placed as they were carried from the ill-fated cell blocks.

A flurry was caused last midnight by reports of approaching bandits. The whole story was disbelieved by Marine officers who pointed out that Managua was in open country and that never in the experience of the forces in Nicaragua have they been able to draw raiders from the hills. For about 15 minutes, however, the report was received with excitement. The rumor came to a National Guard officer over the native telegraph from Concepcion, 15 miles away.

CALL TO ARMS

A call to arms was sounded at the Marine aviation hearquarters on the outskirts of the city, where 20 soldiers were stationed. Patrols carrying sub-machine guns were ordered on all sides of the field and these kept watch throughout the night.

As bodies are recovered from the ruins estimates of the death toll are being revised upward. Col. F. L. Bradman now reckons the number of dead at about 2,000. Other estimates on the totals run as high as 5,000 dead. The bodies are being buried in some instances, but in others are being taken to a large fissure outside the city and burned.

WEAKENED RATE BILL LAID TO GOODNOUGH

Woodruff Blames Speaker For Changes Removing Elective Board Feature

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, April 3.—George W. Woodruff, former attorney general and now Gov. Pinchot's counsel in utility problems, today shifted the blame for the drastic amendments which have been made in the Pinchot fair rate bill to the shoulders of C. Jay Goodnough, speaker of the House. Woodruff explained how the amendments had been made, in addressing a gathering here of teachers of political science.

There is no mystery, Woodruff said, about the insertion of the amendments, which remove entirely the main features of the original bill. They were made, he asserted, because of the opposition to the bill in its original form, which made possibility of passage in the Legislature remote.

AMENDED ON FLOOR

The amendments were made on the floor of the House Wednesday, but their real purpose was unknown to practically the entire membership until reprinted copies of the bill were available. Then it was discovered that the provisions for election of the seven members of the Fair Rate Board, by districts, had been removed entirely, and that the Governor would have, as now, the power of appointment. The amendments also give the Governor the power of removal of the members, a provision which is not included in the present public service law.

PRESENT LAWS

Woodruff, who framed the major portion of the fair rate bill, explained that about 80 per cent of the act had been taken from the present public service laws.

While admitting that the present Public Service Commission is unable to handle the large number of cases which come before it, Woodruff insisted that it should have been more active in keeping check on corporation earnings.

POWER BILL HIT BY ROOSEVELT

ALBANY, N. Y., April 3.—(INS.)—Gov. Roosevelt and Republican leaders of the Legislature today "squared off" for a fight to a finish over state development of water power resources of the St. Lawrence River.

Aroused because of an amendment made by the Senate Finance Committee to the power bill, which would strip him of authority to appoint the five water power commissioners, the Governor bluntly declared he would veto the measure if sent to him in its present form.

Just when it was believed that the 20-year-old battle between Republicans and Democrats over water power development was drawing to a close, the Capitol was rocked by the new political explosion, which it was conceded on all sides easily may become the most serious in the history of the state.

RUSSIA LEADING U. S. CUSTOMER IN 1930

Soviet Bought More Goods Than Any Other European Country, Report Shows

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 3—Soviet Russia purchased more goods in the United States than any other European country, the Commerce Department announced today.

Germany and England ranked next as sources of supply.

Practically half of all Soviet imports came from these three countries.

Purchases in the United States amounted to $150,000,000 and continued to climb steadily throughout the 1930 fiscal year and up to the present, whereas exports to other nations slumped severely in the wake of the world-wide depression.

CONTINUED FIGHT

This has been in spite of the continued fight against American buying in Russia, which amounts to comparatively little, and during a period when barriers against Russian trade were continually being demanded by American producers. Anti-dumping orders against Russian matches, lumber and pulpwood have been enacted by the Treasury Department.

American purchases in Russia during the 1930 fiscal year amounted to but $31,000,000, giving a balance of trade in favor of this country amounting to $118,000,000.

RETALIATION SEEN

Reports from Russia continue to indicate that the Soviet will retaliate against obstacles placed in the way of its sales to the United States and transfer its buying to England and Germany.

Among the leading purchases of Russia in the United States were cotton, non-ferrous metals, paints, dyes, sheepskins, industrial cloth, special steels, industrial equipment, automobiles and transportation equipment. Gains were registered chiefly in equipment for the metallurgical, electro-technical, chemical and food industries. The department said:

"While the total value of Soviet exports to the American market was about the same in 1930 as in 1929, there is considerable change in various items. Gains in sales of lumber, including pulp-wood and coal, reflect an attempt to develop the experimental shipments of earlier years into a regular trade."

Pittsburgher Held In Train Shooting

BUCYRUS, O., April 3.—(AP.)—Thomas Hefflin, Pittsburgh, and Al Lewis, Toledo, were held by police today pending investigation of the shooting late last night of L. R. Bateman and Christo Naumoff, Toledo.

Bateman and Naumoff were shot while riding in a Pennsylvania Railroad camp car. Police believed the men were fighting.

American Steamer Wrecked in Yangtse

CHUNGKING, China, April 3.—(AP.)—The American steamer Iping was wrecked on hidden rocks in the Yangtse River today, 20 miles down stream from here. She was beached but remained in a precarious position.

The American gunboat Guam stood by to prevent possible onslaughts by pirates. Assistance was sent from Hankow.

FRANK HUFFMAN FIRING

Mr. Huffman, steward, as he fired from an upper window of Rusin Peoples Home, Homestead, and hit a prowler, later captured, today.

PROWLER SHOT ENTERING CLUB

As he attempted, police say, to force entry to Rusin Hall, Fifth avenue, Homestead, early today, Joseph McDonald, 28, Negro, of Third avenue, Homestead, was shot in the leg. He was taken to Homestead Hospital.

McDonald was caught in the cross revolver fire of Frank Huffman, the steward of the club and two Homestead patrolmen, according to police.

Huffman said an attempt had been made last night to enter the building. He said he was awakened this morning by a noise, and fired two shots at a prowler who was jimmying a window in the rear of the club.

Police, hearing Huffman's fire, ran to the scene and fired several shots. McDonald was found in the alley, wounded.

Canadian Official Weds Ottawa Girl

OTTAWA, April 3.—(AP.)—The marriage of Miss Desiree Elise Aylen and Dr. Duncan Campbell Scott, poet and superintendent general of Indian affairs for the dominion, was announced today. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Aylen, of Ottawa City.

Indians Ask Hoover To Prevent Removal

MIAMI, Fla., April 3.—(INS.)—Asking that they be "let alone" in the land where their ancestors lived and died, the Seminole Indians of the Everglades swamps today forwarded a message to President Hoover protesting against announced land transfers if it were proposed to move them elsewhere.

POLAR MAIL WILL GO ON NAUTILUS

Letters to Be Postmarked At Top of World Cost $1, Receipts Aiding Expedition

By HERMAN GIESKE

NEW YORK, April 3.—Sir Hubert Wilkins, leader of the Wilkins-Ellsworth trans-Arctic submarine expedition, today announced he is prepared to accept mail for delivery to and from the North Pole.

If you wish to mail a letter to a friend and have it stamped "North Pole," on whatever date Sir Hubert reaches that remote spot, it will cost you $1.

Lieut.-Commander Isaac Schlossbach, executive officer of the submarine Nautilus, has been officially appointed as postal clerk of the expediton.

FIRST IN HISTORY

Sir Hubert said:

"It will be the first time in history that mail from the United States or any other country has been carried in a submarine to or otherwise posted from the North Pole. The proceeds will be applied to the expense of the expedition."

Only a "limited" number of letters can be carried, it was explained. All letters and postcards must be accompanied by checks, cash or money orders made payable to Sir Hubert Wilkins and must be delivered at the expediton's headquarters, 2 W. Forty-fifth street, not later than May 1.

Those who wish to post letters for a part of the Nautilus' journey may post them not later than June 1. These will be placed aboard the submarine in Norway, and proceed thence to the Pole.

Expedition's Radio Link Bears Hearst Initials

NEW YORK, April 3.—(Universal)—The Federal Radio Commission has granted authority to the American Radio News Corporation, to use the call letters WRH for its new high frequency station at Carlstadt, N. J. The Detroit Edison Company consented to surrender the letters and accept another station designation in order that the Carlstadt station might use the initials of its owner, William Randolph Hearst.

The new station WRH will be used for communication with the Wilkins-Ellsworth trans-Arctic submarine expedition.

BOY CONFESSES GAMBLING LOOT

Joseph Grochowski, 16, of 2525 Jane street, testified today in Morals Court that $250 he stole from his employer was spent in slot machines and on the numbers lottery.

Magistrate Thomas D. Jones did not ask him where the slot machines were, nor request the identity of the numbers racketeers.

The boy admitted taking the money from the store of W. L. Strouthers at 215 Third avenue, where he was employed as a messenger. He said he had matched the key to the store door and the register.

Texas Natural Gas Piped to Chicago

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP.)—Chicago housewives soon will be cooking meals with Texas gas.

July 1 has been set as the date for completion of the last link in the world's largest natural gas pipe line project. When the last piece of pipe has been laid natural gas from the Amarillo field will flow through the 960-mile line to Greater Chicago and adjoining territory.

Vote From Stretcher Aids Md. Blue Law Repeal

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 3.—(INS.)—Repeal of Baltimore's blue laws appeared just around the corner today through the vote of State Senator Thurman C. Atkinson, who was brought 28 miles to the State House on a stretcher from a sickbed in a Baltimore hospital.

Advocates of the Michel bill, giving Baltimore the right by referendum to have Sunday movies and other local liberties, believing themselves hopelessly beaten, had endeavored to stave off a vote all day yesterday. Meanwhile, word had reached Atkinson. He insisted on being brought here. Under a police escort an ambulance made the trip.

During the excitement incident to calls for a vote, Atkinson, brought into the Senate chamber on his stretcher, collapsed. When restoratives were applied, he was able to respond to roll calls, and the bill passed its second reading by 16 to 13. Under a suspension of the rules it passed its final stages.

Atkinson was taken back to St. Agnes Hospital in Baltimore apparently none the worse for his experience.

Rockne Content Only With Perfection, Coolidge Says

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 3.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

Knute Rockne is gone. As a football coach he ranked at the head of his profession. In the 13 years during which he trained the Notre Dame team there were 105 victories and but 12 defeats. Five of his teams never lost a game.

Mr. Coolidge

Back of these achievements was a great man, an inspiring leader, and a profound teacher. His training was not confined to the physical side of athletics. He put intellectual and moral values into games. He taught his men that true sport was something clean and elevating. Right living and right thinking went into his victories.

Rockne conducted a course that was only incidental in education. Yet he had a name and fame with the undergraduate world and the public surpassing that of any faculty member in the country. His activities had the benefit of publicity, but that does not account for his hold on young men. We shall find that in his constant demand for the best that was in them. No bluff would answer. Fifty per cent would not do. His passing mark was 100. He required perfection. That was why men honored and loved him. That was the source of his power.

POLICE BALK PLOT IN HOTEL

Two Suspects Seized While Dragging Victim Through Lobby; Conceal Identity

LAREDO, Tex., April 3.—Two men identified by officers as C. C. Julian, oil operator of California and Oklahoma, and C. C. Boren were held here today on charges of attempting to take $50,000 from L. S. Bolling, of San Antonio, Tex., at the point of a gun.

They refused to admit they were Julian and Boren.

Bolling, identified as a former publicity director for the Julian enterprises in California, said the men threatened him with a pistol in his hotel room, demanding the money of him.

IDENTIFIED AS JULIAN

He said he owed Julian no money. They packed his clothes, he said, and were attempting to take him from the hotel when they were arrested in the lobby.

Bolling and several oil operators of this section identified one of the men as Julian. Officers said they found letters addressed to C. C. Julian in his pockets.

NO BOND, HELD IN JAIL

The two remained in jail here today in default of $10,000 bond, while attorneys redoubled their efforts to obtain a preliminary trial.

A hearing to have been held today was postponed because the district attorney was occupied with another case.

Meanwhile, the prisoner identified as Julian continued to insist that his name is "Herbert Murphy," address "anywhere." He was docketed at the police station as C. C. Julian, alias Herbert Murphy.

LINGLE JURORS STILL OUT

CRIMINAL COURT BUILDING, Chicago, April 3.—(AP.)—Twelve men, closely guarded, labored today toward the close of a full day over the problem of whether Leo Brothers killed Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Chicago Tribune police reporter.

They received the murder case at 2:24 yesterday afternoon and deliberated throughout the night, apparently without sleep. Today, there was no indication that a verdict was in prospect.

Through the barricaded jury rooms, guarded by a double detail of bailiffs, there seeped only an occasional sound of argument. "Grapevine" information, impossible to confirm, was that the count was 19 to 2 or 11 to 1 for acquittal.

RED CROSS BARS JOBLESS AID

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—Vice Chairman Fieser, of the Red Cross, said today West Virginia coal mining conditions referred to yesterday by the Wagner unemployment insurance committee, did not come within the province of the National Red Cross.

Fieser said the whole tradition of the organization was to deal with disasters of a cataclysmic type, and not to meet local industrial distresses, such as are occasioned by strikes, lockouts and unemployment.

Local chapters, he said, were given wide discretion in meeting local crises, since money is raised locally. He emphasized, however, this aid depended entirely upon the concerted action taken by the community in meeting its own problems.

GRILL TARA IN BUCKLEY TRIAL

DETROIT, April 3.—(INS.)—Fred Tara, of Canonsburg, Pa., jailed witness in the Gerald Buckley case here, again today was under verbal fire at the trial of Ted Pizzino, Angelo Livecchi and Joe Bommarito, three alleged gangsters, for the murder of the radio idol.

The trial adjourned until tomorrow in the midst of a bitter wrangle between Judge Edward J. Jeffries and Prosecutor Harry S. Toy over admission of grand jury records as evidence. Prosecutor Toy defied the jurist to cite him for contempt.

Under cross-examination, Dr. David R. Clark, state psychiatrist, said that Tara, former state witness, was suffering from a "mental illness" and was an alcoholic.

Hitler Threatens Shakeup in Party

MUNICH, Bavaria, April 3.—(AP.)—Adolf Hitler issued an appeal today to members of the National Socialist Party requesting strictest obedience, and declared he had decided to clean the party of all "unreliable elements." He charged that Walter Stennes, former leader of the North German groups of the party, had been guilty of "mutiny," and threatened Stennes and his followers with immediate expulsion from the movement.

Drunk's Machine Hits Fire Alarm Just in Time

MALDEN, Mass., April 3.—(INS.)—An alleged drunken motorist here today had performed a public service. Crashing into a telephone pole with his automobile, he accidentally sounded the fire alarm. There happened to be a fire raging in a factory nearby.

LEITZEL ASHES BORNE TO U. S.

NEW YORK, April 3.—(INS.)—Lillian Lietzel, who in her lifetime thrilled millions as she twisted and turned far up under a circus tent, was brought back to America today on the Mauretania. An airplane dropped wreaths on the ship.

Alfredo Cardona, an acrobat, Miss Lietzel's husband, brought her ashes in an urn, for she was cremated after an iron ring broke and she fell to her death in Copenhagen on February 13.

The ashes are to be taken to Long Beach, Cal., and placed in a mausoleum. Then Cardona will rejoin the circus and continue his stunts.

Boy Brought Back In Trooper's Killing

TROY, N. Y., April 3.—(INS.)—William Schemnitzer, of Broughton, Pa., near Pittsburgh, who with Stanley Chero is charged with killing Sergt. John E. Frey, of the New York state troopers, was glad his trip was over when the door of the county jail clanged behind him today after the journey from McAlester, Okla., where the pair was captured.

Chero, shot in the leg when he attempted to escape from McAlester police, will be in the hospital in Oklahoma for three weeks.

HOLD UP FAMILY TO ROB BANK

CHICAGO, April 3.—(INS.)—Robbery of the State Bank of Mundelein, Ill., of $10,000 by bandits today climaxed a night of terror for Milan C. Mott, the cashier, and his wife and three sons, all of whom were held captive overnight in the Mott home in Mundelein.

Under threats of death, two of the bandits took Mott from his home to the bank, where they forced him to open the vaults. Shutting him up in the vault, they escaped in an automobile. Two others of the bandit quartet remained on guard over Mrs. Mott and the three sons, Paul, 21; Neal, 19, and William, 14.

The bandits in the bank telephoned the two at the Mott home that the job was over and were joined by them in flight.

Fire in Dormont Causes Slight Loss

Fire which was confined chiefly to the cellar of the home of John Kozorra, 1249 Arkansas avenue, Dormont, shortly before noon today, resulted in $600 damage. Dormont Volunteer Fire Company responded. Cause of fire was not determined.

TYPIST AROUSES DRY CONFLICT

NEWARK, N. J., April 3.—(AP.)—The question whether a girl stenographer in the office of Federal Commissioner Joseph F. Holland did or did not visit a speakeasy agitated government circles here today.

Lewis J. Tutt, deputy prohibition administrator for New Jersey, said no more prohibition cases would be taken before Holland unless he discharged the stenographer. Holland refused to discharge her, saying he had no proof she visited the resort.

John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator for the Third District, charged the girl and two prohibition agents visited a speakeasy without being assigned to do so, and without making a report. The agents have been transferred to other states, Tutt said.

Five-Day Week Held Employment Remedy

PADUCAH, Ky., April 3.—(AP.)—United States Senator Alben W. Barkley has come out for a five-day week as a solution of the unemployment problem, saying recent legislation not only failed to solve the problem, but contributed to the business depression.

EASTER CROWD FILLS CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—While tourists trek to hotels by thousands, officials are preparing for one of the most homey Easters the capital has had in years.

Advance notice that this would be a bloomless Easter failed to dissuade the visitors—they poured in by rail and private automobiles.

President Hoover will attend a Masonic and a Quaker service. He and Mrs. Hoover will be with their three small grandchildren, Peggy Ann, 6; Herbert Hoover III, 3, and Joan, not yet 1. The family is looking forward to the Easter Monday egg roll that will bring thousands of children to White House lawns.

Secretary Mellon hopes to be able to spend the day with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Bruce, at their Long Island home. Work, however, may keep him here.

Mennonites Put Ban on Bootleggers

RICHMOND, Va., April 3.—(INS.)—If a member of the Mennonite Church resorts to bootlegging he is excommuniated immediately, Bishop George R. Brunk, of the Virginia Conference, today told the State Board of Education during his testimony approving the right of Mennonite pupils to refuse to salute the American flag in the schoolroom.

He referred to the action taken against bootleggers to illustrate Mennonites are "law abiding citizens."

Weather Conditions.

The western low pressure area developed eastward. It now appears in the form of a narrow trough extending from the Far Northeast southwestward to south of Texas. It is producing rain over the Ohio Valley states and westward over the central plains and snow over the northern plains. The rains were mostly light up to 8 a. m. The northwestern high developed southward over the Rocky Mountain states, causing a decided drop in temperature over that section. In Alberta the temperatures are rising again.

CAPONE FREED; NOT VAGABOND

CHICAGO, April 3.—(AP.)—Charges of vagrancy were wiped from "Scarface" Al Capone's escutcheon today. The prosecutors said they could find no policeman intimate enough with the gang chief's activities to testify to his vagrancy.

Capone, smiling, free of any state charge, walked out of the courtroom with his escort of detectives, after posing genially for the photographers.

It was during his recent trial for contempt of Federal Court, for which he was handed a six-month jail term, that Capone had his first appearance in the Municipal Court as an alleged vagrant. The warrant had been issued by Judge John H. Lyle last fall when Capone was given position No. 1 on the Crime Commission's roster of "public enemies."

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 3.—(AP.)—Rogers Caldwell, president of Caldwell & Co., Nashville, Tenn., was indicted by the Jefferson County grand jury here today, charged with making false representations in negotiating for the merger of his company with Bancokentucky.

Rome Marks Good Friday With Solemn Rites

ROME, April 3.—(AP.)—Black-vestmented priests lay prostrate at the altars of Rome's 400 churches today to commemorate the death of Christ. Throughout the world Catholic priests, bishops, archbishops and cardinals performed similar rites.

Between noon and 3 o'clock, the hour of Christ's agony on the cross, every store in town was closed. There was practically no traffic. Sidewalks were empty, for people were either in churches or praying at home.

Earlier there were processions to several churches. A large "procession of penitence" wound to the church of Santa Groce in Geru-Salemme (Holy Cross in Jerusalem) where the faithful venerated a section of what is believed to be the cross on which Christ died.

Worshipers thronged the Scala Santa, or Holy Stairs, a flight of 28 marble steps said to have been those Christ ascended in the house of Pontius Pilate after being crowned with thorns. Tradition says they were brought to Rome by St. Helena, mother of Constantine, first Christian emperor. The faithful are permitted to ascend them only on their knees.

Today's services were not accompanied by the organ or by altar bells. Since yesterday morning, church bells and organs have been still, in sign of mourning.

Court Orders Boy Giant Submit to Treatment

LOS ANGELES, April 3.—(AP.)—Adolphe R. Roome, Jr., age 14, six feet tall, weight 225 pounds, who would rather be a "physical monstrosity" than undergo scientific treatments to halt his growth, has been ordered to submit to his father's wish that he become a normal man.

Superior Judge Lester Roth at the end of a trial yesterday in which Mrs. Roome, divorced from the father, joined with her son in opposing pituitary gland treatments, ruled that inasmuch as science can prevent it, the boy should not be allowed to become a "circus freak."

The son had protested on grounds that previous treatments interfered with his school work and affected his brain.

In arriving at his decision, Judge Roth said the principal question was whether the opinion of a 14-year-old boy should prevail against a parent. The boy's father is a surgeon.

The court said testimony from reputable persons had shown the treatment would not be harmful and "there is a strong possibility such treatment may produce a beneficial effect."

In considering the attitude of the mother, Judge Roth counselled:

"It is of utmost importance that parents, when children are involved, call off their private wars insofar as the welfare and future of the children are affected."

The parents were divorced five years ago. At that time the mother was given custody of the son.

Jocelyn Lee Describes Trapping Mate, Girl

LOS ANGELES, April 3.—(AP.)—High life behind the scenes in filmdom as described in the testimony of Jocelyn Lee, red-haired film actress, included an episode in which she found her film director husband and another woman together in the home of Ivan St. Johns, a publicity man.

Testifying in the divorce suit hearing of Luther Reed, her husband, Miss Lee said she and a detective traced the director to the St. Johns home one night. She said:

"The detective and I went up the steps outside of Ivan St. Johns' house until I came to a window where I could see in. I heard my husband's voice and that of a woman.

"Finally, I couldn't stand it any longer, and I busted in through the French window. There was a woman sitting on the edge of the bed. At the foot of the bed was Mr. Reed. Both were staring at me.

"The girl, whom I did not recognize, grabbed some clothing from the chair and ran out of the room. Mr. Reed began swearing, and told me I had a lot of nerve to come busting in on him like that."

Her attorney asked:

"What did you do?"

"He hit me. I hit him back."

"What with?"

"A cane I was carrying. Then I tried to grab the girl's clothes for evidence. Mr. Reed snatched them away from me."

On cross-examination Miss Lee said a neighbor had pulled a gun on her and the detective when he caught them prowling through his yard, but said he withdrew his objections.

COLVIN HUNTING MISSING QUIZ WITNESS

Charge of Intimidation Spurs Search; Reppert Seeks Clue on Threat

ask Council for an engineer to check on all construction jobs and to see that the contracts have been carried out faithfully. He wants the attorney to advise him when any legal differences arise between the controller and the administration officials. Dr. Kerr feels that he should not be obliged to take his legal advice from attorneys who are a part of the administration. The controller said he plans to ask the Legislature to authorize the appointment of such an attorney.

Henry Oliver Evans in complaining of the treatment given his witness, said that Wright had been approached during the noon recess Wednesday by a contractor and told that if he took the stand in the afternoon he need not expect to get work "from him or from anyone else."

Both Colvin and Harry A Little, acting chairman of City Council, have assured Evans that every effort will be made to protect witnesses.

Wright had testified that it was the custom on state work to lay concrete pavements on the bare ground without putting down broken stone sub-base.

His testimony was attacked by the defense on the ground that he had no technical education and could not qualify as an expert witness.

VOLUNTARY WITNESS

Evans said Wright came to him and told him he was afraid to testify further for fear he might not be able to get a job.

Evans said, following the hearing:

"I told him to go. I could see that his job meant more to him than all of the city paving contracts, for he had been out of work."

Wright came to Evans' office without an introduction, Evans said, and did not leave an address.

With the investigation adjourned until Monday at 10 a. m., more talk was heard of calling Mayor Charles H. Kline as soon as he recovers from his illness at Cambridge Springs.

Councilman Charles Anderson, asked regarding the possibility of calling the Mayor, said he has been given a legal opinion that Council has a right to call Kline if it has a right to call anyone. He declared that if Council sees fit it can call the Mayor by passing a resolution and issuing a subpena.

LETTER SENT KLINE

Evans has called twice for the Mayor in tones which have resounded through the Council Chamber. This occurred after getting an admission from Director Lang that Kline has dictated appointments of persons who Lang knew were not fitted to fill the positions.

Council, through City Clerk Robert Clark, has sent a letter to the Mayor telling him of Evans' desire to question him. John S. Herron, president of Council, has ruled that Council has not the authority to compel the Mayor to testify.

As an instance, he cited the refusal of former Mayor William A. Magee to appear at an investigation of the Department of Public Safety several years ago. Magee's action was upheld by the law department.

Adjournment in the Department of Public Works investigation was obtained at the request of the heads of that department who are swamped with the spring construction work of the city which has been piling up during the hearing.

ENGLISH CLASHES AGAIN

All persons who have played leading parts in the investigation appear tired. The constant rapid fire questioning by Evans has been wearing. Many personal clashes have also done much to add to the tension.

Councilman W. Y. English, who has been the stormy petrel of the investigation, had another tilt with Evans yesterday regarding the latter's co-operation with Council while in the controller's office. He also had several sharp exchanges with other councilmen who told him he was doing too much talking. It is reported that English is leaving town over the week-end for a rest.

Evans was successful in getting from Director Lang an admission that out of 1,300 city jobs, there were only five or six cases in which contractors were called in and asked to submit new prices because the quantities had been greatly increased.

Attorney Lee Beatty, replying to this point, asked Evans if he, as controller, would have allowed the contractor to quote a higher price in cases where quantities decreased. Evans admitted he would not, but said it is unheard of in private business for prices not to be rebated on greatly increased orders.

Rockne's last team, will be their coach's pallbearers. The men selected are: Tom Conley, end and captain of the 1930 team; Tom Yarr, center and captain-elect for 1931; Frank Carideo, all-American quarterback; Marty Brill and Marchmont Schwartz, the halves, and Lawrence (Moon) Mullins, fullback.

Twelve classmates of Rockne in the class of 1914 will form a guard of honor.

MASS THURSDAY

Solemn high requiem mass will be held for the departed leader at the same church at 9 o'clock next Thursday morning in the presence of students, who by that time will have returned from their Easter vacations.

Today, and until the cortege takes him for his last earthly journey, his body will lie in state at his picturesque, but unostentationsu home in Sunnymede, watched over by a firm but tearful guard of honor composed of the boys and men he trained to play, laugh and live so well. But the last hopes of the multitude of mourners, who passed his bier, were denied. The casket was sealed because of the condition of his body, which was mangled in that tragic airplane crash in Kansas.

WIFE HOME

Mrs. Rockne, although fatigued by her long train ride from Florida, bore up exceedingly well on her arrival in South Bend at 6:15 last night, and today. She was surrounded by her mother, Mrs. Hulda H. Jones, of Kenton, O.; Rockne's 72-year-old mother, Mrs. Lewis Rockne, of Chicago, and others. Her four children, William, 14; Knute, Jr., 11; Jean, 10, and Jackie, 5 still didn't seem to realize with the other thousands of Rockne's friends that their father had departed from life. Charley Bachman, former Notre Dame all-American guard and now University of Florida coach, accompanied Mrs. Rockne and the children from the South.

ICE BLAMED

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—A small piece of ice may have sent America's most famous coach, Knute Rockne, and seven others to death in Tuesday's airplane crash near Bazaar, Kan.

Findings of Department of Commerce investigators, made known in a statement last night, showed the death plane may have fallen with a wing section rent asunder by vibration after ice shattered a propeller blade.

The statement said the findings were informal and not to be construed as official. It was concluded the plane had been operated entirely in accordance with air commerce regulations.

$1,700 FRAUDS CHARGED TO GYPSIES

Bands Ordered to Quit County After 3 Women Tell of Being Victimized

Complaints of three women, one from Braddock and two from Homestead, that they had been defrauded of $1,700 by a band of gypsies who had promised them wealth, happiness and health, today led Chief County Detective George W. Murren to order the county cleared of all wandering bands.

The victims, Mary Uzaski, of 226 Third avenue, Braddock; Stella Batcha, of Eighth avenue, Homestead, and Julia Ayors, 21, a cripple, of 32 Third avenue, Homestead, said they were cheated by a band headed by "Queen" Mary Costello.

GIVES "QUEEN" $1,100

Heading a caravan consisting of two automobiles and trailers, "Queen Mary" visited the three women with other members of her band. Mary Uzaski was promised happiness, and she gave the "Queen" 11 $100 bills.

The "Queen" apparently wrapped the money in a handkerchief, which she gave Mary to place under her pillow, after "casting a spell" on her, the woman claimed. The same method was used to obtain $500 from Mrs. Batcha, and $50 and two wrist watches from Miss Ayers.

County Detectives John Burke and Albert Shedlock said they believe that numerous other persons in the Braddock-Homestead district have also been the victims of the gypsies.

BAND WARNED

County Detective John Bodnar, placed in charge of the squad assigned to driving gypsy bands from the county, reported locating several families on Turtle Creek Hill, North Versailles Township. He ordered them to leave, after establishing that they did not constitute "Queen" Mary's band.

State police and borough officials were also asked by Chief Murren to assist in chasing the gypsies from the county. Murren today sent a message by police teletype describing "Queen" Mary and her followers.

WALKER STOPS FOR FUNERAL

CHICAGO, April 3.—(AP.)—Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, and his party arrived from California at 8 a. m. today aboard their private car "Chicago," attached to a Rock Island train. Shortly after, it was announced Mayor Walker would remain overnight and attend the funeral services for Knute Rockne at South Bend, Ind., tomorrow.

Mayor Walker was not ready for public appearance upon his arrival, but word came from the car that he would give audience later.

W. Va. Air Victim's Funeral Tomorrow

WHEELING, W. Va., April 3.—Funeral services for C. A. Robrecht, 65, Wheeling produce merchant, killed in the fatal plane crash near Cottonwood, Kan., with Knute Rockne and six others, will be held at St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, Wheeling, tomorrow morning.

The body arrived in a sealed bronze casket last night from the West and will not be opened. The National Aeronautic Association will hold special services tonight. C. A. Robrecht, Jr., of Elizabeth, N. J., an only son, and a graduate and former teacher at Notre Dame, arrived for the services.

AUTO'S VICTIM DIES, DRIVER TO POST BOND

North Side Man's Injury Fatal; 13 Others Are Hurt In Traffic Accidents

Injuries suffered March 28 when he was struck by an automobile at Chateau and Page streets caused the death last night in Allegheny General Hospital of Tracy Heeter, 34, of 100 Galveston avenue. Carl Wolf, of 56 Melrose avenue, alleged driver of the car, was ordered to post bond at the coroner's office.

Struck by an automobile at Bennett and Dallas avenues, Rebecca Lantz, 9, of 6931 Bennett street, was in Pittsburgh Hospital today. The machine was said to have been driven by John Dotterweich, 23, of 7052 Kedron street.

Three men are in McKeesport Hospital with injuries received early today in automobile accidents. Walter Stranger, 29, of 305 Station street, Wilmerding, suffered arm and leg fractures when his machine went into the ditch in Long Run road, McKeesport.

Joseph Stencil, 18, of Boston, Pa., suffered minor injuries when his car left the road near his home.

Andrew Hydak, 21, of 906 Evans street, McKeesport, riding with Joseph Fenton, 23, of 617 Hazel street, McKeesport, was hurt when Fenton's automobile struck a beacon light at Fifteenth and Walnut streets, McKeesport. Fenton was not injured.

WOMEN, BABY HURT

Mrs. Rose Viesates, 22, of 2326 Eccles street, her son, Edward, 2, and Mrs. Virginia Pintarelli, 17, of 3114 Wainbell avenue, were injured last night when an automobile in which they were riding overturned in West Liberty avenue, near Belle Isle avenue.

Suffering a fractured shoulder and collarbone when struck by an automobile near his home, Stanislaus Yakel, 14, of Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, was in a serious condition in Ohio Valley Hospital.

Walter Green, 3, of 1100 Freyburg street, suffered brush burns when struck by an automobile driven, police said, by J. A. Brown, of 3871 Perrysville avenue, at South Eleventh and Sarah streets, last night.

Becoming confused while crossing Carson street at South Tenth street late yesterday, Mrs. Margaret Stoker, 52, of 706 Newton street, was struck by an automobile driven by George Schultz, of 207 Erie street, McKeesport, according to police.

BOY HURT IN CRASH

Henry Fahrner, 5, of Maiden avenue, New Kensington, was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for lacerations of the face suffered when an automobile in which he was riding collided with another machine in the 2800 block Arlington avenue, late yesterday.

Billy Gehring, 5, of Grace street, Homestead Park, was recovering at his home today of lacerations of the face and hands received when struck by an automobile at Main street and Virginia avenue, Homestead, yesterday.

Mary Elizabeth Beltz, 14, of 7726 Abbot street, was in Columbia Hospital today suffering lacerations of the face and hands received when an automobile driven by H. W. Wesley, of 1404 Hill street, in which she was a passenger, collided with a machine driven, police say, by E. E. Pyle, 21, of 543 Trenton avenue, Wilkinsburg.

Supplies Audit Hampered By Missing Records

Failure to find the missing loose sheets in the office of Controller James P. Kerr, containing the names of hundreds of bidders, is causing the crew auditing the records of the Department of Supplies trouble in making a proper check, it is reported.

Their disappearance, it is claimed, gives ground for suspicion that all bids submitted were not considered. The loose sheets covered a period from March, 1929, to June, 1930, and were contained in a large volume when they were last intact. A search of the entire office has failed to reveal them.

In the past it has been the custom of some bidders to place their bids in a plain envelope. The law requires competitive bidding in the letting of contracts. If only two or three bids should be received and one or two of them were in plain envelopes, Controller Kerr admits that such a practice might open the way to collusion or fraud.

Assistant District Attorney W. H. Colvin, who is representing District Attorney Andrew T. Park in the probe activities, said today that the auditors will be moved to Common Pleas Court, Room No. 2, Saturday, from Room No. 8. Judge Heber W. Dithrich has been assigned Room No. 8, Common Pleas Court. Room No. 2 is presided over by Judge Ambrose B. Reid, who will be engaged elsewhere next week.

CHURCHES HOLD GOOD FRIDAY PROGRAMS

Pageants, Cantatas Mark Crucifixion Day Services; Baptism, Communion Held

Good Friday, day of the Crucifixion, is being observed in churches throughout the Pittsburgh district today. Special devotional services, pageants and cantatas are among the programs for the day.

At 7:45 p. m., the tenebrae, signifying the growing darkness of the earth at the time of the crucifixion, will be sung at Epiphany Catholic Church, Epiphany street. At the beginning of the service 13 lighted candles will be placed on a triangular candelabrum, and at the end of each psalm one will be extinguished until only a single candle is left lighted at the top of the triangle. The final candle is left lighted to signify the triumphant death.

HOLD BAPTISM

Baptism and communion will be administered tonight in the Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church, Alabama avenue, Dormont. Following the services the choir will present the cantata, "The Crucifixion."

The quartet and choral society of the Edgewood Presbyterian Church, Swissvale avenue, will also present "The Crucifixion" at the 8 o'clock service tonight.

"The Seven Last Words," a cantata, will be sung at 8 p. m. in the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Ellsworth avenue and Neville street. The choir will be assisted by Helen Bell Rush, Vincent Kroen and Thomas Morris, Jr., soloists.

A communion service will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, Center avenue and Baum boulevard. The congregations of the East End Christian Church and the First Baptist Church will unite in the service.

A cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," will be sung at 8 p. m. in the Mt. Lebanon Presbyterian Church, Washington and Castle Shannon roads.

JOIN IN SERVICES

Citizens of the North Boroughs were to follow the custom of former years in the commemoration of Good Friday by special services in all churches, the closing of schools and the suspension of business between the hours of noon and 3 p. m. A proclamation to this effect has been issued by the burgesses of Bellevue, Avalon, Emsworth and West View.

A joint service of the Gustavus Adolphus Lutheran, Swedish Mission, Methodist and Baptist Churches will be held tonight in the Swedish Mission Church, Forty-fifth street. The Rev. Isak Skoog will speak.

A dramatic reading, "The Terrible Week," by Charles Rann Kennedy, will feature the service tonight in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Forbes street and Craft avenue.

Other services by church and civic organizations will be held in observance of the day.

Soldier's Appetite Not 82-Cent Variety

LIVERPOOL, April 3.—(AP.)—William Donovan has ideas about whoever fixed the per diem ration allowance of the Irish Guards. Donovan is 6 feet, 6 inches tall; weighs 242 pounds.

The first day in the army he ate 12 slices of ham, two eggs, sausages, toast and tea for breakfast; later he had two meat pies and a pot of tea and lunched on soup, two portions of Irish stew and dessert. His pay is 82 cents a day, including rations allowance.

IRON HAUL RATE CUT REJECTED

Iron and steel interests of the eastern producing territory have rejected the reduced short haul rates on iron and steel products offered by the carriers serving the area east of the Mississippi, it was announced today. Implication by carriers that there would be a revision of rates within switching districts caused the shippers to reject the reduced rates.

Presenting objections to the proposed rates which recently were ordered by the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission, were traffic managers of steel plants in the Pittsburgh district and those from Ohio, New York, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Delaware.

NATRONA CAFE RAIDED BY DRYS

Prohibition agents reported raiding Sweeney's Cafe at 49 Garfield street, Natrona, seizing a large quantity of beer and arresting Thomas J. Sweeney, Burt Sweeney and Mary Sweeney.

Other raids made by prohibition agents and constables, according to the formers' report, were, at 2729 Custer avenue, 904 North Canal street, rear of 102 Brackenridge street, Brackenridge, and 347 West Eighth street, Tarentum.

Nixon-Nirdlinger's Body Due in N. Y.

NEW YORK, April 3.—(INS.)—The body of Fred C. Nixon-Nirdlinger, wealthy Philadelphia theater owner, who was killed in Nice, France, by his wife, formerly Charlotte Nash, St. Louis beauty contest winner, was to arrive here today on the liner Providence. The body will be taken ashore here by relatives.

POLICE GO EAST TO GET WUPPER

LINCOLN, Neb., April 3.—(AP.)—Sheriff Charles Sass, of Cuming County, accompanied by Deputy State Sheriff Fred Benton and Henry Sanders, were speeding toward Philadelphia today to return Paul Wupper, former president of the Beemer (Neb.) State Bank, who is charged with absconding a million dollars from the bank and wrecking the institution in 1928.

Meanwhile authorities here were preparing to "do what they can to see that Wupper spends the rest of his natural life behind prison bars." Extradition papers were on the way to Pennsylvania, although Wupper had announced he would return willingly.

Marital difficulties led to the downfall of the man who, before his disappearance from home, had been Beemer's mayor and "first citizen" for many years. Arrest in Philadelphia on a charge of non-support led to a charge of bigamy, then Wupper told authorities he was wanted for embezzlement.

PLAN EDUCATION BY RADIO CHAIN

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP.)—Formation of a "national advisory council on radio in education" with John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and other philanthropists backing it, has been disclosed.

The council hopes to raise the level of radio through an "address" broadcasting chain which Rockefeller and the Carnegie Foundation may finance for three years, at a cost said to be $100,000,000. Educators, scientists and public officials are members of the council.

Dr. Levering Tyson has resigned an office at Columbia University to become director.

Jury Dooms Phila. Slayer to Death

PHILADELPHIA, April 3.—(AP.)—Frank Ripka, 27, was convicted by a jury of murder in the first degree, with death as the penalty, for the killing of Harold Revelle, of Bergenfield, N. J. Counsel for the defendant filed motion for a new trial.

Revelle was shot to death in a restaurant here last October. Police said the slaying was the result of a gang feud.

Japan Prince Aids At Ship Launching

'See America' Via Raids

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

with the handle of an old mop. And like a dentist you must strike at the roots.

A lot of towns can follow Chicago's example and raid the municipal works. If you want to run a peanut stand you've got to get used to the whistling.

Chicago's administration claims the raid was political backgammon. That's a game everybody can understand because it's played with dice.

Politics or not, any place is all the better for a well-adjusted raid. It clarifies the atmosphere, removes the grease spots and postpones the doctor's visit exactly one day.

We are for more of them. The best way you can see America is to pack a picnic lunch, grow a beard and join a raiding party.

Illinois repealed its dry law.

Which made no difference.

It never worked anyway.

New York also repealed its chunk of blotting paper.

Nobody noticed anything unusual.

Wisconsin, Massachusetts and Montana also got tired of postponing the inevitable and playing double-headers with the ultimate.

They found you could lead a hoss to water.

But you can't make his driver sober up.

So they tossed unenforceable enforcement into the artificial limbo.

Nevada snapped out of its state-wide lethargy and flattened its own Sahara scenario some time ago.

That makes six states with conclusive proof that a camel can pass through the keyhole of a speakeasy.

Maryland never had a dry law. It decided to remain neutral and sober up during armistices.

This doesn't mean you can stagger your own detours in those states. There's still a federal flat running wild around the diggings.

If you think wet and vote dry that means you have the usual dual complex. But you must be careful whom you fight your duals with.

No city or state officer will nail you for violating the government reports of precipitation of moisture for your home territory.

But a Washington man can step in and fix it so you won't need a hat for 10 or 20 years.

The six states which bolted the amendment figure that it ain't a crime for a man to fan himself while waiting for a breeze.

But there is still a government law working neatly and smoothly from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Which isn't much of a run when a man is really thirsty.

Pennsy to Replace 75 Miles of Rails

Announcement has been made by John F. Deasy, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, that 75 miles of 100-pound rail between New Castle and Girard, O., and between Oil City and Buffalo will be replaced with 130-pound rail within the next six weeks. The rail-laying trains will return to Pittsburgh after the job is completed, for several weeks work in this vicinity.

Wife Faces Charge Of Killing Husband

BECKLEY, W. Va., April 3.—(AP.)—Charged with slaying her husband, Mrs. Rosalie Brafford, 28, of Ury, near here, was in the Raleigh County jail today awaiting a preliminary hearing.

Bert Brafford, 29, a restaurant keeper, was shot in his restaurant last night. Mrs. Brafford told officers that the shooting culminated a series of quarrels and that she had fired only after Brafford had threatened her.

Coal Mine Strike Area Remains Quiet

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., April 3.—(AP.)—Quiet prevailed today at the score of Glen Alden Coal Company mines where a strike has been in effect for 11 days.

The strikers' grievance committee is scheduled to meet tomorrow when action will be taken on the ultimatum from President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, that the walk-out be brought to an end.

Love Bird's Bite Fatal to Doctor

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 3.—(AP.)—A month ago Dr. John M. Sattler, 60, was bitten on the hand by a love bird imported from South America. Yesterday he died. His physician said psittacosis, or parrot fever, was the cause.

Man, 2 Women Held On Store's Complaint

Two women and a man who said they lived in New York City were held in Morals Court today after representatives of a department store testified the three had acted suspiciously in the store. They are listed as Rose Cohen, 30; Anna Berger, 34, and Max Unger, 36. They were held as suspicious persons.

CALL FIREMEN TO PATCH ROOF

Firemen who extinguished a blaze in the home of Mrs. Ottilia Wiegand at 2205 Spring street, South Side, were called back early this morning, several hours after the flames had been extinguished, to cover up holes in the roof that had been caused by the fire. The firemen spread large sheets of canvas over the holes to protect furniture.

Mrs. Wiegand, her invalid son, Herbert, 34, and a sister, Miss Della Goldbach, occupy the second and third floors of the large frame dwelling. The first floor is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Corn and their son, Wesley, 5. All occupants of the house were routed by the flames. Mrs. Wiegand aided her son to a neighbor's home. Damage was estimated at $3,000.

When the rain began early today, water poured through holes in the roof into two third floor bedrooms. Firemen from No. 22 Engine Company, who had extinguished the blaze were unable to cover the roof and a call was sent to the squad wagon crew downtown, who arrived with the necessary coverings.

'Bright' Children Usually Just 'Glib'

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP.)—"Bright" children—it is Dr. Joseph Miller, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., talking—just seem that way.

Dr. Miller, director of guidance in the Wilkes-Barre schools, has studied 1,600 children from the first to the fifth grade under the auspices of Columbia University.

What seems to be "brightness" in a child, he said, is more likely to be merely glibness. The children who talk "dull" children are equally well too frequently are recognized as "bright," whereas the smart.

DEBS SHOP LIKE OTHER GIRLS

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP.)—Debutantes of Park avenue shop around the bargain counters of New York's department stores exactly like other girls who consider themselves less fortunate.

And when they go to work it's not because they're tired of the social whirl. It's because they need money.

These observations came today from Betty Gerard, debutante and niece of James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany.

A month ago she took a job in a Fifth avenue shop and she likes it. She said:

OBITUARY

Mrs. Bernard M. Goldsmith.

Mrs. Sophia Blum Goldsmith, 73, wife of Bernard M. Goldsmith, formerly superintendent of J. M. Gusky Hebrew Orphanage and Home, and court deputy of Quarter Sessions Court, died yesterday at her home, 52 Baldwin road. She was a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh and Carnegie. She leaves her husband, four sons, Jacob M., Attorney Joseph J., Dr. Maurice F., Attorney Edwin B., and a daughter, Mrs. David N. Robin; a brother, Louis Blum; two sisters, Mrs. David Rosenbaum and Miss Fannie Blum, and seven grand-children, all of Pittsburgh.

Bartley E. Fitzsimmons.

Bartley E. Fitzsimmons, 56, for 25 years an employe of the Mesta Machine Company, died yesterday in his home, 752 Loretta street, Greenfield. He was a member of St. Rosalia's Catholic Church. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mary Donnelly Fitzsimmons; two sons, Charles and Bartley, Jr.; five daughters, Mrs. T. D. Palmer, Mrs. A. D. Moss, Mrs. G. K. Egley, Mrs. William Pickels and Miss Dorothy Fitzsimmons.

Porter Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Emma Bassett Porter, who died Sunday at her home in Seattle, Wash., will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in Aeberli's Chapel, East North avenue and Sandusky street. Mrs. Porter lived on the North Side prior to 1904, when she went to Seattle. She was a graduate of the normal training class of Allegheny High School and for several years was a teacher in the Linwood elementary school. She devoted much time and energy to educational affairs. Besides her husband, John McM. Porter, and her son, John Crawford, Jr., both of Seattle, she leaves her mother, Mrs. Mary L. Bassett; two sisters, Mrs. Olive S. Graebing and Mrs. Eva L. James, and four brothers, Samuel L., William, George L. and Claude R. Bassett, all of Pittsburgh.

William J. Walker.

William J. Walker, 83, former Pitttsburgh business man, died in the home of a daughter in Toledo, O., yesterday. He was born in Pittsburgh, the son of Arthur and Ann Boyd Walker, and was one of the pioneer paper box manufacturers in this city, having taken over the business of his father. For many years he was a member of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Sarah Corry Walker; two sons, William J. Walker, Jr., of Philadelphia, and Clarence C. Walker; a daughter, Mrs. Guy P. Decker, of Toledo, and a sister, Mrs. Martha A. Miller, of Bellevue.

Gaither Funeral.

Funeral services were to be held this morning for Walter H. Gaither, former Pittsburgh newspaperman, who died Tuesday in his home in Harrisburg. The services were to be held at the grave in Homewood Cemetery. Mr. Gaither was former public service commissioner and was secretary to John K. Tener when the latter was governor. He was born in Erie and for many years was a political writer on the Pittsburgh Dispatch and later on the Pittsburgh Post. He gave up newspaper work to become secretary to Tener. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Marie Bradley Gaither.

Baier Funeral.

Funeral services were to be held today for Frederick Baier, 70, basketmaker, who died Wednesday in his home, at 1407 Porterfield street. The services were to be held in St. Mary's Catholic Church, and burial in St. Mary's Cemetery, Ross Township. Mr. Baier was a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh and for the last 45 years had been a basketmaker on the North Side. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Anna Horn Baier; three sons, Frank, Joseph and Fred Baier; three daughters, Mrs. Magdalena Rodgers, Mrs. J. G. Arnold and Mrs. F. E. Stoehr, and 16 grandchildren.

Theodore Cappell.

Theodore Cappell, 64, died yesterday in his home in the Iroquois Apartments. He was born in Pittsburgh and educated at the University of Pittsburgh, graduating from the school of pharmacy. He had lived in the Oakland district all his life. Mr. Cappell was prominent in Masonic circles and was a member of the Grace Reformed Church. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Emma Kalbsell Cappell; a brother, William Cappell, of Lisbon, O., and a sister, Mrs. Otille Scheer, of Pittsburgh.

Nuziante Masi.

Nunziante Masi, 53, junior partner of the contracting firm of Masi Brothers, died in his home at 6522 Deary street, East End, yesterday. He was born in Italy and for the last 30 years had engaged in the contrasting business here. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Concetta Sola Masi; two sons, John R. and Anthony Masi; three daughters, Miss Theresa, Miss Rose and Miss Amelia Masi; a brother, John Masi, of Pittsburgh, and a sister, Miss Rose Masi, in Italy.

Mrs. John H. Stilley.

Mrs. Susan Bell Snee Stilley, wife of John H. Stilley, died yesterday in her home, at 221 Quincy avenue, Mt. Oliver. Beside her husband she leaves two sons, Thomas J. Stilley and Samuel O. Stilley; two daughters, Merl S. Stilley and Wilda E. Stilley, and a sister, Mrs. Charles C. Ray.

High Seas Demolish Historic Fort McRae

PENSACOLA, Fla., April 3.—(AP.)—Lashing seas have done for old Fort McRae that which enemy gunfire couldn't do, and the last casement of the sturdy fortification, guardian of Pensacola harbor for a hundred years, appeared on the verge of tumbling into the Gulf of Mexico today.

Army engineers said it might stand until the next heavy sea, but no longer.

EASTER CLOTHES with the Spirit of SPRING

When you step out of your home on Easter Sunday, will your personal appearance harmonize with the spirit of Spring and holiday atmosphere all around you? It will, if you're dressed in one of our new Spring Suits and Topcoats . . . . created for the occasion, in the spirit of Spring.

And when we say created, we MEAN created. For as everyone knows, we design our own styles; we tailor our own clothes in our own tailoring shops; and we sell them direct to you in our own stores, without middlemen's profits.

Naturally, our quality is better; our styles more authentic; our values are greater; our selections are wider. It stands to reason that a clothing manufacturing organization with our unlimited buying, manufacturing and selling resources will excel in quality, style, value and selection.

Right now, gray is the leading color. Tan is a very close second. Blues, as always, are in favor; while browns and pastels are fast joining the leaders. And, as you would expect, we have them all.

Tall or short, stout or slender, our tremendously large stock is your assurance of perfect fit and certain satisfaction.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgh Party at Resort

News of the folks in the south, in the east, and in resorts in the mid-south reaches me constantly. Everyone seems to be going some place, or returning.

Among those arriving at White Sulphur Springs for J. D. Watson, the C. M. Scotts.

On April 15 the William B. Schillers are expected to arrive for the annual spring golf and tennis tournaments.

Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Conner have gone to Fredericksburg, Va., before returning to the King Edward Apartments for the spring season. They have been in St. Petersburg for the winter.

The Omar Scott Deckers are remaining in St. Petersburg until Tuesday and Miss Romaine Clark after wintering in St. Petersburg, has gone to Atlantic City. Others at Atlantic City are Mrs. J. H. Hillman, Dr. and Mrs. W. A. McCready.

Home from the Hun Prep School in Princeton are Lawrence McKay, James B. Robertson and John M. Trainer.

Tuesday evening William R. C. Ford and Thomas C. Ford, sons of the William W. Fords, of Wellesley avenue, were hosts at a dinner for 10 members of the Yale engineering inspection trip, visiting the industrial plants of the city. Robert C. Ford, another son, returned from Yale Wednesday morning to spend the Easter holidays with his parents.

GRAY PREDICTED POPULAR COLOR FOR EVENING GOWNS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, April 3. — A gray mist overshadows the evening sky as frocks of gray become more important in the mode. Somehow the gray evening frock has never before gained general acceptance. One wore gray for daytime clothes, formal or informal, and ordinarily let it go at that. Anyway, that color used to be beloved of the elderly lady as its demure Quakerish appeal, combined with dignity, seemed to make it the ideal and logical choice for her. But we have discovered that color is not in the hands of the clock and that there should be no restrictions attached to it. Misty gray chiffon or georgette has been used to make some exquisite toilettes and now other fabrics in various shades of gray are being used. The cult of color is becoming of increased importance and one does not have to be an artist to discourse academically on it. For every woman who takes her fashions seriously is already a color expert.

THERE IS MUCH of interest in the two evening frocks depicted in the drawing. Lanvin makes the model to the left, which has a short tunic blouse made entirely of dull toned Madonna blue beads worked in a close mesh, almost suggesting fine mail. Slight draping at the front and back of the decolletage and a beaded belt soften the cuirass-like effect. The skirt is floor length, circular in cut and is made of white chiffon.

* * *

THE DRESS to the right is by Jane Regny is one of her latest numbers. It is very suggestive of the crinoline period, and so, somehow, gray seems the logical color. Three shades are used and the material is stiff faille. The three tones are combined artistically in the low-cut bodice and graduated skirt flounces. These are cut circular with a slight dipping movement in back.

EXCESS WEIGHT can be Removed Easily, Safely and Immediately

Fayro Bath Salts will positively reduce your excess weight easily, safely, and immediately. The results attained may seem to you hard to believe; they are attested to by the evidence of hundreds of physicians and satisfied users who have written in to us to tell of their success, absolutely without any sort of solicitation.* The facts are incontestable.

Fayro is not to be confused with any internal medicines or drugs. Its formula is no secret; we will be glad to submit it to any physician for whatever laboratory tests he may desire to make. The treatment is simple and designed to be taken in your own home without anyone knowing about it except yourself, if you wish.

The results are immediate. The scales will show you the difference in a single night, and Fayro leaves you more healthful, more beautiful than ever, with the soft, velvety skin of youth. Listen to what Doctor T——, of Staten Island, N. Y. says of this modern method of reducing.

"I have had very good results with Fayro Bath Salts . . . The . . . patient has felt better and lost twenty pounds. I would like another complete course for same patient which ought to put her in striking distance of fairly normal weight." Letters of many other reputable physicians testify to the same success.

Fayro is sold only on an unconditional guarantee that if you are dissatisfied for any reason your money will be instantly refunded. More than a million and a half treatments have been sold on this guarantee. You risk nothing in giving it a fair trial.

One dollar at drug stores and toilet counters everywhere.

*Write for copy of sworn statement before Notary Public that no testimonial for Fayro has ever been solicited or paid for in any way. Fayro, Inc., North Side, Pittsburgh.

BUTLER BLAMES LAWLESSNESS ON VOTERS

Marine Commander Here, Says Their Tolerance of Corruption Aids Crime

Voters, because they tolerate dishonesty among officials, are to blame for the present reign of lawlessness and the apparent inability of the police to cope with it, Gen. Smedley D. Butler stated in an address at the seventh annual banquet of the Optimists Club of McKeesport last night in the Penn-McKee Hotel.

The marine commander was introduced to the 200 members of the organization by William H. Coleman. Other speakers were Mayor George H. Lysle; Edward P. Junker, retiring president of the club; Milton Schaffner, international vice president of the organization, and LeRoy S. Gandy, of Buffalo, governor of the Nineteenth District of the organization.

SCORES POLITICS

In his address Gen. Butler said in part:

"If the police were given the same authority as the marines, they would get the same results. That is because no low-down politician can get a marine. If a marine shoots someone in line of duty, he does not have to stand trial before a local jury that may be composed of sympathizers of the person shot. In such a case a marine can get justice. A policeman can't."

"It's nonsense to think that a few thugs can hold up thousands of police, if the hands of the latter are not tied by politics.

HOLD HONESTY KEY

"Crime suppression is simply a question of honesty in public office. The voters themselves, because they tolerate dishonesty among officials, are to blame for the present reign of lawlessness and the apparent inability of police to cope with it.

"Philadelphia now has one of the lowest crime rates among American cities, which is simply due to the fact that the Mayor there is honestly backing his safety director. When I tried my hand at that Philadelphia job, I found that the police were not supposed to do what they had been hired to do."

FIRE DESTROYS OLD MILL TANK

An empty 500-gallon water tank 75 feet above an abandoned mill of the Crucible Steel Company, at Thirty-sixth street and the Allegheny Valley Railroad, was destroyed last night by fire believed caused by sparks from a locomotive.

Flames which consumed the wooden tank illuminated the neighborhood while firemen looked on. They declared that to reach the blaze would have been difficult, and they deemed the old tank worthless.

Phillips, Writer, Gets Mother's Estate

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., April 3.—Excepting a trust fund of $4,000 set aside for two grandsons, Mrs. Anna Phillips, late of Brownsville, left her estate to her son, Sir Percival Phillips, famous correspondent for the London Daily Mail, now located in India. The grandsons are Wilbur Warner Phillips and James Knox Phillips, both of Pittsburgh. William K. Knox, Pittsburgh, is executor of the estate.

'Racket' Cost Put At $18,000,000,000

ALBANY, April 3.—(INS.)—Racketeering is costing people of the United States between $12,000,000,000 and $18,000,000,000 a year, the New York State Crime Commission declared in its annual report filed today with the Legislature.

Customs Patrolman Injured in Chase

DETROIT, April 3.—(AP.)—Walter Whittle, 27, a customs border patrolman, was seriously injured today in an automobile accident which halted his pursuit of a truck loaded with 50 cases of beer.

Man, 84, Custodian Of '19th Hole', Fined

ST. LOUIS, April 3.—(AP.)—At 84, George Moeller presided at what he called the nineteenth hole of the Creve Coeur golf course. A federal judge sentenced him to 30 days for selling home brew in his house.

'Electron Gun' May Explain Death

OXFORD, O., April 3.—(AP.)—Possibilities of throwing new light on the causes and nature of death with the application of the new "electron gun" developed at the University of Cincinnati were described today at the joint sessions of the Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky Academies of Science.

The gun, which was completed approximately a year ago and used to bombard and demolish bacteria, was described by its designer, Dr. D. A. Wells.

The gun shoots out a stream of electrical particles in a vacuum against the bacteria, and kills them if the velocity of the particles or electrons is greater than 30,000 miles a second, Prof. Wells said.

Last Minute Hints on Easter Essentials

Easter Coats

Boasting 1931's Cuffs and Collars

$25.

This Spring your last year's coat will be distinctly "dated" . . . 1931 coats are so different, with furs cut and draped intriguingly, (you'd hardly know they were furs) . . . sleeves and collars on true dressmaker lines. These, in soft wool crepes, are really remarkable.

(A) Saw-tooth collar line in black kid galyak on wool crepe. Sleeves are cut like the collar.

(B) Deep revers collar cut on a circular line, bordered in squirrel. NEW sleeve detail.

(McCreery's—Third Floor)

To "Head" the Easter Ensemble

$5. and $7.50

STRAW is the Easter hat story in one word! . . . bakus, ballibuntls, rough straws, new crochets, here they all are, in just the fascinating shapes you'll look best in, from sleek turbans to coquettish Watteau-brim models!

Every Charming Color, White and Black

(McCreery's—Fourth Floor)

McCreery's Non-Run

Rayon "Three-In-Ones"

$1.95

These famous garments, a brassiere, a vest and a panty all in one, are just perfect for a single garment underneath your Easter ensemble. Non-run rayon as soft as silk, in cuff or bloomer knee styles. Flesh, white and blush. Sizes 32 to 40.

(Second Floor)

Tomorrow--

The Last Day of the Easter Fair!

Here you'll find excited kiddies going into raptures over real live Easter bunnies, downy "peeps" and cunning puppies . . . you really mustn't miss it!

Crisp pique collars and cuffs cut on refreshing tailored lines . . . swagger patent belts . . . coats in Spring's nubbly weaves. Navy, Bittersweet and Red. Sizes 10 to 16.

(Fifth Floor)

Easter Dresses

With That New Look

$16.50

There's something decidedly different about dresses this Spring . . . look at these, just sparkling with new details and dressmaker touches. Most all of them have brief little jackets.

(A) Leaves and dots in a new print . . . bolero jacket frock with grosgrain trim and patent belt.

(McCreery's—Third Floor)

Perfect Shoes

For Your Easter Costume

$10.

Two pluperfect types . . . the oxford of real ring-tail lizard for your "white and—" costumes, and an attractive buckle step-in of blue kid trimmed in astralac, with buckle of kid and reptile. These are "Rosalyn" models. Hosts of good-looking shoes to suit any costume, assembled for your selection.

(McCreery's—Fourth Floor)

DRIVERS BREAK PASSING RULE

Driving to the left of street cars on two-way streets is the leading traffic violation reported by Pittsburgh's 500 traffic safety observers during March, according to Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the Better Traffic Committee's education section.

The observers' monthly report covers 263 traffic law violations during March and a total of 869 during the first three months of this year. The reports, made by individual observers, bring about the sending of letters of remonstrance to the violator, informing them of their carelessness and requesting co-operation with state and city vehicle laws.

ACTION ON DREW AIDE HELD UP

The county salary board has held over a request by Superior Court Judge James B. Drew for authority to employ a stenographer, comparable in ability with an official court reporter, at $4,600 a year.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern, opposing the authorization, declared the stenographer in the office of Supreme Court Justice R. S. Frazer is paid $3,000 a year.

The salary board is composed of the three County Commissioners, the County Controller and the head of a given department.

Southern Mayor Gives Salary Away

SPARTA, Ga., April 3.—(AP.)—So far as Mayor L. P. Berry is concerned, a public office is not only a public trust, but his official salary is a public trust fund.

The Parent-Teacher Association here has just received $150 from the Mayor, which is one-half of his salary for the present year. The other half will go to some other cause he deems worthy. He says he does not wish to benefit financially from his office.

DRUGGISTS PLAN BANDIT FIGHT

To afford members more adequate protection against bandits and thieves, officers of the Retail Druggist Association of Western Pennsylvania have entered into negotiations with the Burns Detective Agency, Ross M. Davis, secretary, said this morning.

The plan, which proposes the offering of a substantial reward and the employment of private investigators to check robberies, has been approved by the membership of the association, R. B. Cochran, Pittsburgh manager of the Burns agency, is representing the agency in the negotiations. The association embraces 1,500 independent druggists throughout Western Pennsylvania.

TEAR GAS ENDS OAKDALE SIEGE

Overcome with tear gas when he barricaded himself in his grocery store and defied police and detectives to arrest him for an alleged molestation of two Oakdale children, John Kostysk, 55, Noblestown, was in the county jail today. He was captured late last night.

According to Police Chief E. N. Hartness, of Oakdale, Kostysk met two girls, 11 and 12, when they were leaving church at noon yesterday, and invited them to his store. When the children failed to return home their parents started Oakdale police on a search.

The children arrived home later in the day, with candy, stockings and other gifts they said Kostysk had given them, Chief Hartness reported. Police questioned them and started for Kostysk's store. Displaying an army rifle with threats to kill anyone entering the store, Kostysk defied arrest, police say. County detectives were called.

Breaking a front window, the officers fired three tear gas charges into the store, and several more through a side window, following these with three tear gas grenades. After waiting a half hour officers entered and found Kostysk overcome, according to Chief Hartness.

Crowds which gathered at the store were scattered by police. Chief Hartness said that no harm had been done the children.

Student, 16, Held In Church Bombing

DETROIT, April 3.—(AP.)—A 16-year-old student of Cass Technical High School was held by juvenile authorities today following a report by detectives that he had admitted bombing a Serbian Catholic Church on Charest avenue as a means of testing explosives of his own concoction.

East-West Air Line Start Again Delayed

'PARSIFAL,' CANTATA OF HOLY GRAIL, GOOD FRIDAY FEATURE

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

The beautiful story of "Parsifal" . . . the search for the Holy Grail . . . set to inspiring music by Richard Wagner . . . is one of the Good Friday treats on the radio tonight. Walter Damrosch is to direct the production on WCAE at 11 . . . and Paula Hemming haus, contralto, rated by some critics as the best radio singer in her class, heads a brilliant cast. The cantata, "Seven Last Words of Christ," is offered on KDKA at 9:30. Jessica Dragonette sings Hageman's "Christ Went Up Into the Hills," WCAE at 8. Vivienne Segal, youngest artist ever to sing the role of "Carmen," gives three solos, KDKA at 8, while Ruth Etting entertains the WCAE audience at 10:30.

Paula Hemminghaus

Sad tones in Ted Husing's speech lately may be attributed to Ted's high regard for Knute Rockne. Ted and Knute were like brothers—in fact, Knute told us when he was at WJAS that Ted was the only radio announcer he ever permitted to watch his Irish in practice before a big broadcast.

When Lowell Thomas pronounced "Good night" in Yiddish for that Wilmerding gentleman last night, guess where we were? No place else than Sally Goldstein's home enjoying a Jewish repast with Ford Miller, Riggs and Moke. Phil Goldstein, the puncher, and Cousin Lora. The matzos were delicious.

We have recommended Riggs and Moke for special auditions at NBC and CBS. They leave for New York after tomorrow's 3:15 broadcast on WCAE. They will return Wednesday.

* * *

A radio fan in Portland, Ore., spent $35.50 on a long-distance telephone call to New York to advise Ernie Hare that he liked the team of "Jones and Hare." A coast-to-coast hookup, as it were.

QUESTION A DAY:

How may I see the studios of Pittsburgh broadcasting stations? —Mrs. W. H. C., Greensburg.

Answer—KDKA, take elevator to twenty-first floor in William Penn Hotel and ask for hostess, either Carolyn Dickson or Gertrude Beck; WCAE, secure permit on tenth floor of Gimbel's store, then proceed by elevator to twelfth floor—inquire for Jesse L. Kaufman, manager; WJAS, fourth floor, Law and Finance Building, Fourth avenue near Grant, ask for Marcella Deverson or Frances C. Owen; KQV, twenty-first floor, Investment Building, Fourth avenue near Wood, ask for Cal Mara or Adrian Cooper.

STUDIO LIGHTS

KDKA takes the Easter morning sunrise service from Mount Davidson, near San Francisco, at 8 o'clock this Sunday . . .

Otto Gray and his Oklahoma Cowboys entertain on the Pleasure Hour over KDKA next Wednesday . . .

Ben Bernie's Band on WABC at 11:30 tonight . . .

WJAS is to carry the funeral service of Knute Rockne tomorrow at 3 o'clock if Columbia decides to broadcast it from Sacred Heart Church, South Bend, Ind.

Good last night: Rudy Vallee's impersonation of Maurice Chevalier and Lew White's organ interpretation of Herbert's "Sweet Mystery of Life" . . .

When it comes to versatility give Andy Sannella and his Soups Orchestra a great big hand . . . this morning their program ran the gamut of popular and classical compositions including a beautiful presentation of "Liebesfreud" and "The Rosary."

David Ross' "House by the Side of the Road"—WABC at 7:15 tonight—is a sentimental feature you may like.

Cousin Lora's tots have a big time tomorrow at 11:30 a. m. in WCAE'S sixth floor studio . . the Tom Thumbs are to be married . . .

The hardest working girls around Pittsburgh studios are the Lawson Sisters . . . they're headed somewhere if they can keep up the nice harmony they displayed last night with the Smiles Orchestra.

Paul Whiteman has signed Mildred Bailey for two more years . . .

The concert of spirituals on KDKA from WRVA — a regular Thursday feature hereafter — is something we have anticipated locally for a long time . . .

"East Lynne"—WJAS tomorrow night for sure on Hank Simmons' Show Boat at 10 o'clock . . .

"SOMETHING NEW" FOR EASTER

Being Well-Dressed is No Problem
For Men This Easter at B & B

2-Trouser Suits
$28.50 $35.00

AT $28.50—a new low-priced line with B & B that has received an enthusiastic reception. Woolens rarely seen at this price. Sturdy worsteds in grays, browns, tans and blues. Also those fine "Sawyer Spun" Homespuns that look and wear like suits priced two and three times as much. All sizes for men and young men.

AT $35.00—a notable collection of two-trouser suits that we believe are the town's greatest value. Fine all-wool worsteds that wear so well and hold their shape. Rich new colors and patterns. Models for young men and conservatively-minded men. All sizes, of course.

Society Brand
2-Trouser Suits
$50

Last year you would have paid $60 or $65 for similar quality suits. Better fabrics, richer colors, finer tailoring than ever. In the distinctive models that have made Society Brand famous.

Topcoats—$22.50

Little enough to pay for one of these all-wool, well-fitting garments. Your color, size and model is here at $22.50. Better ones, gradually up to $95.00.

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, April 3.—Life must again be sweet and satisfying to the piano makers of the land. A new stir of activity must be apparent in their mills.

For long they have been in the doldrums gazing apprehensively at the foreboding clouds of the mechanical age. There now appears the long-awaited silver lining.

The radio Mahomets, with none of the dwindling gold of the piano makers to support the propaganda, but with the approving nod of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, have set out on the grandiose scheme of making America a nation of piano players. And for the success of the scheme pianos must be purchased, must be set up in the front parlors.

With the advent of radio and the phonograph, the piano suffered a sharp and overwhelming decline as a musical asset of the home. With so much music tumbling out of the loudspeakers, the former zeal for piano instruction, a parental tradition that flourished throughout middle-class America for half a century, disappeared.

Parents became more eager to listen to high-class talent than to foster the hope that a new virtuoso of the keyboard might be uncovered in their offspring. And so piano teachers languished. They could not even interest parents in the possible vanity that would be theirs when their children pounded their way through Schubert's "March Militaire" to the questionable entertainment of relatives and friends.

Comes now from the broadcasters the dawn of a new day for the piano. No effort, they say, is to be made toward the development of budding genius.

There are enough piano virtuosi now to satisfy not only the overlords but the patrons of the concert stage.

The purpose is to impart youthful listeners an ability to play the piano for their own amusements. And a pooh-pooh for the entertainment of others.

And so the radio chieftains are enlisting a group of gifted amateurs who not only know a variety of chords for "Home, Sweet Home," but whose nmase have sufficient glamor to attract a large number of listeners—to say nothing of a large quantity of news space.

The newsprint space for the first course was not only large but compellingly confined to the front page. Nice, imposing numbers, such as 25,000, were used to signify the initial enrollment in the chord school of the broadcasters. And John Erskine, novelist, college professor and amateur pianist with a recital or two in Carnegie to his credit, was summoned to inaugurate the plan.

Erskine not only knows his keyboard, but he knows how to instruct. He resurrects familiar old folk tunes, sounds two or three chords, and in a low, pleasant voice, shows how easy it is to fill a room with music—and song.

The teaching staff will go far afield if present plans are followed. It will range, it is expected, from Casey Jones, the airplane pilot, to Charles M. Schwab, industrial captain. It will include Peter Arno, the sophisticated lampooner of pompous morons, and Nicholas Longworth, who could, if necessary, write the nation's songs.

PANTAGES SEES HOPE IN RETRIAL

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—(INS.)—Alexander Pantages, theatrical magnate, convicted of attacking a 17-year-old dancer, Eunice Pringle, today looked forward optimistically to a new trial granted by the State Supreme Court here yesterday.

When informed of the decision Pantages reiterated his innocence, and said his lawyers would introduce evidence to prove it conclusively.

The decision of the Supreme Court, reached by a verdict of 5 to 2, held the prosecution misconduct objected to by Pantages' attorneys, "warrants the conclusion that the defendant was not lawfully convicted."

Miss Pringle described the decision as "terribly unjust," and declared herself ready to go through another trial in no fear of testimony against her character.

Miss Pringle said the decision to grant a new trial on the criminal charge would not affect her $1,000,000 civil suit against Pantages.

2 AUTHORS DIE IN AUTO UPSET

BRYSON CITY, N. C., April 3.—(AP.)—Horace Kephart and Fiswoode Tarleton, both well-known authors, were killed in an automobile accident near here.

Kephart, a resident of this place, and Tarleton, who lived in Decatur, Ga., his guest, were riding in a hired automobile which left the highway and turned over at Ela, a small place five miles from here.

The driver of the car, R. B. Brown, was taken to a Sylva, N. C., hospital in an unconscious condition.

Tarleton was the author of "Bloody Ground," recently published Kentucky feud novel. Kephart had written numerous books on adventure, camping and outdoor life, besides "Our Southern Highlanders," a volume that attracted much attention.

MRS. DE PALMA GIVEN DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, April 3.—(AP.)—Mrs. Clara De Palma appeared in Superior Court unexpectedly yesterday and won a decree of divorce from Ralph De Palma, veteran driver of the racetrack, on grounds of desertion. She had sued for separate maintenance several months ago. Her husband did not appear.

A property agreement was submitted by De Palma, whereby he will pay his former wife $25 a week for the next eight months, and $50 during the remainder of her life while she remains unmarried.

Mrs. De Palma charged the racing car pilot of yesteryears deserted her December 1, 1927. They were married at Newark, N. J., June 30, 1909.

Fix Noah's Landing Near Easter Date

LONDON, April 3.—(AP.)—Stranding of Noah's Ark is believed by Col. F. C. Molesworth, who has done considerable research in Semitic sources, to have occurred on the 17th of Nisam, very close to our own Easter Sunday. In a recent speech before the Victoria Institute, Col. Molesworth said he deduced, because of reference to dates appearing in the Biblical account of the flood, that Noah must have kept a log.

COUNTY EMPLOYES DENIED PAY RAISES

Job Fund Chiefs Lay Final Plans

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

He carried an umbrella over an arm that was a little stiff. He owns seven discharges from as many armies. The slightly stiff arm came from a wound.

William Pfarr

Briefly and half apologetically, he unfolded his story. Substantially, it was this:

"I am 65 years old. I have $15 between me and either starvation or going to a charitable institution. The second alternative is abhorrent to one of my past. You see, I was not always poor.

"I am a son of an Army colonel, educated in Paris, where I spent my boyhood. I have studied in Geneva, London and Paris. I speak French. In fact, I can teach it. I learned French while I was learning English as a boy.

"I am a shorthand reporter. I used to work in the local Courthouse at this, although not steadily. I have taught mathematics. My wife was a teacher of French, mathematics, and Latin. She gave private lessons.

"When I was out of work my wife managed to keep us going, but last month she caught cold, took pneumonia and died. This ring (there came a mist to his eyes) she asked me to wear when she was dying. I keep it, like this, on my watch chain.

"Along with 17 other men with the firm I worked for, I was dismissed. It was not my work, they said, but the times. I couldn't blame the firm for that.

"I live now in a hall bedroom on the South Side, on the third floor, back, as you might say. I get this for $2.50 a week. My last meal was dry rye bread. No, I'll amend that. It was not entirely dry. I believe a tear or two dropped on it as I ate it.

"Relatives? I have relatives, yes, but at 65 and when one doesn't have money or a job—relatives often are uncertain. I would not go into that now.

"I know you can't give me a job. But a friend said: 'Maybe a story might bring an unexpected result.' I'm not sure that it will, but when you get desperate you take a chance.

"I can tutor; I can do clerical work. I am well read. I am of that pitiful, genteel poverty class. I will work 12 hours a day, at anything, for an amount that will let me eat regularly and keep my room on the third floor, back."

His recital was brief, and because he tried to smile now and then, and was not stressing his desperate case, the story seemed poignantly painful. He rose.

"I realize I shouldn't bother you with all this. I know there must be many cases like mine. To me, of course, mine is the important one. You can't picture yourself in my shoes at all. You are young and confident and you are sure that when you get to be 65—well that's a long way off. Why worry?

"I'll be getting along."

True story: A certain Pittsburgh contractor is bemoaning his lack of knowledge of geography. Recently he saw a government advertisement in a Pittsburgh newspaper inviting bids for a painting job in Porto Rico. He assumed that Porto Rico was in the Pittsburgh territory. Yes, he did.

Well, he sent his bid to Washington and it so happened he won the contract. And he had to carry it out. He lost, they say, $10,000 on the job.

Smedley Butler, who is, among other things, a general, was in town yesterday to speak to the members of the Builders Exchange in the Keystone Club. Now the general is one public speaker in a hundred—he doesn't mince words. If a story he's teling requires the use of a half dozen words which aren't generally spoken in the best of regulated homes, why the general goes right ahead and uses them, and his audience of males only chuckles.

That was the sort of speech Gen. Butler made to the builders. And when he had finished and the members were crowding about him with congratulations, one of them shoved a hand forward and piped:

HEADS OF 2 DIVISIONS CONFER

Meetings Scheduled Today; Canvassing for $3,000,000 Goal Will Open Monday

Preparations for the Allegheny County Emergency Association's drive for $3,000,000 to operate the Pittsburgh plan for employment stabilization were to be complete today at meetings in the Chamber of Commerce. The campaign opens Monday.

District chairmen of the chamber's unit of 300 members, which comprises Division "B" with a goal of $2,000,000 to be solicited from corporations and their employes, were to report progress made in organizing industries for solicitations. Corporations will be asked to contribute a day's payroll and employes a day's pay. T. P. Gaylord is general chairman of the division.

CAPTAINS MEETING

Division "A" team captains were to meet under General Chairman Walter C. Carroll to receive prospect cards for distribution to team members. The goal of this division is $1,000,000, to be solicited from individuals.

Workers will meet every noon during the drive, except Saturdays and Sundays, to report their receipts. Reports of the individual workers will be checked at this time by members of the senior class in accounting, whose service has been donated by the Pittsburgh School of Accountancy. One thousand men and women will take part in the campaign.

KAUFMANN TO TALK

Edgar J. Kaufmann, one of the originators of the plan, will speak at the first report luncheon Monday in the Chamber of Commerce.

About 40 unemployed men in McKeesport will be put to work on two of the four proposed public improvements authorized by the association. Labor cost on the four projects will amount to $13,300.

DENIES POLICE IGNORED CALL

Ralph Miller, chief of Dormont police, in a statement today, denied his department neglected to answer a call to the end of Louisiana avenue, where a boy was reported drowning, because it was not in his district.

The police head declared he dispatched Motorcycle Patrolman Ade Fedor to the vicinity. Fedor said when he arrived at the scene he learned that Donald Fuchs, 5, of 2805 Louisiana avenue, had fallen into a swimming hole and had been rescued. Ralph DeMatteo, of 2631 Philadelphia avenue, supported Fedor's statement.

Fire in Apartment Believed Boys' Prank

A home-made tin box containing sulphur, which was placed in the home of Mrs. A. B. Cochran, 5459 Kincaid street, was the prank of boys, East End police believe. Mrs. Cochran, owner of the two-story duplex, and occupant of the upper floor, called police when she smelled smoke and discovered a burning candle on top of the box in the vestibule of first floor yesterday. The lower floor had been unoccupied for some time. Mrs. Cochran told police.

Divorce Suit Filed By Dormont Woman

Mrs. Fay Marie Daly, 1134 Illinois avenue, Dormont, asked a divorce from Alfred J. Daly, of Webster Hall, in Common Pleas Court, on the grounds of cruelty and indignities. They were married March 4, 1924.

SPEEDING CIRCULATION!

V. E. MEADOWS, BEAUTY EXPERT, USING ELECTRIC 'PATTER'

Beauty Expert Will Tell Women Whether They're Blonde or Brunette

Hundreds of Pittsburgh women have already taken advantage of the Sun-Telegraph offer by writing in for free tickets to the lectures, next week, on "Cosmetic Styling" by V. E. Meadows, Hollywood beauty expert.

The time is getting short in which to apply for these tickets. The lectures start Monday afternoon, and continue through Friday afternoon. Lectures will be given only four evenings. Be sure to clip the coupon on page 23 and mail it to the Sun-Telegraph Beauty Editor today. Tickets will be mailed tomorrow.

Are you a blonde or a brunette?

What makes you think so?

Most women don't know which they are, according to V. E. Meadows, international authority on beauty, who comes to Pittsburgh under the auspices of the Sun-Telegraph for nine lectures, beginning next Monday.

There are light, medium and dark blondes, as well as light, medium and dark brunettes. There are also titian blondes and titian brunettes. You may be any one of them, but whichever you are there is a specific coloring for you and you must know what it is if you would be beautiful.

If you would learn just what type you are and what coloring you should use to bring out your best points, plan to attend one or more of Mr. Meadows' lectures next week. You may hear him at Pirate Hall, William Penn Hotel, every afternoon at 2:30, April 6 to 10 inclusive, or every evening in the Gold Room, Fort Pitt Hotel, at 8, April 6 to 9 inclusive.

FREE, OPEN TO ALL

The lectures are free, and open to all who will write or phone for tickets. A convenient coupon for requesting tickets is published in today's Sun-Telegraph.

Plan to be a little early when attending these lectures for Mr. Meadows will start his talks

Thieves Get Cash, Fail to Open Safe

After breaking into the George M. Hall Lumber Company, 135 West Seventh street, Homestead, last night, yeggs battered the combination of the safe, but were unable to force the door, according to police, who said a steel filing cabinet netted them $25.

Center Avenue Y Closes Fund Drive

The Center Avenue Branch of the Y. M. C. A. has closed a seven-day campaign for $1,500, with $2,288 subscribed and $1,037 in cash received.

The campaign was conducted by a committee headed by Attorney Frank R. Steward and composed of Dr. James G. Fowler, W. A. Gibbs, W. S. Buchanan and W. T. Poole.

Mrs. Leona Thorpe, 27, a Negro, of rear 1230 Wylie avenue, died last night in Passavant Hospital shortly after she swallowed poison in the cellar of her home, according to the coroner's report.

Foch Describes Opening Dykes to Halt Foes Drive

In yesterday's instalment, Marshal Foch told of his meeting with British Field Marshal Sir John French, in October, 1914, and their plans to co-ordinate the Allied forces against the Germans advancing through Belgium toward the Channel ports. Today Marshal Foch tells of his first meeting with Lloyd George and the program that evolved to check the Germans at the Yser in Belgium.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

CHAPTER VI.

My day's journey in Flanders had made it clear to me that although our left, resting on the sea, was comparatively secure, there was still an open space some 15 miles wide, stretching from Roesinghe to the Lys, and held only by a few regiments of territorials, some cavalry and scattered British troops in the vicinity of Ypres. Fortunately, on my arrival at Doullens, I heard from Gen. Joffre that the British 1st Corps would complete detraining at Hazebrouck on the 19th. It would be followed by the Lahore Division sent to the same region, then by the French 42nd Division directed on Dunkirk, and finally by the French 9th Corps, which would proceed to a point not yet determined. It was my task to make the best use possible of these reinforcements, see that they arrived under the protection of troops already in the Ypres area and then co-ordinate their action.

As the battle in Picardy and Artois became more and more stabilized, a new era of events opened north of the Lys. Here was to be found the only ground now left where the Germans could seek to outstrip us, surprise us in the midst of our preparations and crush us with the weight of their powerfully armed masses.

Marshal Foch

It was their last chance of winning the battle on the western front, which so far had gone against them, and of carrying out their original plan of bringing the war to a victorious conclusion in the west before proceeding to end it in the east.

It was to be anticipated that, if left unhampered in their movements, the Germans would put forth an exceptionally powerful effort; accordingly, we once more tried to forestall them by seizing the initiative ourselves. As it turned out, we did not succeed, but we broke their plan completely and definitely and thereby inflicted upon them a serious check.

[Marshal Foch here tells the story of his first meeting with Lloyd George, which ap-

GIRL ACCUSES FIVE MEN

Accused of complicity in the disappearance of Olive Davis, 12, of 1005 Wymore street, Elliott, five men were held in West End Police Station today on suspicious person charges.

The girl, who disappeared March 17 and was found last Saturday, picked the five men police say, from a "standup" of 20 men in the police station last night. Those under arrest, according to police, were Michael Carr, 30, of McClure avenue, Homestead; Vincent Gray, 25, of East Fourth street, Homestead; Martin O'Hara, 30, of 344 Eighth avenue, Homestead; Albert Solomon, 27, of 5532 Avondale place, and Alex Alpern, 22, of 248 South Atlantic avenue.

ROBBERS TAKE EASTER OUTFIT

A complete Easter wardrobe, valued at $150, and $330 in cash, were taken by thieves who forced entry into two adjoining stores in Fifth avenue early today.

City detectives said the thieves stole the clothing from Fisher Brothers, men's furnishers, at 227 Fifth avenue, and the currency from the Newark Shoe Company, in the same building.

West Elizabeth Man Killed in Texas

HOUSTON, Tex., April 3.—(AP.)—Murder charges faced J. J. Helms, railway special agent today for the fatal shooting of Glenn J. Fuller, of West Elizabeth, Pa., in the Southern Pacific yards here last night. Fuller died in a hospital from a bullet wound inflicted, officers said, when he leaped from a freight train and attempted to evade questioning.

ERK SEES STEEL LOADED HERE

The first shipment of steel from this district bearing the imprint of Pittsburgh, according to the suggestion of Congressman Edmund F. Erk in his plan for the world-wide advertising of this industrial area, was loaded today by the Independent Bridge Company.

Two thousand tons of structural material for the new Kanawha river bridge at Point Pleasant, W. Va., was loaded upon barges at Neville Island and will be towed down the Ohio, the big white letters in the sign, "From Pittsburgh, Pa." being visible from both sides of the river.

P. E. Hunter, president of the Independent Bridge Company, invited Congressman Erk to witness the loading of the first barge, and predicted that within a short time every shipment of Pittsburgh steel, whether by boat or trainload, would bear the imprint in letters a foot high calling attention to this industrial district.

Erk's comment was:

"It is significant that this first shipment giving adequate advertising to Pittsburgh goes by water. Soon I hope we shall see the word 'Pittsburgh' on every product that leaves this district and we look forward also to seeing our goods shipped to the Great Lakes over a canal all the way to Lake Erie."

Moonshine, Truck And Driver Seized

An automobile truck transporting 29 five-gallon cans of moonshine whisky was seized in Steuben street early this morning by prohibition agents. Gip Constantine, 32, alleged driver, was arrested. Prohibition agents said he delivered a consignment of corn sugar at a house in Steuben street, after which the cans of moonshine were placed in the truck.

St. Francis Dates For Summer School

The 1931 summer session of St. Francis College will open at Mount Aloysius Academy, Cresson, Monday, June 29, and close Saturday, August 1. All courses are approved for credit by the Pennsylvania Department of Instruction.

Good Friday Brings Freedom for 60

On their promise to refrain from drinking today—Good Friday—60 men who faced Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Center avenue and Central police courts, on charges of drunkenness, were discharged.

DULL TIMES CITED BY BOARD

Bans Some New Jobs But Grants Others for Office Building, Vote Machines

The county salary board has denied requests for pay increases of approximately $225,000 annually to about 100 employes.

Offering a motion to deny the raises at a meeting yesterday, Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong said:

"This is no time for increases in salaries. A great many persons are out of work and look to us for help. We have extended some aid in the emergency relief program, and may do so again. I think those having regular jobs should be thankful."

Commissioner C. C. McGovern volunteered:

"If you will make a motion to that effect I will second it."

Commissioner Edward V. Babcock declared:

"This is a sane and wise move. We cannot be overly generous, when there is so much unemployment. The man with a job today is lucky. It would be incongruous for me to vote to increase the pay of county employes when I had to reduce the pay of my own office force."

JOBS VOTED DOWN

Besides denying requested increases, the salary board also refused to authorize the creation of these new jobs:

Juvenile Court, four probation officers and three stenographers; County courts, a clerk; sheriff's office, two clerks and one stenographer; Juvenile Detention Home, a $3,000 appropriation for emergency help; Common Pleas Court, a $10,000 appropriation; county solicitor's office, a stenographer.

Anticipating early occupancy of the new county office building, the board authorized employment of an elevator dispatcher at $150 monthly; three elevator operators, $125 each; three window cleaners, $125 each; three utility men to operate scrub machines, $121 each; three oilers at current union wages; three utility men at $121 each to operate scrub machines in the Court House when the scrub women are transferred to the new structure.

VOTE MACHINE JOBS

The board, which is composed of the three Commissioners, the Controller and the head of a given department, also authorized employment of a stenographer at $150 a month for the office of C. W. Forcier, director of the county airport.

Ten jobs with salaries totaling $29,400 a year, necessitated by the adoption of voting machines in the county, were authorized by the board, including a chief custodian at $3,600; six custodians, $3,000 each; a record clerk, $3,000; a clerk, $2,700; a steongrapher, $2,100.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 3.

To the Editor Sun-Telegraph:

I don't think I could be accused of saying anything detrimental to commercial aviation. For I think it is the safest, and only way to travel, but every mode of transportation should use every possible invention that might add the least bit to safety. Now a parachute wasn't invented just for some nut to go up and jump out for fun. Lindbergh, Hawkes, Doolittle, Williams, Ingalls, all wear them. That's why most of them are still here.

Will Rogers

I have never understood why commercial planes didn't use them. Now the wing comes off Rockne's plane mighty high up to light as far away from the plane as it did. I always had a doubt if I would have the nerve to jump, but there would have been none about Rockne. He would have stepped out of there, pulled that ring, and told a funny joke on the way down. It at least gives you a chance that you haven't got otherwise. The Army and Navy demand it, and they can't be wrong all the time.

At least have 'em there, and leave it optional with the passenger. Yours,

WILL.

Newsboy Reported Beaten, Robbed, Tied to Tree

County detectives today were investigating the story of Woodrow Welsh, 18, Broughton newsboy, who told of being beaten, robbed and tied to a tree for several hours in a woods near the entrance to South Park, Bethel Township, late yesterday.

According to Justice of the Peace J. M. O'Rourke, Welsh, a collector for the Broughton News Agency, told of collecting a sum of money from persons on whom he had delivered papers and of returning home by a path through the woods. Nearing Broughton, he said, he was attacked, a sack thrown over his head, and robbed of $22. He was beaten, he said, when he attempted to make an outcry, and tied to a tree to permit his captors to escape.

He was discovered by several boys who were in the woods collecting maple sap who used the path as they returned home at dusk. The boys appeared before Justice O'Rourke where the crime was reported.

Suspicious Signals Snare Pair in Street

James Robinson, 26, of 102 North Euclid avenue, Bellevue, who North Side police said drove his automobile back and forth in Western avenue for 20 minutes early today, was arrested on a suspicious person charge. Police also arrested Wesley Churchill, 30, of rear 708 West North avenue, who they say was standing on the pavement signaling to Robinson. Police went to Churchill's home, where they said they found a quantity of moonshine.

EXPERT TO TELL BEAUTY TYPES

promptly. It would be well, too, to bring your pencil and paper for you will want to jot down many of the things he says.

Not only will Mr. Meadows tell you his beauty secrets but he will illustrate his talks with the use of his knowledge in cosmetic styling on living models who accompany him, and members of the audience.

OBVIOUS MAKE-UP SCORNED

He will tell you and show you how to determine your type; how to choose the correct colors and how to apply cosmetics in such a fashion that they cannot be detected. Mr. Meadows declares:

"'Makeup' is a total loss if it is obvious. It should be used to bring out the natural beauty that already exists and to eliminate less pleasant features."

If your face is too long or too wide, or too fat or too thin, this man can show you how to achieve a highly desirable contour by the skillful use of cosmetics.

It may be your eyebrows that spoil your face. If it is he will tell you what to do about it. Or perhaps your eyelashes, while performing the function of eyelashes in a perfectly capable manner, don't add what they should to the attractiveness of your face. If they don't he will show you how to improve them.

PROBLEMS CAN BE SOLVED

Whatever your problem is, Mr. Meadows can help you solve it. Or if you are generally dissatisfied but don't know what the trouble is he will tell you and advise you what to do.

Mr. Meadows says:

"A woman's self-confidence and ability depend so much on her appearance that she can't afford to neglect it.

"The well-groomed woman is the woman who is successful. No matter where you go or what occupation you find women in you notice that the leaders are the ones with the carefully cared-for complexions and the thoughtfully chosen clothes."

BLAMES LAZINESS

The woman who says she hasn't time to think of her appearance is more likely to be lazy than busy, according to this man who has spent so many years of his life telling women how they may be more attractive. He declares:

"The really busy women, the ones who have a great capacity for accomplishment, have well-ordered minds. They recognize the importance of their appearance, and because they have well-ordered minds they definitely take time for the care of their skin and the careful selection of clothes."

AIDS STAGE, FILM STARS

For many years V. E. Meadows has been consulting cosmetician to some of the best-known stage and film stars in America. He has also been on the staff of a number of the biggest moving picture concerns in Hollywood. His services have been in demand in Europe as well as in this country. He has visited almost every state in the Union at the request of large groups of women who wanted his advice. Now he comes to Pittsburgh under the auspices of the Sun-Telegraph to give women here the benefit of his knowledge.

During nine lectures, from Monday to Friday, he will be in Pittsburgh to tell women and to show them how to bring out the hidden beauty which they possess but don't make the most of.

Grotto Plans Start Of Temple Building

Plans for the ground-breaking for the new temple of Islam Grotto May 1st in Montgomery avenue, North Side, were discussed at a meeting of 100 members, representatives of the grotto in quarters 18 West North avenue last night. It was the first of a series of business meetings to promote good fellowship.

Tech Art Instructors Exhibit Paintings in Institute Galleries

By PENELOPE REDD

The nine members of the faculty of the college of fine arts at Carnegie Institute of Technology have moved across Junction Hollow Bridge to become the guest artists of the patriarchal Carnegie Institute art galleries.

From now until May Day, a collection of 26 paintings will be on view.

E. M. Ashe, the head of the department of painting and decoration, top man of this faculty sections, shows one of his Maryland shore paintings for the first time in Pittsburgh. "Crab Houses at Christfield" is the background for a rowboat filled with colorfully attired Negro bathers. The locale has not been painted heretofore and Mr. Ashe's pungent style makes a fresh note.

Penelope Redd

Roy Hilton, next in alphabetical sequence, in "The Garden" paints a genre of a young woman and a child doing a bit of city planting. An ordinary subject is elevated to distinction through Hilton's ability to organize forms that have the added attraction of excellent color.

Russell T. Hyde in "Fairies and Finance" has a charming portrait composition contrasting a child and an old man. The little girl is one of the choice examples of figure painting in the room.

Alexander J. Kostellow considers material forms as significant abstractions in two still-life studies. They suggest the use of form to illustrate absolute esthetics.

CONTRIBUTES THREE

Norwood MacGilvary now has the majority of his canvases out in national exhibitions, consequently three canvases painted sometime since are contributed. "Isolation," a painting of mood, is impressive.

Wilfred Readio in "Late Hay" presents the lyric quality of our traditional American landscapes galvanized by contemporary response to the implications of form.

Samuel Rosenberg in a virile portrait of Russell Twigg, a young Pittsburgh artist, is as ever completely different from every other composition he has previously painted.

EXHIBITS PORTRAITS

Raymond Simboli in his group of portraits of himself, his brother Emerick, and his mother, proves again that one may consistently progress toward maturity without losing the sensitive perceptions of youth. The "Portrait of My Mother" is treated formally yet tenderly.

Everett Warner, who paints exactly what appeals to him, regardless of exhibition modes, shows two more studies of modern power in engines. "Steam," which might be a train emerging from beneath the Junction Hollow Bridge, combines strength and grace.

Many gallery spectators will enjoy the return of the College of Fine Arts' faculty to the pleasant custom of an annual exhibition at Carnegie Institute.

WOMAN PERILED BY WRIST CUT

Her left wrist slashed as a result of an alleged suicide attempt in her home last night, Miss Margaret Meyers, 58, of 260 Rosedale street, Homewood, was reported in a serious condition today in Columbia Hospital.

Despondency over her ill health and the recent death of her mother was ascribed as a motive by Homicide Detective Robert Carroll. Miss Meyers was found by her niece, Miss Helen Thulin.

TAXI DRIVERS VOTE ON STRIKE, CHARGE DISCRIMINATION

DEMAND UNION MEN BE GIVEN OLD JOBS

Breach of Agreement by Cab Company Claimed as Poll on Walkout Opens

If union taxicab drivers vote today to go on strike, the Parmelee Transportation Company will be asked to reinstate the 50 union men discharged, it was alleged, without reason, or the 872 union drivers will walk out in protest, it was said when the polls opened in the union headquarters, 527 Fifth avenue.

Union officials and some of the drivers contend that the company is not living up to the agreement signed when last year's strike was ended.

The polls opened this morning at 9 o'clock and will remain open until 9 o'clock tonight. Officials of the union and the Rev. James R. Cox, if he is available, will count the ballots.

Walter S. Laird, an official of the Parmelee Transportation Company, today issued this statement:

"No man has been or will be discharged by our company without just cause. The operation of taxicabs involves strict responsibility to the traveling public. When an employe breaks our operation rules by conduct considered a menace to the safety of passengers, his discharge must follow as a matter of strict duty. Our drivers must be experienced and rule abiding at all times, so that any man, or his wife or children, may use taxicabs with entire confidence in our safety provisions. For us to condone the actions of any driver who violates our rules would be criminal carelessness. This is the chief factor involved in the occasional discharge of a driver."

KANE BLIZZARD BREAKS ANEW

KANE, Pa., April 3.—(INS.)—Shortly after communication in this storm-torn region was restored today, the devastating April blizzard, which has already taken a toll of one victim and wrought several thousand dollars damage, broke forth again with new fury.

Telephone companies reported most of their lines were in service today, but expressed further fears because of the new storm. Olean, N. Y., was cut off from communication with the outside world during the storm.

Scott Dennis, 28, of Eldred, Pa., a lineman for the Bradford Electric Company, was electrocuted near Eldred when he attempted to repair a cable.

3 BARGE ORDERS RECEIVED HERE

A contract has been received by the Dravo Contracting Company from the Independent Sand Company of Wheeling for the construction of two steel sand and gravel barges. The barges will be 100 feet long, 26 feet wide and 6.6 feet deep. A contract for a steel tank barge 192 feet long, 40 feet wide and 11 feet deep was received from the Atlantic Refining Company. This barge will require about 315 tons of steel plates and shapes in its construction. The barges will be constructed at the Neville Island yards of the local concern.

West Newton Miner Dies After Accident

Injured in a fall of slate in the Warden mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, Frank LaSalle, 27, of West Newton, died early today in Mercy Hospital.

SEEK BANDITS IN 5 HOLDUPS

Bandits who staged five holdups last night were being sought by police and detectives today. Two armed thugs obtained $100 in the holdup last night of the drug store of E. T. Walther at 4760 Liberty avenue. Walther was alone in the store when the bandits entered.

Two bandits jumped onto the running board of the automobile of Attorney Joseph Rossi, with offices in the Union Trust Building, ordered him out of the car and robbed him of $15 at Amberson street and Morewood avenue. The pair drove away in the attorney's machine, abandoning it at Melwood and Bayard streets.

Held up by two Negroes at Sheridan avenue and Harvard street, Louis Pinkerton, of 7134 Mt. Vernon street, was robbed of $3.50.

"The Art of Make-Up"

FREE LECTURES

by V. E. Meadows of Hollywood

To Supervise Make-Up at Penn

Mr. Meadows will supervise the make-up for the Chester Hale girls at Loew's Penn Theater next week. He will also make two personal appearances in the Ladies' Lounge of the Penn Theater, Monday and Tuesday afternoon, April 6 and 7, at 5:15 p. m.

Using living models to illustrate the points covered in his lectures, Mr. Meadows will tell you what you want to know about: The care of the skin; scientific care of the hair; care of the hands; costume colors in relation to the individual's personality; shaping the hair correctly to give contour to the face; every detail of correct cosmetic styling and the finer technique of successful make-up. You are invited to attend these lectures as the guest of the Sun-Telegraph.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

RHUBARB BROWN BETTY—Mix 2 cups bread crumbs with ¼ cup butter, melted. Cover the bottom of a buttered baking dish with the crumbs and spread with 1 cup cooked rhubarb. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons brown or white sugar, the grated rind and juice of ¼ lemon and ⅛ teaspoon grated nutmeg, mixed together. Repeat with another layer of equal quantities rhubarb, sugar, lemon juice and rind and nutmeg. Cover with remaining bread crumbs, and bake 40 minutes in moderate oven. Cover during the first part of the baking to prevent the crumbs from browning too rapidly. Serve with sugar and cream.

VEAL PAPRIKA WITH EGG NOODLES—One package egg noodles, 6 veal cutlets, 1 egg, cracker crumbs, 2 teaspoons paprika, 2 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 cups milk.

Cook the egg noodles in boiling water until tender. Drain. Sprinkle cutlets with salt and pepper and dip in egg, then in crumbs. Saute slowly in butter until brown and well cooked (about 25 minutes). Make a cream sauce of the butter, flour, salt, paprika and milk. Place cutlets on a parsley-garnished platter, add egg noodles to paprika sauce and cook 2 minutes. Pour it over the meat. Serve immediately.

CHICKEN AND MUSHROOM LOAF—Chop one 12-ounce can of chicken and one 8-ounce can of mushrooms fine, add 4 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 2 teaspoons horseradish, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1½ cups soft crumbs and 3 slightly beaten eggs. Add the mushroom liquor to make moist but not too wet.

Place a few slices of bacon on the bottom of a greased loaf pan, pack in the mixture, place more bacon on top and bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees, for about 45 minutes. Turn out on a hot platter and serve the loaf with the sour cream sauce. Serves eight.

VEAL PIE—Cook a veal knuckle until tender with sliced carrots and onions, remove the meat from the bones, cut in cubes. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a skillet, 2 more tablespoons butter in a saucepan, add 2 tablespoons flour and cook until well browned and blended, adding 1 cup of the stock obtained from liquid used in cooking the veal.

Cook until well blended thin with more stock if needed, add the meat and cook 5 minutes. Place in a baking dish that has been well buttered and lined with cracker crumbs. Top with a prepared piecrust and bake in oven until well browned.

STRING BEAN AND PIMENTO SALAD—Drain freshly cooked or canned beans from their liquor, retaining the liquor for soup. When well drained, marinate in a thick French dressing for one-half hour in the refrigerator. Drain and arrange on marinated lettuce. Garnish with strips of pimento and serve with a thick, rich French dressing.

DATE PUDDING—Two cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ⅔ cup milk, ½ cup finely chopped beef suet, ½ cup sugar, 1 cupful quartered dates, 1 orange, grated.

Sift together the flour, salt and baking powder, add the suet, sugar and dates, moisten with milk. Add the grated orange rind. Steam in buttered mold for 2 hours. Serve with a lemon sauce.

BUTTER CAKES—Mix, in order, ¾ pound butter, 1 cup sugar, the yolks of 3 eggs and 4 cups of flour, working the flour in with the hand. Add a teaspoon of vanilla.

Pinch off a little dough at a time, and roll like a ball. Press thumb in center, to make a little impression and put jelly in the center. Place some distance apart, as they spread. Bake in a moderate oven.

HONEYCOMB TRIPE—Cover the fresh honeycomb tripe with cold water, having washed it thoroughly first. Bring to the boiling point, drain, cover with boiling salted water, simmer until tender (4 hours if cooked whole, 2 hours if cut in pieces for serving). And serve with a white sauce, made by melting 2 tablespoons of butter, adding 2 tablespoons of flour mixed with ¼ teaspoon of salt and a few grains of pepper, and then gradually pouring on a cup of milk, while stirring constantly. Bring to the boiling point and stir 2 minutes.

Tripe, properly cooked, can be most delicious. It is a dish that men find particularly excellent, though most women find it of so little appeal that they don't bother to cook it properly. A great mistake, too!

MUFFINS, WITH SOUR MILK—1 cup graham flour, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 4 tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 1 cup sour milk, 3 tablespoons fat, melted.

Mix ingredients and beat three minutes. Half fill greased muffin pans, and bake 15 minutes in moderate oven. Serve warm.

CARAMEL RICE PUDDING—1½ cups boiled rice, 1 cup dark brown sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks, 1½ teaspoons vanilla, 3 cups milk, 2 egg whites, beaten.

Blend sugar, flour and salt. Add vanilla, egg yolks and milk. Mix thoroughly. Add rice and fold in beaten egg whites. Set in pan of hot water and bake 35 minutes in slow oven. Remove from hot water. Cool and chill. If preferred a meringue can be made by beating egg whites and adding 3 tablespoons of sugar. Spread this roughly on pudding after it has been baking 25 minutes.

BROWNED DEVILED EGGS—Six hard cooked eggs, ½ cup chopped ham, 2 tablespoons finely chopped celery, 1 tablespoon onion, chopped, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 egg, beaten, 1 tablespoon cold water, 1 cup rolled cracker crumbs, 4 tablespoons bacon fat.

Mix ham, celery, onion and parsley. Cut cooked eggs in halves, lengthwise. Remove and mash yolks and add to ham mixture. Refill egg cases, press halves together. Quickly dip in egg which has been beaten with the water. Roll in crumbs. Heat fat in frying pan, add eggs and brown well. Serve on platter and garnish with parsley.

CREAMED NEW POTATOES—Four tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 2 cups milk, 8 small, cooked new potatoes.

Melt butter and add flour, salt and paprika. Blend well and add milk. Cook until creamy sauce forms. Stir constantly. Add potatoes and serve at once.

BANANA CAKE—(A moist cake)—½ cup fat, 1¼ cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup bananas, mashed, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon lemon extract, 1 cup sour milk, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda.

Cream fat and sugar. Add rest of ingredients. Beat three minutes. Pour into shallow pad fitted with waxed paper. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. Cool and frost.

FROSTING—Two cups light brown sugar, 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup broken nuts.

Mix sugar, milk and butter. Cook over moderate fire and stir frequently until soft ball forms when small portion is slowly poured into cup of cold water. Set aside for 20 minutes. Add vanilla and beat until creamy. Spread on top of the cake. Sprinkle with nuts.

HAM CROQUETTES—Five tablespoons butter, 6 tablespoons flour, 2½ cups milk, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 2 tablespoons chopped green peppers, 2 tablespoons chopped celery, ½ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups chopped cooked ham, 1 egg or 2 yolks, 3 tablespoons cold water, 1 cup crumbs.

Melt butter and add flour. When blended add milk and cook until a very thick sauce forms. Stir constantly. Add seasonings and ham. Cool. Dip tablespoonful of mixture into crumbs and then into egg and water, beaten together. Dip again into crumbs and shape as desired. Fry until brown in deep hot fat. Arrange on serving platter and surround with creamed peas.

NEW YORKER'S PINEAPPLE SALAD—Half cup cream cheese, 6 slices canned pineapple, drained; ½ cup mayonnaise, ¼ cup cream, whipped; mint jelly.

Cream cheese until smooth and soft enough to spread easily. Pile onto pineapple slices in thick, uneven layer. Arrange on crisp lettuce or watercress. Garnish with bits of mint jelly. Serve with dressing made by folding mayonnaise into whipped cream. Serves 6.

FRESH GINGERBREAD—⅓ cup fat, 1 cup dark brown sugar, 2 eggs, ½ cup molasses, 1 cup water, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon ginger, 2½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder.

Cream fat and sugar. Add rest of ingredients and beat vigorously three minutes. Pour into shallow, greased pan. Bake 30 minutes in moderately slow oven.

The Flavor is just Right

Juice of Fruits Contain Essential Minerals

Even the "acid fruits" do not add to body's acidity but are converted into alkalies and are "base-forming" and most valuable in building up and maintaining health.

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Former Health Commissioner of New York City, United States Senator from New York.

Modern enterprise has showered us with blessings. Almost everything having to do with our happiness and welfare is a gift of recent times.

It would be untrue to say that man is more appreciative of the fruits of the earth than were his ancestors. As a matter of fact, primitive man depended on the trees and bushes for most of his food supply. The savage knew where to find the fruit and what to do with it.

But modern refrigeration has made it possible to ship to our markets and to preserve for our use, the fruits of the whole world. In northern climes we are just as familiar with tropical fruits as are the natives of those far-off lands. More than this, methods of storage have made these products available throughout most of the year.

ESSENTIAL MINERALS

Not only do we get the raw fruit, but we have delicate, delicious fruit juices. They are to be had for the asking. The pity of it is we don't use them so abundantly as we should.

Fruits and fruit juices contain minerals which are essential to our welfare. They are base-forming, overcoming acidity.

What do I mean by saying the fruits are "base-forming?"

One of the problems connected with proper feeding is to avoid excessive acidity of the body. We do not thrive if acidity is present. We get gout, delayed digestion, abdominal discomfort and other serious complaints and diseases by the presence of too much acid. Because it is important to avoid this is the reason we talk so much about proper eating.

NOT ACID FORMING

Ripe fruits are not acid forming. You may be astonished to learn that even the "acid fruits" do not add to the body's acidity. Just the opposite is the fact. The chemistry of the body disposes of the acid feature of the fruits, converting them into alkalies. That is what is meant by saying the fruits are not acid forming, but really are base-forming, alkali producing.

Cider, orange juice, pineapple juice, the juices of berries and other fruits, are wholesome, nourishing, health-promoting beverages. They have a mildly laxative effect and, all in all, are good for your health.

Fruits contain the vitamins, a desirable form of roughage, and food values of the usual sort. You cannot do better than to eat them freely.

Thief Jailed Year Extra for Threats

PHILADELPHIA, April 3.—(AP.)—As Dudley Lane was leaving court after being sentenced to 18 to 36 months for larceny, he remarked to his pal, David Watson, who had turned state's evidence:

"I'll get you if it's the last thing I do."

His remarks were overheard, and he was brought back to the bar of the court and given an extra year for making threats.

GOTHAM AND HOLLYWOOD IN REVIEW; LOCAL AMUSEMENT NOTES

Latest Thing in Benefits Is Film Comedies With Donated Talent

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 3.

The National Vaudeville Artists already have produced a film with more than 50 stars. Going them one better, the Masquers Club in Hollywood, which corresponds to the Lambs in New York, will furnish FKO-Pathe with free writers, directors and actors for a series six two-reel comedies. Charles Rogers, head of Pathe, has agreed to produce and release them, and to donate a part of the proceeds to the club.

Conrad Nagel

Bryan Foy, who directed the first feature length talking picture, expects to start today upon the first of the series. It is a burlesqued melodrama, "Stout Heart and Willing Hands," from the pens of Al Austin and Walter Weems. Many big stars will play in the cast. Conrad Nagel and an actress yet to be selected will play the leads. The heavy will be Lew Cody, while Claude Gillingwater and Mary Carr will play character roles. Jack Holt and Frank Campeau are to be gamblers, and Matt. Owen and Tom Moore will be three bartenders.

The shorts will be known as "Masquer Comedies."

NOT PROUD

Dazzling, blonde Jean Harlow sat upon the bank of a swimming pool at a Palm Springs Hotel. A 7-year-old boy came up and greeted her:

"I know you. You're Jean Harlow, and you play in the movies."

The two talked for a while, and the boy confided that he had been taking swimming lessons from the instructor at the hotel.

"Do you suppose he would teach me to swim?" asked Jean.

"Oh, sure," replied youthful candor. "He'd teach anybody. He doesn't care."

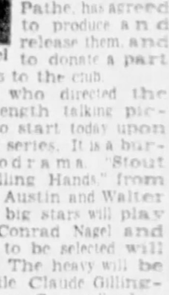
WELL, IS THAT FAIR?

Hub Keevey, fellow news scout, whom nature has decreed to be slender, is amused at the Hollywood custom of passing up sweets.

"Does that make them sugar-cured hams?" he inquired innocently.

LATEST GOSSIP

What's true one day is false the next in Hollywood. Betty Compson now has reconsidered going on the stage after completing her R-K-O contract. I suspect a tempting film offer is behind it. . . . The death of Knute Rockne is greatly mourned in the film colony, which is passionately addicted to football. . . Will Rogers is one actor who won't allow his kids to enter the studio where he is working. . .



Betty Compson

Dancer

Pearl Regay, dancer, formerly in "Rose Marie" and "The Desert Song," opens an engagement on the Show Boat tonight.

Esther Ralston has spent $150,000 to help the other stars in Hollywood be beautiful. But she expects to get it back. The money went into a beauty parlor, which opens tomorrow. . . De Witt Jennings, now in Cecil De Mille's "The Squaw Man," was in the stage production in which Mary Pickford made her debut. It was "The Little Red Schoolhouse," put on in Toronto a number of years ago. Mary was carried on the stage as a baby.

NOT ONLY HOLLYWOOD

"It's all right for them to hire Mlle. Chanel to come out here and design dresses," says Eddie Cantor, "but what Hollywood really needs is someone to design a check that won't bounce back."

Plays, Players, By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

John Charles Gilbert, Clifford Newdahl, Joseph Toner and Joseph Wilkins, who sing principal roles in "Blossom Time," opening tomorrow night (Saturday) in the Alvin, can't laugh at the street car conductor who takes a long trolley ride on his day off. They have formed a quartet. The quartet sings for fun—its own. But how can its members have any? They don't sing "Sweet Add Another Line."

* * *

The actor who is encored knows his audience to speak to and has a bowing acquaintance with it, too.

Harry Carey, who plays the title role in "Trader Horn," coming to the Nixon screen Monday, wrote the popular old stage play, "Montana," and starred in it for seven years before he sentenced himself to servitude in the movies, and lived to see them sweep the country. But we are told there's nothing scrubby about "Trader Horn," which will be shown twice daily.

"Stepping Sisters," Easter week vehicle for the George Sharp Players in the Pitt, with seasonal appropriateness, calls for sport clothes, dinner clothes, evening clothes and just clothes. If the wardrobe also includes acting clothes—and we assume it does—everything will be at least o. and possibly even k., as well.

We no longer see the down-at-heels actor pictured with a moth-eaten fur coat. Perhaps he thought that if moths could he could.

Wickersham Prober Opens Calumet Quiz

CHICAGO, April 3.—(AP.)—Samuel Herman, special agent of the Wickersham Commission, with a staff of assistants, opened headquarters in Hammond, Ind., yesterday, to conduct an inquiry into liquor and judicial conditions of the Calumet region, which includes Gary, Hammond and Whiting.

The Calumet region was selected, investigators said, because it was a "typical industrial community," and because it had long been a storm center in the interminable war between bootleggers and the law.

Villa-Royale Opens This Saturday Night

Jack Pettis, formerly of the Club Leviathan and Delmonico Club, New York, will be the headline attraction when the Villa-Royale, Babcock boulevard, opens its summer season Saturday. Other attractions will include Jeanne and Marion Cutler, formerly with George White's Scandals.

Guiser's Orchestra Playing in Sanders

Duke Guiser's Orchestra plays in Sanders Inn for the weekly Saturday night cabaret dances and Sunday evening dinners. The inn is now available for private affairs during the week. Fred A. Sanders, proprietor, announces.

Dear You

I think about you often,
And I write you every day,
But there's so very little
That seems worth while to say.

It either rains or it doesn't rain,
It is either hot or cold,
The new is all unint'resting,
Or else it's all been told.

The only thing that matters
Is the fact that you are there,
And I am here without you,
And it's lonesome everywhere.

—JHG.

Novelette

It actually happened during the winter in a smart store on Fifth avenue. An unimpressive middle-aged woman came in and tried to attract the attention of a saleswoman. Finally, one of the better saleswomen frowned and snapped:

"Yes?"

"I want to look at a———"

Before she could finish the sentence, the saleswoman, who couldn't be bothered with "unimportant looking people" turned her over to a new saleslady.

"I want to see the best sable coat you have," said the customer.

The new saleslady brought a $50,000 coat for her inspection.

"What will you take for cash?" asked the woman.

After a hurried conference with the manager, the saleswoman said: "$40,000."

The customer peeled off 40 $1,000 notes and went out with the coat.

The new saleslady got $2,500 in commission. The snobbish one, however, would have received $5,000.

Nifty

Jack Osterman says that if Rudy Vallee stays on tour much longer, when he returns to New York he'll be able to open his own grocery store.

Observation

A Broadway main exploded the other night, filling Times Square with dense clouds of steam, and newspapers carried long stories about it on the front pages.

Marking the first time that Broadway hot-air has been taken seriously.

By Way of Report

Midtown New York has an innovation in speakeasies. It is in the Forties on 6th Ave., two flights up, where you may drink all the cocktails you can swallow for only $1.50.

All the management asks of you besides the $1.50 is that you keep to the right while falling downstairs.

Flip Cracks

When Baird Leonard was appointed dramatic critic for Life, she received several wires of congrats from friends, the most amusing being from Irene Franklin which read:

"I hear you got Life. No girl deserves it more."

Another amusing telegram was received by a columnist recently upon his first big-time vaudeville engagement. It arrived before his opening matinee and read: "Better luck next time!"

Not New, But Clean

The "You Said It" star, Lou Holtz, offers that ageless one about the efficiency expert for the railroad who was on a fast train bound from California to New York. He got off to stretch his pedals at a far west stop and paused to gab with a veteran who was hitting the train wheels with a hammer.

"Ah, my good man," said the expert, "I see you are busy."

"Yes, sir," was the reply. "I hit the wheels of 16 trains with this hammer every day. I haven't missed a day in 43 years!"

"Why, that's marvelous—absolutely marvelous!" ejaculated the expert. "You mean to say that for 43 years you have been hitting the wheels of 16 trains with that hammer?"

"Yes, sir, 16 trains every day and haven't missed a day in 43 years."

"Tell me, my good man," said the expert, "do you know why you hit the wheels of 16 trains every day?"

"I'll be damned if I know!" was the reply.

Quiteso, Quiteso

Peggy Hopkins Joyce is now doing a syndicated column in which she tells women how to get men, and Phil Baker says that what most women want to know is how to hold them!

Deadly Parallel

The newspapers tell how Will Hays indorses the gangster flickers. The czar of the movies maintaining that that type of film has helped greatly to do away with crime. Mebbeso—but there was an exciting holdup in New York the other day. A trio of brownskin stickup men held up several people in an uptown store.

Outside their lookout revealed great skill at his racket—and great presence of mind. When he saw a bluecoat ankle along, the lookout didn't lose his head or run. He sauntered past the cop and then pressed a gun against the officer's back and marched him into the store. There the cop was stripped, beaten and robbed of a watch and $20.

Mr. Hays might recall that such a scene was shown in a gangster movie!

Heheheh

Then there's the Scot, says Izzy Elinson, who went to see "The Front Page" movie on a Sunday because he figured they'd have the colored comics, too.

First Nightmare

You rarely hear about first night audiences belittling a new play. That is, they seldom poke fun at it before the final curtain drops. But "Lady Beyond the Moon," by William Doyle and produced by William Street, the other eve'g, was received in the icy manner, not only by the critics, but by the paying customers. The continuity was interrupted often by derisive tittering or laughter in the wrong places.

The pay-off arrived when a patron shrieked: "O, God!" and left the theater, and when an attache of the house cornered the chap in the foyer and scolded him for being impolite, he pointed to the program, which described the play as "an impolite comedy."

Prominent

Sally Eilers has a prominent part in "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," Buster Keaton's farce comedy, which opens today in the Aldine.

NOTABLES FETE BURCHFIELD

An informal reception will precede the testimonial dinner for Albert Horne Burchfield which will be tendered him tomorrow night in the William Penn Hotel in honor of his 60th birthday. The reception will be held at 6 o'clock and the banquet will begin a half hour later.

Senator James J. Davis, Grover Whalen, former police commissioner of New York; Dr Herbert J. Tily, of Philadelphia, and Director Edward G. Lang, of the Public Works Department, will be among the speakers. Edgar J. Kaufmann will preside and will introduce the toastmaster, James Francis Burke.

Charge for Change

The money changing business, already an ancient one in Biblical days, exists in Rome. It is limited, however, to a charge of one-fourth or one-half cent for every 100-lire note changed into small coins.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Successful People Aren't Born That Way

Are you dragging around a ball 'n' chain—

Or clanking a couple of handcuffs?

Yes?

Well—who put them on you?

Fate . . . or your self?

Here, for instance, is Emily. With her life in a rut. And rarin' to go. But can't. Because she's "shackled." Who's shackling Emily? Think it over. Maybe you can learn about living from her.

"Dear Sally:

"'Is regusted!' And I'm coming to you for help because you do untie so many tough knots that I think maybe you can untie mine. It's like this.

Deadly Monotony

"I'm a country school ma'm . . . and I hate it. I get $100 a month, which feeds and clothes me, and helps take care of my parents. For which I should be thankful—and am. But I have rebelled against teaching here in this little community ever since I've been doing it, which is four years now.

"There isn't anything wrong with the teaching itself, you understand. I like it all right. But what chance has a girl to live, hemmed in by the narrow, hide-bound ideas of a rural community? I'd like to dance and have fun and be human. But the minute the 'school teacher' tries to be human, the neighborhood begins to buzz, and the eyebrows go up! You just daren't! And you get so far behind the times, and then there's the deadly monotony—Why I haven't gone any place for so long that I can't tell you when it was! You see, besides the funny ideas of the people, the winter roads are wet and muddy, and you just can't.

"I am only 21 years old, and I do want to live. But this job has provided a safe, sane living for me and, in spite of my longings and my rebellion, I haven't had the courage of my convictions. But it is all beginning to 'get' me now. What can I do?

Seeks Solution

"Don't tell me to go to the city and teach. I don't want to. I don't want to teach anywhere. I have considered a business course as a way out, but everyone tells me I couldn't make a living in the business world.

"Now, if I continue my profession where I am—where I'm pretty successful—I'll probably end up by marrying some hayseed and rearing a lot of half-clothed children.

"So please, will you advise me? I have read your articles with great interest, and I do believe you can help me out of this muddle-puddle that I find myself in, so I am coming to you because I really have no other experienced person to ask.

"Am I just a youngster filled with illusions about life? Or am I a modern young woman, trying to find something practical? What do I need to solve my problem? What can I do?

"EMILY."

So you're "rebelling" are you, Emily? There's nothing unusual in that. And you want a new deal? Well . . . most of us do. And most of us can have such—if we're willing to pay the price. But the trouble is—we don't want to pay. We want to have our good luck handed to us on a silver platter without the slightest inconvenience to ourselves.

Take yourself for instance. You're young, foot-free, professionally trained. But you're bored with the country. You hate its loneliness and monotony. And you don't like your profession. Too many restrictions. If only you could go to the city—if only you could know the wider life of business adventure—

Must Work Hard

Well, you can know it. But it can't all happen in a minute. You'll have to take a half a loaf before you can get a whole one. And that would mean going to the city, teaching by day, taking a business course by night—working mighty hard, taking some risks, enduring plenty of loneliness and discouragement. And so, because you can't have everything exactly as you want it, you won't even try to start. Instead, you have decided that you're hopelessly shackled, and you are weeping big salt tears of self-pity at the thought of staying in the country forever 'n' ever and "marrying a hayseed."

Stop it!

Nothing is shackling you but your own laziness and cowardice. You can have what you want out of life—If you'll go after it. But you'll have to play the game by the regular rules. Do you suppose "successful people" get that way without running risks, without doing jobs they don't like to do, without making compromises and enduring handicaps? Of course they don't! They all take their half loaves until they can get the whole. And most of them never do get the whole!

So if you want to land somewhere, get going, youngster. And don't quit just because you get a blister on your heel.

Household Hints

A few precautions will greatly facilitate the success of home cleaning. In order that spots may be sure to receive special attention, run a basting thread around them before dipping the garment in gasoline or naphtha.

Include in your housecleaning a little attention to the window cords. They should be dusted and then rubbed with a well-greased rag. This will make them pliable and less apt to break with the constant friction. It also makes for easier window raising and lowering.

To tighten a loose sewing-machine belt put a few drops of castor oil on it; run machine a few minutes and belt tightens. If necessary to shorten belt, punch a new hole with a hat pin or large needle heated red hot; it penetrates like magic.

It is well to keep the youngster's black board in the kitchen. Mother almost always spends the hour before dinner here and sonny could get most of his lessons done at this time with mother on hand to help with the more difficult work.

Easter Things Now Within Reach of Everyone, Fay King Advises

By FAY KING

Thimbles and needles are romping merrily over hems and seams and creations and alterations these days getting ready for the Easter Parade.

And it seems to me that no young heart need be sad or worry about looking pretty on that lovely day, for in this day and age the line and style and smart thing is as fetchingly duplicated in materials at a cost within everyone's reach.

And besides sewing is so simplified now that even the most unhandy can fashion a dainty dress, guided by a pattern.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Puzzled by Dicky's Attitude Toward Veritzen

There was such depression in Noel's voice and in the very movements of his figure as he walked away from me after his promise to go to his room and rest for a little, that my conscience began to trouble me stridently. Had I been wise in insisting that this youth, not yet fully convalescent, should come up to the dance I was giving for Mary? True, Katherine had said he was perfectly able to go through the evening, and that he needed the mental rousing the festivity would give him. But I had not counted upon the addition of the talkie star, Colin Cameron, to the affair, nor upon the mental strain to which Noel would be subjected by the suspicion—amounting almost to knowledge—that the young man had been brought there by Noel's father for the express purpose of captivating Mary.

I turned back to the dancing room with fierce anger in my heart directed against Philip Veritzen, Colin Cameron—and—yes—Mary, although justice compelled the reflection that I had as yet seen nothing to censure in Mary, save her perfectly natural enjoyment of the dances in which young Mr. Cameron was undeniably "featuring" her, and displaying the perfect accord with which she followed his most intricate steps.

Lillian made room beside her on the "chaperones' couch" and spoke out of the corner of her mouth.

"What's up with Noel?" she asked.

I cast a furtive look past her, and saw that Dicky and Philip Veritzen were standing almost within earshot. Harry Underwood was dancing with Helena Brixton and Charles Owen with Edith Fairfax.

Lillian's eyes followed mine.

"I don't know what Dicky's game is," she murmured, still in the almost inaudible tones she had learned, "but he's been buzzing old Phil as if he were his long-lost brother with the strawberry mark on the right shoulder ever since Charles Owen cut in on him with Ede. Incidentally, what a sweet pair those two, Ede and Owen do make. They look like a couple of cobras, and I'm certain I hear the rattles every time they pass me."

"Your vocabulary is better than your knowledge of natural history," I told her, laughing, in spite of my anxiety of her ludicrous vixenishness.

"I don't care," she retorted childishly, "they're snakes, both of 'em, and I don't care who hears me say it."

But she kept her voice to its monotone, nevertheless, and though I was wild with curiosity as to the nature of the earnest, apparently friendly colloquy going on between my husband and my employer, I did not voice my feelings, but instead answered her question concerning Noel.

"You were a wise lady," she commented. "That lad's near the breaking point. Now the next question is, how long it will be before Mary misses him. Just look at her! Did you ever see anybody having as good a time as she is having tonight? You certainly have accomplished your object in making her first party a brilliant success and something long to be remembered."

My eyes followed hers to where Mary, lovely and graceful as our conceptions of a woodland nymph, was being handed from one cavalier to another, as Colin Cameron, Jerry and one of the cadets "cut in" on each other repeatedly. I looked hurriedly at the other girls and saw that they were all dancing—Ronald with Marion, the other cadet with Carolyn, and the other two Yale boys with Carolyn's school friends.

"Oh, yes, every Jill has her Jack," Lillian commented dryly. "Carolyn's been dancing with that cadet practically all the evening, and the two boys from Yale seem perfectly content with the two guests from Whitney. Or rather they have been content since the first flurry of the evening, when Mary had all the boys flocking around her, as soon as they could get away from the other girls. Ronald was the only one who didn't join the crowd. He only danced with Mary once, and that was when some one cut in on him with Marion. And he has seen to it that Marion never once has been left without a partner."

"I don't imagine that could happen, anyway," I answered, suppressing a smile at the note of proud complacence in Lillian's voice, so different from the tone which before the dance she had used in saying it might do Marion good to see Ronald's allegiance shifted a bit. With true feminine inconsistency, she would have bitterly resented the slightest deviation upon Ronald's part from the devoted attention which he had been paying to Marion and to which Lillian had objected so strongly.

"Perhaps not," she admitted, "but Ronald—"

She broke off abruptly as Dicky and Philip Veritzen walked toward us.

"Now it can be told," she murmured with an impish grin.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Change Your Baby's Diet With Care

It is too bad that the weaning of a child is often made more difficult than is necessary. For the sake of the mother and child, it should be accomplished as gradually as possible.

Dr. Copeland

Under normal conditions, the weaning process should be begun at about the eighth or ninth month. It should be ended by the 12th month.

It is best to avoid weaning in hot weather. Should the baby be 9 months old in July or August, it is a good plan to give fruit juice, cereal gruel and a little modified cow's milk, in addition to the mother's milk. This plan will piece out the failing natural supply. If the weather continues hot, it is well to go on with the breast feeding until September or October.

Though sudden weaning is not advised in all cases, it is sometimes necessary. Should the mother have a chronic disease of some sort, or develop an acute disease of a serious nature, weaning must be resorted to immediately.

In cases of sudden weaning, the substituted food should be very weak in the beginning. As the infant becomes accustomed to cow's milk, the strength of the food may be increased. This increase should be gradual, because the sudden and radical changes in the baby's diet are undesirable. Your doctor will decide this question.

Cow's milk, modified in accordance with the formula prescribed by the doctor, is first given the baby only occasionally. The new feedings should replace not more than two or three daily nursings in the beginning.

Some physicians recommend giving the milk from a small cup. Of course, drinking from a cup does away with the tiresome work of sterilizing nipples and bottles. However, your own physician can be trusted to give you good advice in this matter.

If the milk agrees with the baby after one week's trial, the doctor will increase the strength of the formula. Such changes should be gradual until the maximum milk content is reached.

Preparing the feedings requires exact care. There must be nothing slipshod or careless in this matter.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Thanks for a Photograph

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How should I answer a letter to thank a cousin who sent me photographs of his two sisters? They are both to graduate as nurses very soon. I know only one of the girls. Should I congratulate them on their brother's letter? N.

Since they are all cousins of yours it would be the gracious and "cousin-ly" thing for you to write to each of them . . . the cousin who was so kind as to send you the photograph and to the girl-cousins to tell them how much you like having the photograph and to congratulate them on their forthcoming graduation as nurses. Tell your cousin how deeply you appreciated his sending you the photograph and then chat with him about things in general . . . there must be family news to be chatted about, and this and that about days that were and are and are to be. Write the girls separate letters, even though you don't know both of them.

Not an Insult.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

There has been a misunderstanding between my aunt and myself for the following reason:

At Christmas time the young man I go about with put a Christmas card into my aunt's mail box with a postage stamp on it. The reason he did this was because he was to visit at my aunt's home that day and as he forgot to mail the card, he did not believe there was any harm in placing it in the mail box as it had a stamp on it. Was this an insult. F. B.

I can't see that this is terrible bad form. To be sure, I see no reason why he should have put a stamp on the card, since he was going to deliver it, but it wasn't especially poor taste. The young man delivered a Christmas message to your aunt, delivered it himself . . . this was a gracious thing to do, and the fact that it didn't come through the mail makes no difference, as far as I can see. It most certainly was not an "insult."

White of egg forms an excellent astringent. Beat slightly and spread over the complexion. Lave away in 10 or 15 minutes with luke warm water. Wrap a piece of ice in gauze and give the countenance a speedy refrigeration. Thar will be bloom on them thar cheeks.

The graceless dancer is muscle-bound, and seems to have no more use for her backbone than she would have if she were ossified. She can limber her anatomy by skipping lightly on her toes, waving her arms in circles, swaying the body from side to side. Physical education is important. All exercises reflect a radiance upon the complexion and they are a help to the digestive organs.

For restful sleep, the mattress should be fairly firm and perfectly level, with no ridges or slumps. The pillow should be small. A large pillow puts bracelet lines around the neck, pulls tight the muscles of one side of the face, makes those of the other side sag and go limp. There should be a moving current of air in the bedroom.

It has been said by somebody who knows that the back of the neck of an Anglo-Saxon woman is the weakest part of her body. That's a crying shame since, with strong back muscles, a woman is not likely to have hip spread, nor will she develop a sagging tummer-tum, the worst of all figure horrors these days of graceful flowing robes and normal waist lines.

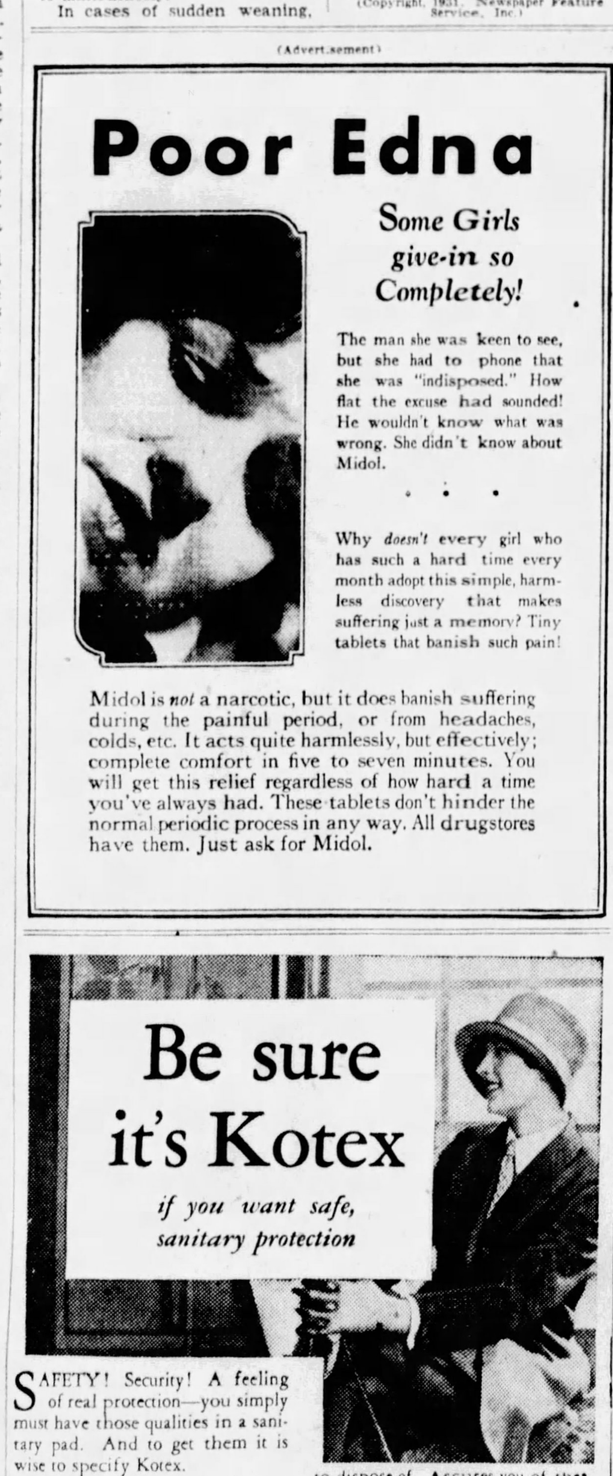
Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, April 4

A day of conflicting planetary configurations points to much commotion, perplexity and complications. New projects should flourish, high ambitions receive much stimulus and encouragement, personal affiliations bring much pleasure and advantage, and yet there is sign of friction, dispute, upheaval and sudden events. With good judgment, wise management and rigorous self-control over the tongue and temper, all may be turned to excellent advantage and profit.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of excellent opportunity and advantage, with much of importance to the ambitions and with new undertakings under promising sway. But all may be complicated or frustrated by an indulgence in rash, tempestuous or impetuous behavior. An important change seems imminent, but make contracts carefully and shun avenues of litigation. Private matters may assume engaging activities.

A child born on this day should be energetic, ambitious and talented, but may defeat its best interests by impulsive and tempestuous tendencies unless disciplined in youth.



Be sure it's Kotex

SAFETY! Security! A feeling of real protection—you simply must have those qualities in a sanitary pad. And to get them it is wise to specify Kotex.

Kotex, you know, is the sanitary pad that is shaped to fit. It absorbs laterally, which means that you get a larger area of protection than ordinary pads give you.

And you can wear Kotex on either side in perfect safety. It gives you the same degree of efficiency. Kotex stays soft. It is treated to deodorize. It is so easy to dispose of. Assures you of that daintiness particular women demand at all times.

MID-ATLANTIC TEST TO BE WATCHED

OFFICIALS OF OTHER minor baseball leagues throughout the country say they mean to watch the Middle Atlantic League with keen interest this year. President Elmer Daily's loop, in which 10 and possibly 11 of the 12 clubs will go in for night games, will try out the idea of having two teams play in two different towns in one day, meeting in an afternoon contest at the home of one of the clubs and jumping to the home of the other for a night game.

Elmer Daily

Other minor leagues, particularly those in which it is possible to make jumps for games in two towns on the same day, will keep close tabs on the experiment, with a view to taking up the system themselves if it proves a success in the Middle Atlantic. Another point of interest is that the plan will afford a chance to determine whether daylight or moonbeam ball is the more popular with the fans by comparing the two sets of attendance figures.

NIGHT BALL WILL be played in 16 leagues, including all three of the Class AA circuits—the International and Pacific Coast Leagues and the American Association. The others are the Middle Atlantic League, New York-Pennsylvania League, Piedmont League, Western League, Western Association, Southern Association, Three-I League, Texas League, Eastern League, Cotton States League, Mississippi Valley League, Arizona-Texas League and Nebraska State League.

The Pacific Coast and Piedmont leagues will play night games in all cities. The Middle Atlantic, as stated, will have night games in at least 10 towns and possibly in 11 out of 12. Three others which will be almost solid are the Western Association, Cotton States League and Mississippi Valley League.

INDIANAPOLIS IN THE American Association and Pueblo in the Western League will be the only cities playing nocturnal games in those organizations. The night towns in the International League will be Reading, Baltimore, Buffalo and Newark, and in the Southern Association Little Rock and Atlanta, with Nashville an added possibility.

The Texas League will play under artificial light in Shreveport, San Antonio, Dallas, Waco and Houston; the Eastern League in Allentown, Bridgeport, Albany, Norfolk and Richmond; the Three-I League in Quincy, Decatur, Bloomington, Peoria, Springfield and Danville; the New York-Pennsylvania League in York, Binghamton and possibly others and the Arizona-Texas and Nebraska State leagues in about half of their towns, according to present indications.

BIG LEAGUE BALL clubs should be above such catch-penny fakes as that staged in Chattanooga yesterday with the Yankees involved. As most fans suspected, the announcement that a girl pitcher, Jackie Mitchell, would face the Yankees was only a circus trick to bring out a crowd. After the crowd had paid its way in, it was informed that Miss Mitchell had a sore arm and couldn't pitch, but would go against Babe Ruth, at least, as advertised. Of course, Babe struck out. And, of course, so did Lou Gehrig. Both did it intentionally as part of the show. Then, after walking Lazzeri, Jackie left the box. Baseball should be big enough to stand on its own feet without such cheap faking to help the turnstiles.

Bill Regan

THE FACT THAT another native son in addition to Pitcher Steve Swetonic is to be a member of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club this year has prompted local fans to prepare a special welcome to the new Pirate. Bill Regan, extra infielder, an Oaklander born and bred, will be shown that his home town thinks a lot of him.

Regan's friends, and Pirate rooters in general, are arranging to hold a special day in his honor, with a big turnout and appropriate ceremonies at Forbes Field. The date selected for Regan Day is Saturday, May 9, and a committee is now at work on arrangements.

THE VISITING ATTRACTION at Forbes Field that day will be the St. Louis Cardinals, National League champions, and the game will be the last one at home for the Pirates prior to their first eastern trip of the year.

Though born and reared within the shadow of the Buccaneers' park, Regan has never been seen in organized ball here except in an exhibition game, his five previous seasons as a major leaguer having been spent in the American League.

A 24-HOUR RUNNING race to be staged at the Arena in Hamilton, Ont., today and tomorrow with some of the most famous international long-distance stars competing, will hold a special interest for Western Pennsylvanians, as one of the contestants will be Earl Lin Dilks, of New Castle. The rugged B. & O. fireman goes into the big test with a splendid record behind him. He claims the professional 100-mile championship of the United States, and in the first transcontinental race he covered almost 3,000 miles before his exhausted condition forced his withdrawal.

DILKS WILL HAVE plenty of tough opposition, as such noted distance men as Newton, Gavuzzi, McNamara and others are among the entrants. The meet is being staged for the benefit of the Canadian Legion, with Arthur F. H. Newton as guarantor. The latter will assume the loss if the show is a financial failure.

There is a prospect that the race will result in the breaking of a record that has stood for half a century. The world mark for 24 hours' running is 131 miles, established on March 13 and 14, 1881. At least two of the runners starting in the Hamilton event today are believed to have a chance to approximate 145 miles, if in top form.

KNUTE ROCKNE had a way of arousing his players by getting under their skins. Between halves of the Northwestern game in 1925, with Northwestern leading 10 to 0, he walked into the Notre Dame dressing room, took one disgusted look at the athletes sprawled on the floor, and snarled to Assistant Coach Hunk Anderson: "Fightin' Irish, eh! Well you can have my share of them." Then he walked out. That Notre Dame team went back into the game fighting mad, and in two successive drives down the field won the game, 13 to 10.

Stanley Poreda

Between halves of another game he approached a huge and highly rated Notre Dame tackle who had been consistently brushed aside by his opponent during the first half. "The whole trouble," Rockne told him confidentially, "is that that fellow don't know who you are. Go out there next half and show him your clippings and he'll leave you alone."

JOHNNY RISKO, gone back so far that he can't do much more than grunt when he gets in the ring, and who was defeated by Stanley Poreda the other night, pays the young Jersey Pole a tribute by saying he suggests Gene Tunney. "He reminds me strongly of Tunney," Risko said. "I was amazed to learn he had been boxing only two years and had taken part in only about 25 bouts." Many of the spectators thought Poreda's victory was due not so much to any remarkable work on his own part as to the fact that Risko had nothing left. Stanley ought to have a lot more confidence and show to better advantage next time out, now that he has got past his first opponent with a reputation. The youngster is a pupil of Joe Jeannette, veteran Negro heavyweight.

MEINE FACES SEALS TODAY

CAREER BEGAN ON PLAINS OF WEST POINT

SECOND INSTALLMENT

By WARREN BROWN
(Copyright, 1931, Chicago Herald and Examiner)

CHICAGO, April 3.—Reviewers of the career of Knute Rockne agree, for the most part, that his career really began on the afternoon when he caught all those passes flipped his way on the "plains" at West Point by Gus Dorais.

Knute Rockne

This was the introduction to the eastern football world of the forward pass that has been identified so closely ever since with Rockne and with Notre Dame.

Nothing like it had been seen in those parts before. And nothing like the 35-13 victory Rockne, Dorais, Eichenlaub and the others of that early edition of the Fighting Irish scored over Army in this, the first meeting of the two, had been anticipated or even suspected.

Actually, the impression that this was the start of the Rockne career was only partly correct. The site was right—it was on the "plains" of West Point that the Rockne career, as the whole athletic world has come to know it, began. But the time was a trifle premature. Four years so, in fact.

An the world probably never has known it until now.

Lest these statements appear contradictory, I hasten to explain.

In those days football teams, and especially those at Notre Dame, did not have the luxury of a coach for the ends, a coach for the tackles and guards, a coach for the centers, a coach for the backs, and a head coach.

They had, at Notre Dame, Harper—and Rockne.

With some of the members of the teams, players who were in action in the Harper-Rockne period, and who held over when Rockne was made head coach in 1918, I have discussed frequently the personality of the young Rockne, as coach.

"He was a busy fellow," all agreed.

And it was not without reason, for Rockne coached ends, tackles, guards and centers. He doubled as trainer, and probably had some other duties in his spare time. Even in those days, he was preparing against the time when he was to be called upon to be all things to all people everywhere. for no other description seems to fit a man who was at once a

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—His first nine-inning pitching stunt working out in a perfect manner, Manager Ens, of the Pirates, today had another sharpshooter set for the regulation distance.

Ervin Brame, big righthander, should not have been scored upon yesterday, as he traveled the full route against the San Francisco Missions, of the Pacific Coast League; Brame was in such control of the situation as to dispense entirely with free trips to first base, he allowed only eight hits and at the finish he appeared to be strong. It was the first time a Pittsburgh pitcher had toiled for nine frames, and the big leaguers had little or no trouble in winning. The score was 9 to 3.

MEINE SET TO WORK

Heinie Meine is all rested up for a similar trick today, except that Heinie will be flinging the ball against the Seals, instead of the Missions. The original schedule has been changed in this connection. The card called for a game with the Missions today and three with the Seals tomorrow and Sunday. The revision in the schedule brings the Buccos into action with the Missions tomorrow afternoon and Sunday morning, the Seals to be met on Sunday afternoon.

Stewie Clarke played against his former buddies in yesterday's clash. Stewie lost little time in winning the shortfield job in George Burns' outfit, and the whitehaired infielder played fine ball in the position. George Burns, by the way, is the same who starred for several American League clubs. He is the pro tem pilot of the Missions during the illness of Wade Killefer.

COLE CHECKED

A couple of misplays by the Pirates opened the way for the three tallies made by the Missions. Pete McClanahan tried for a fast play on a hit to right, and the ball rolled through him as two runners went around the sacks. Later a miscue by Gus Suhr opened the way for a run.

The Pittsburghers didn't have much trouble in solving Bert Cole, veteran southpaw, who once did his stuff for Detroit. Cole, how-

CUBS RELEASE JESS PETTY

LOS ANGELES, April 3.—(INS.)—Jess Petty, veteran southpaw, acquired last season from the Pirates of Pittsburgh, will be released outright today to the Los Angeles Angels, Manager Hornsby, of the Chicago Cubs, announced.

Petty's efforts with the Cubs were what might be termed indifferent last fall. He has been slow in rounding into form during spring training.

Neenie Campbell Ford City Coach

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa., April 3.—Neenie Campbell, Slippery Rock State Teachers' College basketball star, and coach at the local high school this year, signed a contract yesterday to become basketball coach and director of physical education at Ford City High School. In succeeding Coach Sheridan, he takes over the reins of a team that for five years has been in the W. P. I. A. L. playoffs.

Campbell is a brother of Bill Campbell, Homestead coach, and has made an enviable record at the State Teachers' College. He was recently voted the most valuable athlete here. His record with the high school was exceptional, winning seven out of eight football games, and nine out of 11 basketball contests.

BOXERS SUSPENDED

DETROIT, April 3.—(AP.)—Two welterweight boxers who were ordered from the ring at Olympia here two weeks ago because they would not fight, have been suspended indefinitely by the Michigan State Athletic Commission. The suspension order against Sam Bruce, of Buffalo, and Billy Light, of St. Paul, will not be recorded with the National Boxing Association, so the penalty will be in effect only in Michigan. Their purses go into the general fund.

BOYLE FUNERAL TOMORROW

John Boyle, 30, former minor league baseball star, died at his home, 3601 Frazier street, yesterday, after an illness of two years. He started on the Oakland sandlots, played at St. Bonaventure College and later competed for the Frederick club, of the Blue Ridge League. He also played at Chattanooga, Cumberland, Hagerstown and Hornell.

In recent years Boyle sponsored baseball and football teams in the Oakland district, and was well known in local sports circles. Funeral services will be held at his home tomorow.

Tri-State Tourney Finals Are Reached

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 3.—With semi-final round games in the senior and intermediate class slated for tonight, one part of the tri-state basketball tourney, in progress here, was almost completed yesterday when the final was reached in the junior class. Hugus, of Ellsworth, and Palace of Sweets, Waynesburg, battle today for the junior laurels.

Yesterday's scores: Shamrock 27, Canonsburg 15; Bentleyville 21, McConkeys 14; Hershey 22, Claysville 14; Wellsburg 21, Wherry 3; Hugus 13, McKeesport 12; Palace of Sweets 14, Wellsburg Midgets 11; Johnson Five 29, Homestead Buicks 19.

DEMPSEY SEEKS BOUT

NEW YORK, April 3.—(INS.)—Jack Dempsey was in New York today in the role of promoter. He is seeking two outstanding heavyweights to battle in the Los Angeles baseball park next month. Dempsey said he would not reveal his plans for the bout until they shaped up more definitely.

PHILLY SERIES OPENS TODAY

PHILADELPHIA, April 3.—(AP.)—Chilly blasts greeted the Philadelphia Athletics as they arrived home from the Southland today to open their annual spring series with the Phillies at Shibe Park.

The Phillies arrived yesterday in time to take a brief workout.

Four stars of the rival clubs will not be in the city series opener. Chuck Klein, slugging Phillies outfielder, and Phil Collins, their star pitcher, are holdouts, while George Earnshaw, Athletics pitcher, and Al Simmons, hard-hitting outfielder of the A's, plan to remain in Hot Springs, Ark., until next week.

Celtics, Pierpoints Clash Tomorrow

The second semi-final round game of the Nied Cup series will be played at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Westinghouse High School Stadium. The Pittsburgh Celtics and the Pierpoint Motors will be the contestants.

On Sunday the Cody A. C., of Paterson, N. J., will meet Gallatin on the latter's grounds. This is a return game, Paterson having defeated the locals at Paterson three weeks ago by a 1-0 score.

Two games will be played in the Keystone League. Morgan travels to Castle Shannon, and Cecil goes to Dunlevy.

AL SINGER SOLD

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

BILOXI, Miss., April 3.—Our club played the House of David team yesterday, and I haven't seen so many whiskers since Aunt Minnie's overstuffed sofa ripped up the middle. The pitcher looked like the left-hand Smith Brother on the cough drops, and the others could spot Rip Van Winkle a yard of foliage and still have enough beard left to braid.

Nick Altrock

At that, they could play ball. You would think it was quite a handicap to run bases with the wind blowing against those Van Dykes, but those boys used the hook slide going into second and always claimed their whiskers were touching the base even if their legs were out in centerfield.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.
GAME TONIGHT.

By CARL W. SHATTO

When the gong sounds at the end of the third period of the Pittsburgh-Windsor game at Duquesne Garden tomorrow night it not only will mark the conclusion of the Jackets-Bulldogs battle, but also the finish of the International Hockey League season here.

The Bulldogs, met at Windsor last night in the locals' fifth game of the circuit's annual title series, are the only foemen remaining on the Schooley skaters' slate, and on Sunday the majority of the local ice representatives will start the jaunt back to their homes in Canada.

Although the Jackets' showing in the playoffs has been something of a disappointment, their fighting style of play has held the interest of their followers to the very end, and another capacity crowd is expected to witness the yellow-shirts in their farewell appearance.

JACKETS WALLOPED, 8-2

WINDSOR, April 3.—The Windsor Bulldogs smothered the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets, 8 to 2, here last night to draw a step nearer the International Hockey League championship.

Only spectacular net-minding by Albie Cox kept the visitors within striking distance of the Bulldogs. Cox kicked out 21 direct shots as Windsor set up a furious pace. Haynes poked home a rebound off Arbour's shot for the first Windsor goal.

Duguid made it 2-0 with a fast backhand shot from right wing. While Arbour was serving a five-minute penalty for tripping Reise, Gregg and McGuire scored for the Jackets. Just before the close Windsor went out in front again, Arbour scoring on Haynes' pass.

Haynes and Duguid combined to notch the fourth Windsor tally. The latter scored again midway through the stanza.

Robinson and Haynes combined to notch the first marker of the third period. They came to bat a minute later to put the Windsor sextet five goals to the good.

Near the midway mark Bellemer shot a pass to Phillips, who was parked in front of the goal mouth to beat Cox. The lineup:

Pittsburgh—2.		Windsor—8.
Cox	G	Smith
R. Smith	R. D.	Arbour
Reise	L. D.	Bellemer
McGuire	C.	Haynes
White	L. W.	Duguid
Proudlock	R. W.	Robinson

Referees—M. J. Rodden, Tom Hughitt.
First period—Scoring: Windsor, Haynes (from Arbour and Robinson), 3:50; Windsor, Duguid, 12:40; Pittsburgh, Gregg (from Reise), 15:00; Pittsburgh, McGuire, 16:10; Windsor, Arbour (from Haynes), 18:30. Penalties—Proudlock, Duguid, Halliday, Arbour (major), White, Gregg.
Second period—Scoring: Windsor, Duguid (from Haynes), 1:40; Windsor, Duguid (from Robinson), 11:35. Penalties—Lever, Fields, Arbour, Berlett, Duncan.
Third period—Scoring: Windsor, Robinson (from Haynes), 1:05; Windsor, Robinson (from Haynes), 3:10; Windsor, Phillips (from Bellemer), 9:40. Penalty—White.

HAWKS MEET CANADIENS

CHICAGO, April 3.—(INS.)—A hockey "world series" comes to Chicago for the first time tonight, when the Chicago Blackhawks, bidding for the Stanley Cup, meet Montreal's Les Canadiens, defending champions.

The world title goes to the team winning three out of five contests. Two of these games, tonight's opener and Sunday night's game, will be played at the Chicago Stadium.

INDIANS, BISONS TIE

FORT ERIE, Ont., April 3.—(AP.)—Cleveland and Buffalo played to a 1-1 tie here last night in their International Hockey League playoff game. Both goals were scored in the second period.

BE EXAMINED NOW

I HAVE HELPED OTHERS. WHY NOT YOU?
IF YOU ARE AILING DON'T GIVE UP.

If you are ailing, whether it is your Stomach—Heart—Liver, or some disorder you do not understand, you should have a thorough examination to find out the cause of your trouble. Most troubles can be benefited—even many cases now incurable might have been benefited if properly treated in time—not neglected because thought lightly of when first noticed. So if you are not sure of your health DON'T DELAY, BUT HAVE AN EXAMINATION MADE TODAY.

IF YOU WANT TO BE ACTIVE—STRONG—ENERGETIC—SUCCESSFUL—HAPPY

Then take care of your health. Health is not a matter of luck—but a matter of care. It makes you fit for the emergency—the world gives its prizes to the physically fit. If you are ailing you should realize the high cost of being careless about your health. The right doctor will help and guide you and put back in your body the vital elements the poisons of your system have been trying to destroy.

Rockne's Life Story : : : A Master Grid Psychologist

coach, a man of family, a writer, radio broadcaster, public speaker, broker, automobile sales stimulator, motion picture producer, director and actor, and—but this I trust, will make the point.

Rockne, then, was a busy fellow.

Harper, the head coach, was an easy-going sort. He still is. It is difficult to conceive Harper's exhorting his football squad to the superhuman efforts that coaches are supposed to get out of their men. That wasn't Harper's method.

Rockne, an end, was one good enough to attract the eye of Walter Camp, who was then abroad in the land, the sole holder of rights to dare pick that mythical "All-American."

But Rockne had to look after the guards, and the tackles, and the centers as well.

LIKED GUARDS

He has always had a kindly feeling for guards.

"I like 'em dumb and strong. If they're just dumb, I make guards out of them."

Rockne, since there is no evidence to the contrary, is assumed to have gone about his manifold duties in more or less uneventful fashion, until the season of 1917, which happened to be his last as assistant coach.

In that, the war year, Jimmy Phelan, now coach at the University of Washington, was captain up until the time he left to join the forces of the United States.

It happened that the regular squad that year contained a player whose like, as far as history goes, has not since been a member of Notre Dame teams. And lest a wrong impression gets abroad from this vague description, the player was not George Gipp, though his like, too, has not since been seen on any Notre Dame team.

This player thought very well of himself, and the opinion was not concurred in by the rest of the squad. Quite the reverse, in fact.

Harper decided that he would name the player captain for a game in advance of Army, and did. Notre Dame won by a lopsided score.

The Notre Dame team advanced towards the "plains" of West Point, and Harper chose Dave Philbin as captain.

Philbin, somewhat older than many of the boys on the squad, wasn't particular about the honor, but took it in stride.

After the usual Harper harangue, if any, the team dashed out toward the field—all but the ex-captain, who took his own time in reaching the scene of action.

ROCKNE'S START

It became necessary to put a sub in the ex-captain's place, while the team went through its preliminary manouvers.

Finally the player reached the field, and began to exercise half-heartedly.

Rockne saw him arrive, and charged out on the field.

"What's the matter with you?" he demanded.

"Oh, nothing," pouted the ex-captain.

"What's wrong?" Rockne insisted. "You sore about something?"

"Yes, I am," said the player. "I ought to be captain."

"You ought to be captain," stormed Rockne. "You ought to be given a good beating. If it wasn't for the scene we'd make, I'd start right in now. If you'll come over in back of those stands, I'll start anyhow. Get off the field!"

And the ex-captain stood not on the order of his going, but went at once, taking a seat at the end of the players' bench.

Before long the great Oliphant, the Army captain, came over to the Notre Dame bench, and asked who was Notre Dame's captain.

Harper indicated Philbin, and the latter, not caring to have any further scene, protested.

"That fellow down at the other end of the bench," he indicated.

The ex-captain jumped up, at once, and accepted the nomination.

"If it were my team, Jess," said Rockne to Harper, "I'd not let him play. No, I'd make him walk all the way back to South Bend."

If Harper made any comment, it has never been recorded.

The ex-captain, reinstated, went out to play.

The game, as Army-Notre Dame games have the habit of being, was furious.

The bruising crash of player against player went on. The player against whom the wrath of Rockne had been directed—in all probability for the first and last time in the Rockne career—was in the midst of the attack. Battered and bruised and bleeding—it was that kind of a game, he kept in the fight.

RIGHT ON THE JOB

First aid was finally needed for him.

And who was it that patched up his wounds, consoled him, if that was what he needed?

Yes, Rockne.

I don't know what the name of it was back in 1917. They call it psychology, now.

Whatever it was, it was practiced by the master, as football psychologists go.

And that, I take it, is something in the way of evidence that the career of Knute Rockne began on the "plains" at West Point, all right, but began in 1917, not in 1913.

On that day, the Rockne, who changed greatly with the years, in some respects, was having entirely too much fun, catching those passes Dorais flipped him, to be bothered about starting a career. Finishing Army was the job in hand.

HAD PLAYER CONTACT

Even in his early stages, as an assistant coach, the contact between Rockne and the members of the Notre Dame squads was of the closest.

Some of those old boys, of the Harper-Rockne era, have told me that when troubles developed, as troubles will, in any group of youngsters, and especially football squads, the boys went invariably to Rockne, rather than to Harper.

Rockne, then, was the contact man. And to the last, he enacted that role.

Only last fall, when Joe Savoldi, probably the greatest offensive back of the year, found his troubles insurmountable, and resigned from the university, this trait in Rockne predominated.

"If Joe had only taken me into his confidence," he said. "If he had only come to me for advice, maybe this whole matter could have been straightened out."

Not once did Rockne ever complain of the loss of Savoldi, the football player.

His advice was for the fullback to remain out of professional football, and make a try, later on, to return to Notre Dame and graduate. The football talent of Savoldi, admittedly great, did not enter into Rockne's calculations.

Well as I knew Rockne, I never could get up the courage to ask him what he thought of Savoldi's entry into professional wrestling.

His outlook on professional football was his own. He did not like it. And that he must have advised his players, upon their graduation, against it, is obvious from the very small number of Notre Dame men who took up the game.

I asked him once why he disliked professional football.

"There's no element of surprise in it," he said. "You always know what everyone's going to do."

Rockne himself had tried professional football, and concerning his adventures in it, he relates one of the best of his almost inexhaustible fund of stories.

"Thorpe took the ball," said Rockne, "and started to come around my end. I was full of the old college spirit and I dived at him, and piled him up. I felt pretty good about it, too.

"As we were picking ourselves up, I heard Thorpe speaking:

"'See all those people in the stands, Rockne,' he said. 'They all come out to see Old Jim run. You're going to be a good fellow and let him run, aren't you?'

"The next play, Thorpe took the ball again, and once more he started around my end, and I was all set for him . . .

"When I picked myself up, several seconds later, and looked around, they were chasing Thorpe out of bounds, away down near our goal line.

"I got back to the lineup, as rapidly as I could, but before the ball was put in play, Thorpe came over to me, and spoke again:

"'I knew you were going to be a good fellow, Rockne,' he said. 'I knew you were going to let Old Jim run!'"

As he said, there was, even as a player, no element of surprise in professional football for Rockne. He knew just what Old Jim was going to do.

Nine out of Ten Thought They Could. But—the Actual Results Proved that Nine out of Ten Could Not—Tell the Originals from the Reproductions

The Contest Ballots from the Regal National Compare Contest have been tabulated and checked, and the winners in all cities (except the Pacific Coast) have been notified.

The widespread National interest and enthusiasm was a surprise even to us. The windows were blocked from early in the morning until late at night. Thousands of men studied the most minute details of every shoe. One expert shoe man used a magnifying glass to count the stitches and perforations.

Now our only object in inviting the whole wide world to compare these shoes was to absolutely convince everyone that it was practically impossible for anyone to tell the difference. We believe that every man who accepted our invitation is now fully satisfied that Regal Shoes are faithful reproductions of the most expensive models produced by the best custom bootmakers in the world.

We put in the windows of one hundred Regal Stores eight of the most Expensive and Exclusive Styles for Spring, designed by the best bootmakers in Europe and America.

And right beside the Expensive Hand-Made Original Models, we placed the Regal $6.60 Reproductions of the same Styles, made in the Regal factory.

All identification marks were removed and we invited everyone to try and pick the Originals from the Reproductions, and the actual tabulated results from ninety stores proved that nine out of ten men couldn't tell the difference.

It was the boldest, most daring idea to demonstrate and dramatize a Merchandising Policy ever tried in this country. We made an open challenge to every man who wears shoes, in every city where we have a store, and the final results of the contest proved conclusively that nine out of ten men who tried couldn't tell the Expensive Hand-Made Originals from the Regal Reproductions.

AMATEUR MAY GET PRO JOB AT SCHENLEY

Lower Merion Works Out Here For Tomorrow's Battle With Scott

OHIO POSITION ACCEPTED BY ONORETTA

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

It has been learned from a reliable source that the selection of a professional to succeed Al McBride at the Schenley Park municipal links has narrowed down to three outstanding candidates, two amateurs, Walter Phillips and Bob Graham, and one professional, Andy Petrolia, caddiemaster at the local free links for the last 13 years. Furthermore, it is anticipated that Director of Works Edward G. Lang will name his man and announce his appointment within the next few days, inasmuch as the Schenley layout may be opened for play April 15. If an amateur is appointed it will set a precedent here.

Al McBride definitely was ushered into the South County Park berth yesterday when his appointment was approved. Director of Parks Paul B. Riis yesterday appeared before the County Salary Board, made up of the County Commissioners and the County Controller, and obtained permission to employ a golf professional at the two parks at $1,800 a year each, and a caddiemaster at South Park, for eight months' service, at $125 a month.

JOB FOR ONORETTA

Commissioner C. C. McGovern, questioning the necessity for the employes, said:

"When will those golf courses be ready for use? You have been dragging the work along for years and it is not yet completed. Wildwood started building a course after you did, and they are playing there now."

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, in supporting Riis, and in moving to engage the requested employes, said:

"We shouldn't blame the director for the weather that delayed the work."

Riis said that both county links would be ready for play in about six weeks. Permits are ready and will be issued in the near future, a number of applications already having been received by John Jay Burke, city office manager for the county parks. Likewise a number of requests for lockers have been received—and these will be issued in the near future. Locker space, under temporary conditions, will be scarce this year.

RIIS SUPPORTED

The fees are $10 for playing permits, permits entitling the holder to play at either park, and $5 for junior permits, for children under 18 years of age. The lockers are to be issued at $10 per season. Fees for transients, or those who do not hold tax receipts and cannot obtain permits, will be $1 per day at either park. Golfers applying for permits or locker space should immediately see John Jay Burke, the city office manager.

The noted long-distance driver, Charles (Chuck) Onoretta, for the past few years assistant to McBride at Schenley Park, has been signed at the Possum Run Country Club, in Mansfield, O. The Possum Run club is an 18-hole semi-public layout, and has a fine reputation in the Buckeye state. Onoretta, likewise, will make the club a fine professional, being a splendid teacher as well as a fine player.

TOWNS GETS JOB

Chuck's brother, Fred, again has been signed as pro at the Bob-O-Link layout. Tom Burrows' hangout in Aspinwall. Tom anticipates a bigger and better season with his driving range, pitch and putt course, et al.

Frank Walker, St. Clair's star, has signed Eddie Towns, erstwhile Ambridge professional, for the Walker Golf Shop, in the shop floor of the William Penn. Walker has installed four nets there, has a pitch-and-chip golf course, and an up-to-the-minute establishment. He is contemplating the organization of an indoor golf club, something new in the way of golf for the tired business man. His motto is "The Path to Par Golf."

'DON'T LOSE,' SLOGAN OF ROCKNE

By JESS CARVER

"Be a good loser. Don't squawk. But DON'T lose!"

They are going to bury the great Rock tomorrow afternoon. The tears of the nation, tears that have streamed unashamed from the eyes of coaches and players since the news of Rock's tragic death stunned the world Tuesday, will pour upon his grave. The tears of memory will keep it ever green.

Sleepy Crowley

The foregoing shot was one of Rock's best. He hated to lose, not because it meant the losing of a mere ball game, but because it meant the missing of an objective.

"Don't squawk," he said. He meant it. "If you have to lose, lose like a sport, but NEVER quit fighting."

They'll tell stories of the great Rock now without end. Be with Rockne for five minutes and you had material for columns. He could be stabbingly direct with his sharp criticism of his players in practice.

"What's the matter, Harry?" he shouted at a player in a practice session once before an Army game. "Shake it up. Do you think the Army is going to give you time to tie your shoe laces?"

After losing a game to Iowa, Rockne told his team to go back to South Bend and keep quiet.

"You played a great team today, boys," he said, "but mental poise licked you."

"Mental poise beat us," Sleepy laconically answered.

"That guy never was any good," the rooter wailed.

ever, was a tough hombre until the seventh, when the Pirates rushed across four markers. Augie Walsh finished on the mound for the Missions.

Paul Waner was out of action again. Paul's leg is showing satisfactory improvement, but the rightfielder was ill yesterday and Ens decided to keep him quiet.

The contest brought the first real action for Oakland Bill Regan, who has been nursing a lame ankle for more than a month. Bill replaced George Grantham late in the game. His appearance indicated he would be close to top form by opening day.

MONARCHS QUIT LOOP

Kansas City, April 3.—(AP.)—The Kansas City Monarchs, the only surviving member of the original Negro National League, organized 31 years ago, is cutting adrift from organized baseball, J. L. Wilkinson, owner, announced last night he had surrendered his franchise and would hit the barnatorming trail with the opening of the season.

INTEREST HIGH FOR STATE FINALE

Interest in the state basketball finale, between Lower Merion, representing the eastern sector of the battlefront, and Scott, of North Braddock, W. P. I. A. L. and western district champion, booked for the Pitt Stadium tomorrow night, was enhanced today by the appearance here of the Lower Merion squad.

The P. I. A. A. classic took a licking this week when the tragic death of Knute Rockne shoved all happenings into the background. Rock's death so stunned the nation that other sports were forgotten. Tomorrow, the high schoolers will carry on, battling for the state gonfalon, which was won last year by Sharon High.

The Lower Merion clan is housed in the P. A. A., and this afternoon will work out in the Stadium Pavilion. Coach Anderson fetched along a right sizeable squad, both in point of numbers and physical setup. There are a dozen ballplayers included, most of 'em tall, rangy chaps.

Late Monday, and early tomorrow, the Lower Merion rooters will begin their invasion of the city. A crowd of 4,000 or better is expected for tomorrow's game, the majority, of course, being set to cheer on the colors of Scott.

Lower Merion gained the final round of last year's tussling, losing to Sharon in the grand finale. Two members of last year's starting team are still in action and will be here tomorrow.

CINCINNATI.—(AP.)—Harry Heilmann, the Cincinnati Red's slugging outfielder, who for two months was unable to move his right arm which was attacked by arthritis, has improved to such an extent that he has left a hospital here where he had been a patient.

WOODLAND, Col.—(AP.)—Phillip Page, left-handed pitcher rookie on trial with the Detroit Tigers this spring, has been signed by the Seattle Indians. The youngster twirled for Toronto of the International League and came to the Tigers on option. The coast league outfit got Marvin Owen, infielder.

PHILADELPHIA.—(AP.)—The fast quintet of Cleveland won the basketball championship of the Pennsylvania Railroad System last night by defeating the Philadelphia Terminal Division team, 31 to 24.

WINNIPEG, Man.—(AP.)—The Winnipeg Hockey Club won the Allan Cup, emblem of the amateur hockey championship of Canada, last night, by defeating the Hamilton, (Ont.), Tigers, 3 to 1.

LOUISVILLE.—(AP.)—Hal Rhyne, Boston Red Sox infielder, was injured yesterday when stick by a batted ball in practice and was removed to a hospital with a probable fractured skull. He was still semi-conscious last night. The Sox infielders were tossing balls and Ed Walsh, jr., Louisville pitcher, was batting fungo flies to the outfield. Rhyne was walking from short toward second base when a hard low fly hit by Walsh struck him in the right temple. An X-ray examination will be made today.

JUDGES FOR LOCAL DOG SHOW SELECTED

HUNT CLUBS' FOX HOUNDS ENTERED

Nationally and internationally known dogshow judges who will officiate at the bench show of the Fort Pitt Kennel Club, to be held April 17 and 18, in Motor Square Garden, were announced at a meeting of Western Pennsylvania dog breeders last night in the Hotel Henry. They are Joseph G. Darby, of Pittsburgh; Walter Reeves, of Belleville, Ontario, Canada; Thomas D. Buck, of Rochester, N. Y.; Louis Walther, of Plainfield, N. J., and O. Jenkins, of New Philadelphia, O. Reeves will pick the best dog of the show.

Robert F. Maloney, president of the Fort Pitt Kennel Club, has received assurance that the famous hunting packs of fox hounds of the Westmoreland Hunt and the Sewickley Hunt, will be shown at the show, and negotiations are under way to have R. K. Mellon also exhibit the pack of the Rolling Rock Club, near Ligonier.

Entries will be received until April 9 at the kennel club headquarters, 302 Maloney Building, or at Honus Wagner's, 813 Liberty avenue.

JONES ARRIVES FOR BATTLE

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

A former local Negro lad, who had to go away from home to make his mark in the ring, returns to flash his wares against a world champion in the main bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. It will be his first showing in Pittsburgh, although he has boxed at McKeesport and New Castle.

The young man who is to make such an auspicious debut before the fans of his home town is Billy Jones, light-heavyweight, and he will be in with Maxie Rosenbloom, New York playboy of the sport, who never has lost a bout in these parts and is a favorite with the local fans. Rosey, or Slapsie Maxie, as he is known because of his clowning tactics both in and out of the ring, became the recognized successor to the 175-pound laurels vacated by the resignation of Tommy Loughran to invade the ranks of the full-fledged heavies by beating Jimmy Slattery.

MAKES GOOD IN EAST

Jones has made good in a big way fighting out of Philadelphia. In a few less than 50 bouts, he has beaten Jimmy Braddock, Murray Gitlitz, Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion; Charley Belanger, Fred Lenhart, Joe Sekyra and others. Jones arrived in town this morning. Rosenbloom is due Sunday morning.

Matchmaker Jules Beck, of the Garden, has completed his preliminary card for Monday night's show by signing Chet Smallwood, southpaw, of Akron, to box Len Porter, Negro, of California, a stablemate of Frankie Goosby, who registered a hit against Cleveland Jimmy Taylor at the Garden last Monday night. Joey Spiegel boxes Paul Oger in the second bout, and Freddie Haverlick, of New York, meets Joey Boler, of Erie, in the six-round opener.

Between Rounds

Ben Jeby, who recently defeated Len Harvey in Madison Square Garden, New York, boxes Laddie Lee, of Boston, in the St. Nicholas Arena, New York, Friday night, of next week. Harry Smith and Fred Lenhart are in the 10-round semi-final.

Young Tuffy Griffiths and Georgie Ingram will box for the welterweight championship of Columbus in the semi-final to the Bushy Graham-Johnny Farr bout at the Columbus (O.) Coliseum Monday night, when Jack Dempsey will appear in the role of referee of the main bout. Freddie Hill meets Cowboy Martin and Ray Lauder engages Chris Kohr in two other preliminaries.

Two teams of local amateur boxers will pull out Sunday night for engagements in Boston and New York. The Boston event is the National A. A. U. junior championship tournament and the New York competition an interclty show on Monday night. Bob Rupple, Carl Padvorac, Chuck Mullins and George Julius will compete in New York, while the teams for the junior championships includes Paul Monar, Sammy Julian, Fritz Zivic, Don Asto, Charley Crovatta, John Hazuda, Nick Maloy and Leonard Hawkins.

Looks as if Cleveland can't very well escape being the scene of the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling fight, in its new stadium. The bout has been traveling around the country looking for a place to land, and it is Cleveland's own tough luck that its stadium will be ready to receive it. With the battle in Cleveland many Pittsburghers will witness their first heavyweight championship fight, for the tentative date is Friday, July 3, with the following day available in the event of rain, and automobile and train excursions will head there in great profusion from these parts.

Jimmy Reilly, of McKeesport, boxes an opponent to be selected at Frederick, Md., April 16.

Phil Raymond, of Baltimore, who holds a decision over Young Firpo, conqueror of Benny Bass, wants to box any of the 135-140-pounders here. He is a stablemate of Sylvan Bass, who is ready to return to Pittsburgh for a return bout with Jimmy Belmont.

Paulie Walker, New York welterweight, boxes Battling Dozier, Wichita Negro, at San Francisco, April 17.

Young Jack Thompson will arrive in Cleveland next Monday for his return bout for the welterweight title with Tommy Freeman there eight days later. Freeman is training in Hot Springs, Ark., and will not arrive on the scene of the fight until three or four days after Thompson.

NO. 3—HOW TO THROW A SLOW BALL

By George Earnshaw

WORLD CHAMPION PITCHER.

There's just one thing I'm trying to show this little fellow about pitching. And that is to deliver all of his pitches with the same motion. That, to my mind, is the most important pitching stunt, next to control.

Notice how he's holding the ball. Up to the very moment he lets it go, he can make his pitch a curve, a fast one, or a change of pace, and the batter won't have any idea which is coming. If he lets the ball go off the tip of his fingers, with a tight grip, it will be a fast ball. If he loosens his grip at the time the ball is let go and pushes rather than hurls the ball, it becomes a change of pace. And, if he twists his wrist at the time of delivery, letting the ball go off the side of his fingers instead of the ends, it becomes a curve ball.

I had pretty fair luck in the last world series—and the whole secret was control and ability to cover up each pitch. There's another important thing about pitching, too, and that is learning to ease up when you get a chance and thereby keep something in reserve for the time when you're in trouble. I can't give any rule for that, however. A fellow just has to learn from practice and baseball experience.

I used to marvel at Urban Shocker and Jack Quinn. These two fellows, more than any pitchers I ever saw, had the secret to taking it easy when they had a chance. Neither of them had a lot on the ball. But they were wise old owls out there on the mound. They had control and they knew all the time just what they were trying to do.

If I had to give a young pitcher the most important pitching advice in two words, it would be "get control." The best curve ball in the world isn't worth a nickel if you can't put it where you want to. And, on the other hand, if you have perfect control, you don't need to have a lot of stuff on the ball.

A change of pace, good control and a curve ball that will do as a threat now and then are about all any pitcher needs—and of these, control is the most important.

SUNDAY: HOW TO COVER FIRST BASE—BY JIMMY FOXX.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Some 20 years ago, out in the Strip district, the Goodwill Industries, a philanthropic organization, was founded in an old church edifice and one William F. (Billy) Crick, the recognized leader of the boys of the neighborhood, was placed in charge of the athletic activities of the youngsters in a gymnasium in the basement . . . Today, the quarters occupy all of the space from 2801 to 2817 Liberty avenue, and Billy Crick still is on the job, now as the full-time physical director of the place . . . For 12 years, Billy was a volunteer in the work and then he became a part-time physical director until this year, when he was put in full-time charge of the gymnastics of the youths of the district . . . Now the enlarged gymnasium is packed daily, and a son, Billy Crick, Jr., plays on one of the teams and assists his father as referee of games among the smaller boys . . . The Rev. A. G. Curry, director of the Goodwill Industries, a former college basketball star, coaches two senior teams while some 20 others work under the direction of the elder Crick, who is an idol with the kids . . . Next Wednesday, the Goodwill first team, which won 45 and lost only 12 games during the season now drawing to a close, will go to Cleveland in two automobiles to play the Cleveland Y. M. C. A. five, and interest in the trip is at fever heat in the community center, where Billy Crick, the one-time boy leader, is the only athletic director they've ever known through a score of years . . . Truly, great oaks from little acorns grow.

Billy Crick

Apples Meyers, local boxing promoter, who is vacationing in Chicago pending his next show in the Moose Temple, Friday night of next week, when he will have Eddie Brannon and Ray Kiser in the main bout, writes that he ran into a young boxer out there whom he took to be Tony Herrera, the Mexican favorite of the Pittsburgh fans, and thought he was being high-hatted when the young fellow didn't respond to his greeting, only to learn that the mittman is a younger brother of Tony and a dead ringer for the latter. . . . . The younger Herrera has had only four professional fights, but looks like a good prospect. . . . . Others who impressed Apples in the gym were Battling Bozo, the light-heavyweight, and Harry Dublinsky, the lightweight.

Apples attended the Tommy Loughran-Tuffy Griffiths fight in the Chicago Stadium and was surprised by the ease with which Loughran toyed with the rugged Tuffy and won handily by the simple expedient of keeping an annoying light left jab in Griffiths' face throughout. . . . . And Tuffy only recently received a guarantee of $25,000 to box King Levinsky in the same ring and won hands down. . . . . Near the end of each round Tommy would maneuver Tuffy over to the Loughran corner, and, when the bell rang, Tommy would sit down and force Tuffy to walk across the ring to his own corner. . . . . At the end of the ninth round, according to Apples, Loughran himself had to smile at the innocent manner in which Tuffy kept falling for the gag.

James (Red) Mason, dean of local boxing managers, who has been making Chicago his headquarters for months, now is sojourning in Hot Springs, Ark., and writes that he met Max Schmeling, the heavyweight champion, and his manager, Joe Jacobs, there recently, and, after looking over the German, likes him to beat Young Stribling when they meet with the title at stake a few months hence. . . . Mason also ran into George Earnshaw, the Athletics' pitcher, and Al Simmons, the outfield star of the world champions, at the spa, and saw Simmons make 12 hits, including five homers, in three games, and says he believes Al is the best player in either major league at present, an opinion shared by many others.—HARRY KECK.

Yes...We Are a Big Institution...But

May-Stern & Co. Way Back in 1906 . . . And NOW

The small six-story building which we occupied 25 years ago is illustrated in contrast with the present greatly enlarged modern building we now occupy.

You can walk into May-Stern's today and feel at home just like you did back in 1906—we still have the same personal interest in you and your problems that we had when we occupied our first little store 25 years ago.

We hope to grow in the future. But we never expect to be too big to lose the precious friendships, the personal acquaintance with our customers which have made May-Stern's more than "just another furniture store."

There is a spirit alive in this big institution which you can sense the moment you enter the door—a spirit of willingness to serve, an unselfish interest in your problems and in your welfare.

Yes, we are a big institution—with a heart and with a soul.

When You CAN'T QUIT

A headache is often the sign of fatigue. When temples throb it's time to rest. If you can't stop work, you can stop the pain. Bayer Aspirin will do it, every time. Take two or three tablets, a swallow of water, and carry-on—in comfort.

Don't work with nerves on edge or try all day to forget a nagging pain that aspirin could end in a jiffy! Genuine aspirin can't harm you; just be sure it's Bayer.

In every package of Bayer Aspirin are proven directions for headaches, colds, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis, etc. Carry these tablets with you, and be prepared. To block a sudden cold on the street-car; quiet a grumbling tooth at the office; relieve a headache in the theatre; spare you a sleepless night when nerves are "jumping."

And no modern girl needs "time out" for the time of month! Bayer Aspirin is an absolute antidote for periodic pain.

Take Bayer Aspirin for any ache or pain, and take enough to end it. It can't depress the heart. That is medical opinion. That is why it is only sensible to insist on the genuine tablets that bear the Bayer cross. The pocket tin is a convenient size. The bottle of 100 tablets is most economical to buy.

HARRIS TO FACE TRIAL MAY 18

DETROIT, April 3.—(AP.)—A charge of assault and battery brought against Harry Harris, son-in-law of Howard Thurston, magician, by his wife will be prosecuted here as soon as the theatrical season ends, Mrs. Harris' attorney informed Judge Thomas M. Cotter in Recorder's Court.

Neither principal was present when the case was called, but each was represented by an attorney. Mrs. Harris, who on the stage retains the name of Jane Thurston, will complete the season with her father May 9, the court was informed, and the case was set for trial May 18.

Harris, accused of attacking his wife in a hotel suite here, was repelled by tear gas from Thurston's special fountain pen, according to the magician. Harris, son of the late Senator John P. Harris, was said to be in Pittsburgh, still under the care of a physician.

ARRANGE HONOR FOR EGAN

Mark W. Egan, convention manager of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce who has accepted a Chicago post, will be honored by associates tonight at a dinner in the William Penn Hotel.

At the same time, Paul R. Byrnes, of Atlantic City, will be introduced as Mr. Egan's successor. The appointment of Byrnes was announced today by Acting Manager Thomas C. Foley, of the chamber. Mr. Byrnes, a graduate of Columbia University, had been convention and promotional manager of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, Atlantic City, for the last four years.

VETS' HOSPITAL HERE ADVANCED

Included in a priority schedule of construction for veterans' hospitals and national soldiers' homes announced today by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, was the expansion of the Veterans' Hospital at Aspinwall at a cost of $580,000. The expansion includes the enlargement of the present building and the erection of an annex. Space for 250 additional beds will be provided, and a crowded condition will be relieved.

A $150,000 expansion program for the Veterans' Hospital at Huntington, W. Va., was also announced.

Waters Rose Slowly, Failed To Check Germans for Days; Victory Claimed

pears in another column, and how he proposed to dig the troops in in Belgium to hold fast until the Allies could become as powerfully equipped in armament as the Germans.]

Drive
Germans Massed Forces For Offensive in Belgium

It was under these conditions that one of the most important encounters of the war was to take place. The Allies were still seeking to profit by the initiative and the freedom of action which their victory of the Marne had given them, forestall the enemy's offensive and attack him before he could exploit his success at Antwerp by adding the forces there liberated to powerful reserves coming from Germany and thus prepare a gigantic offensive on the only ground where it remained possible to decide by maneuver the war on the western front.

The question I had to ask myself was this: Would we have time to assemble the scattered and heterogeneous forces of three Allied powers in sufficient numbers and well enough organized to make a combined effort to block the enemy's plan and retain that direction of events to which our victory entitled us.

If we would not expect this much, could we not at least arrest the full development of his plans? This question would be answered by the terrific encounter known as the Battle of Flanders. It comprised two distinct periods:

(1) The attack along the coast, or the battle of the Yser: October 17 to November 1;

(2) The battle of Ypres, the principal center of communications of the Flanders region: October 21 to November 12.

Belgian Army Brought Retreat to End

In the direction of Dunkirk the map showed not even any high ground, woods or localities susceptible of being used as points of support, much less any line or river capable of being organized and defended. But a decision had to be made without delay if too large a retirement with decisive consequences was to be prevented and my thoughts centered on the line of the railway between Nieuport and Dixmude.

This railway offered at least a continuous line, actually traced on the ground and which the troops in their retreat would have to cross and where they might be stopped. It was therefore an easy base on which to rally and form a new line of battle.

A railway often runs through cuts or on embankments; even on level ground the ballast alone affords some shelter to a firing line. I therefore assumed that this road would give a little protection to the troops forming up behind it. Moreover, its extremities rested firmly upon Nieuport and Dixmude at either end, and, therefore, it might present a defensive line of considerable value.

Such were the brief but vital reflections which I exchanged—without knowing much more about the matter—with the Belgian staff and by virtue of which it was decided that the Belgian army would bring its retreat to an end on this line and take up a defensive position behind it.

On the North at Nieuport, it would be strongly held by a brigade of the 42nd Division; in the center, toward Pervyse, by the other brigade of this division; and at Dixmude by the brigade of marines.

It turned out that the line ran along an embankment from three and one-half to four and one-half feet above the level of the plain. Why should we not, then, try to flood the shores of the Yser here as had been successfully managed in the West around Dunkirk?

If this were done, the strip of ground one or two miles wide which lay between the river and the railway would be denied to the enemy, while the water would be checked at the embankment; the latter, moreover, would afford some protection for the troops.

Inundation
Beautifully Cultivated Country Was Flooded

At all events, in the confusion which always accompanies a withdrawal under heavy fire, what is essential to have is a continuous line traced on the ground. This furnishes a base upon which the troops can rally and reorganize, and the men respond willingly if the terrain is ever so little favorable. The railway rendered us this service which the inundations completed.

And so, when I left Furnes on the evening of the 24th, it had been arranged with the Belgian staff that the retreat would be stopped and a defensive position established along the railway track. It was also agreed with the Belgian staff that, notwithstanding the serious damage which the sea water would cause to this beautifully cultivated country for a long time to come, the inundation would be effected.

As for Gen. Grossetti, he sent me from his command post at Pervyse, the following unequivocable message:

"I don't know how much will be left tomorrow of the 42nd Division, but so long as one man remains the Germans will not cross the railroad."

Once more, we were about to offer battle with exhausted troops. This time it was along the Nieuport-Dixmude line. It is true that its defense was greatly strengthened at the two extremities by the presence of French detachments, as well as by Gen. Grossetti's force in the center, at Pervyse; it was also soon to be protected by flooding the approaches.

The key to the inundations were the locks at Nieuport, and these we firmly held, but the question was, how long would it take the floods to spread and what extent of ground would they cover. There was nothing in previous experience which could answer these questions, for the hydraulic system which had been designed with the object of defending the country from the sea, was now about to be called upon to let that sea in, upon the very ground it was devised to protect. Uncertainty on this point continued till the very end, with a corresponding effect upon the defense.

On the 25th the Belgian army was in line along the embankment. On the 26th the German bombardment was renewed with intense violence. It reached the railway and again spread disquietude among its defenders. However, they put much reliance upon the rising inundation.

Violent
German Bombardment Renewed With Great Intensity

On the evening of the 5th the Belgian staff informed Admiral Ronarc'h at Dixmude that all arrangements had been made "to flood the left bank of the Yser between the river and the line of the Dixmude-Nieuport railway." Special measures had to be taken to prevent the water from reaching our troops, dam the culverts passing under the track and make them watertight as well as cut the banks of certain canals so as to let the seawater in.

It was only on the evening of the 27th that all this work was finished, then at flood tide, the Nieuport locks were opened. They were shut again at low tide and this maneuver went on every day. On the 28th the water had reached the railway in the vicinity of Pervyse and spread south; these two places, was forbidden ground to the German army. The route along the coast toward Dunkirk and Calais was closed.

The battle had lasted more than 10 days. It had been characterized on the part of the Germans by an intensity of artillery fire of all calibers hitherto unheard of. Their infantry had shown itself full of enthusiasm. Leaving out of account his powerful artillery, the enemy had used in this attack the 3rd Reserve Corps, the 22nd Reserve Corps, one Erzatz division and one Landwehr brigade.

The Belgian army had put in its six divisions, we had engaged our 42nd Division and our brigade of marines.

'GREETINGS, GENERAL!'

GEN. FOCH — LLOYD GEORGE

FRENCH, BRITISH LEADERS MEETING BACK OF FRONT, 1914

Foch Meets Lloyd George

Marshal Foch first met Lloyd George at Saint Pol in October, 1914. Lloyd George was then British Chancellor of the Exchequer and Foch had not yet become a Marshal. Foch's account of the meeting is as follows:

On October 17 I went to the headquarters of the 10th Army at Saint-Pol to settle various details and more especially to meet Mr. Lloyd George, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, who was making a tour of our front with his friend, Lord Reading. This was my first meeting with this statesman, destined later on to become one of the leading actors in the war.

That first impression he gave was that of a man of rare vivacity and a most uncommon quickness of mind; this impression was strengthened and prolonged by the breadth of his views, the diversity of the subjects he discussed and the fertility of the solutions he advanced.

The French officer charged with accompanying him had lost sight of him that morning during a halt at Montdidier. When he found him he was standing in front of the statue of Parmantier and, as the officer approached, he exclaimed: "There was what you would call a great man!"

Our talk at Saint-Pol naturally dealt with the situation of the Allied armies and the barrier to the invasion which we had established up to the Lys and which we were trying to extend to the sea.

I told him that I had decided to dig the troops in and by that means hold fast against the enemy's superior armament until such time as we ourselves should become just as powerfully equipped.

Then we would take the offensive, for in no other way could victory be won. On many occasions since that day Mr. Lloyd George has reminded me of this conversation, which he dubbed "The Saint-Pol program" and of which he saw the fulfillment.

BOY DROWNED, CHUM SAVED

Floyd Peterson and his brother, Perry, 8 and 6, respectively, of 823 Phineas street, were recovering today in Presbyterian Hospital from exposure, and were mourning the loss of their playmate, Walter Walker, 5, rear of 827 Phineas street.

Walter lost his life last night in the Allegheny River at the foot of Heinz street. Perry also would have perished if his older brother had not been present.

When Walter and Perry fell into the river from the steep embankment while playing, Floyd plunged into the stream and rescued his brother. The Walker boy struggled to clutch Floyd, but fell short of his reach.

Smithfield Bridge To Remain Open

Director Edward G. Lang of the Public Works Department today announced that he has no intention of closing the Smithfield street bridge to traffic in the immediate future. This statement was made following a rumor to the effect that the bridge might be closed at an early date for repairs. Director Lang said the bridge is being carefully watched and constant repairs are being made but there is no necessity for closing the span or further restriction of traffic.

JURY EXAMINES SCHOOL ART

The art jury which will choose the winning pieces in the seventh annual Scholastic Exhibit, sponsored by the Scholastic, a periodical for high schools, met yesterday in Carnegie Institute to examine the 400 pieces resulting from the preliminary elimination. Eight thousand pieces were submitted in the competition, representing 3,000 high schools throughout the United States and territories. Two hundred prizes, which total $4,500, are to be awarded.

The jury is composed of Andrey Avinoff, artist; Lorado Taft, sculptor, connected with with the University of Chicago and the Chicago Art Institute; C. Valentine Kirby, director of Pennsylvania Art Education; Karl S. Bolander, director of the Art Institute of Columbus; Royal B. Farnum, director of the Rhode Island School of Design, and Ernest C. Watson, of Pratt Institute.

The exhibit is comprised of pieces in sculpture, soap sculpture, pictorial art, prints, including etching and linoleum blocks; jewelry and metal work, textile, design and pottery. Each of these groups will be represented in the final exhibit, the fourth annual high school art exhibit, which will be held here from April 29 to May 3. Winners will be named April 30, and announcements of them will be in the "Student-Written Number" of the Scholastic magazine on May 2.

Clothing, Securities Stolen from Home

Clothing valued at $250 and a tin box containing an undetermined amount of stocks and bonds was taken early today by thieves who entered the home of I. M. Davis, 5892 Darlington road.

Real Estate

According to the weekly report of C. C. C. Stotler, secretary of the Title Guaranty Company, there were 392 mortgages amounting to $2,051,597, placed on record from March 26 to and including April 1. Fifty-one of these, totaling $264,335.53, were purchase money mortgages. The remaining 341 were straight mortgages with a valuation of $1,787,262.29.

The Pittsburgh Taximeter Company, manufacturers of fare registering instruments, has taken a lease on the building at Penn avenue and Water street. The new quarters will be used as a factory.

The Wellington Heights Land Company, developers of Wellington Heights, has sold to the Rev. Alexander W. Stremmel a lot 51x150 feet, fronting on South Fork drive. The Rev. Mr. Stremmel is erecting a seven-room brick home with tile roof, on the property. Another lot 50x150 feet, on South Fork drive, has been purchased by Chester Willoughby from the same company. Willoughby is constructing a Dutch colonial home. Richard L. Stierheim has purchased a lot 51x150 feet, in Montclair drive, Wellington Heights, on which he is building a colonial home. The Wellington Heights Land Company has sold for Henry J. Roth to A. M. Quinn a six-room brick house in Perryview avenue, for a private consideration. The same company has sold for William H. Moser to Martha K. Scholze a six-room brick and shingle home in Amherst avenue, West View.

The North Hills Improvement Company reports the sale of four commercial lots and three home sites in North Hills Estates, Perry highway. One of the home sites was purchased by Mathew Gasper, who will begin construction of a home within the next few days. Another lot was purchased by G. Walter Bauer. Bauer will build a colonial type home, according to the brokers. The third site was acquired by the Suburban Building Company, Inc.

According to a statement recently issued by the Department of Labor, there was a decrease in the estimated cost of total building of 2.5 per cent in February, 1931, as compared with January, 1931. The conclusion is based on building permits reports received by the Bureau of Labor Statistics from 342 cities.

Fifteenth Ward—J. E. Hines, brick dwelling, 3771 Beechwood boulevard, $8,000.

A Basket Hoisted Up the Precipitous Walls of the Mountain Was One Means of Ascent Used by the Woman Who, Disguised as a Man, Lived for a Month with the Monks.

WOMAN DISGUISED AS MAN LIVES WITH MONKS

A PARISIAN woman, disguised as a man servant, has spent a month in the monastic community of the Greek Orthodox Church at Mt. Athos, Greece. Completely deceiving her monastic hosts, she shared their under-cooked carrots, sticky cheese and bug-infested dormitories. She climbed the rickety ladders which lead up the cliffs to anchorites' cells, and ascended in baskets pulled up by ropes.

On this sacred peninsula the monks of the Greek church banish all females, including female cats and dogs. Seeing electric lights in one of the more modern monasteries, this woman said to a monk:—

"You have electricity and candles, why not have chickens and eggs?"

The monk replied:— "We must draw the line somewhere. The day we possessed a hen, some brother would argue that we should also have a ewe or she-ass. And there is but a step from a she-ass to a woman."

When any man gets tired of having the women around, and the children and the complicated trappings of modern family life, he sometimes asks himself if he would not be better off if he could just rid himself of the whole outfit. This is exactly the attitude of the monks of Athos, and here is the way it works, according to the one woman who has lived among them:—

They lead a lazy life. They never perspire. They never bathe, or pare their nails or comb their hair. They eat half cooked food. They live in the dirt with cooties—and scratch.

Now if the men who read this would like to live like that, the sensible course is for them to join the monks at Mt. Athos. But before doing so they ought to read the story of a woman's experience there, which is one of the many features of the next American Weekly, the most interesting weekly magazine in the world.

MARKET GIVES LITTLE CLUE TO OUTLOOK

Break in Shares Weakens Brand of Optimism Based On Stock Ticker Ticks

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 3.—The intermediate break in stock prices, following the premature winter rally, has weakened that brand of returning optimism which was based solely on the ticks of the stock ticker.

As a matter of fact, the stock market is giving little clue to the longer term outlook for business. It has been responding largely to technical influences, and on the down side has been correcting errors made in overvaluing the hoped-for trade recovery.

Mr. Rukeyser

Until the upturn was checked, the market had been for several months ignoring unfavorable realities, and focussing its attention on rosier hopes for the future. Meantime, general business, still hovering near the bottom, was moving sidewise, and corporations were making far from a satisfactory profits performance.

Since the reaction, there has been no decisive change in the desultory business trend. The week's rise in railroad car loadings was offset sentimentally by a decline in steel operations. Car loadings represent the effect of past decisions of business men, whereas it is commonly assumed that steel changes have more prophetic value. Unbiased statistical economists lean strongly to the view that, though a turn for the better in business may be impending, the recovery will be slow.

On numerous occasions in the past, the emotional public wrongly assumed that American business had reached the end of the rainbow, but each great depression proved only the prelude to subsequent greater expansion and progress.

Auburn Auto Sets Shipment Record

AUBURN, Ind., April 3.—E. L. Cord, chairman of the board of the Auburn Automobile Company, has announced the shipment of 5,679 Auburn and Cord cars in March, constituting an all time record for any month. In March, 1930, shipments totaled 2,499.

Cord said during January, February and March Auburn's total shipments have been 11,718 units. By April 10, he said, the company will have shipped more cars than during all last year.

Chicago & Alton Purchase Opposed

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today granted the petition of the stockholders' protective committee of the Chicago and Alton Railroad to intervene in opposition to the application of the Baltimore and Ohio to acquire control of the Alton.

The commission said this action was taken "without in any way passing upon the sufficiency, either in law or fact," of the allegations set forth in the committee's petition to intervene.

International Banker Claims They Help U. S.

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

"Come into the open and justify your existence—if you can."

This I have repeatedly told international bankers when they have complained to me about being misrepresented and unjustly maligned. One of the very foremost of them has finally accepted that challenge.

I SENT this banker a letter received from a reader who, referring to "Wall street men," said:

"Is it not true that the vital question for the nation is, What is the sum of their purposes, and what effect to the interest of the whole people flows from their efforts? It appears to me that the evils of monopoly and the overgrowth of gigantic corporations is a present evil so widespread that we cannot recover national prosperity until the remedy is applied. The country is carrying a load which will prevent real prosperous growth."

THE INTERNATIONAL banker replies, in part, thus:

"I myself am under the impression—and I think that I have seen similar expressions by you in the last few years—that despite these temporary and much-to-be-regretted periods of adversity, the well-being of the American people as a whole is pretty steadily improving.

"Are not real wages in terms of the necessities and the comforts which they can buy far higher than they were 20 years ago? Are not more people in a position to put by and save for old age than ever before? Is not the number of really poverty-stricken people growing steadily less? (I am not alluding, of course, to this present moment, which is one of depression for almost everybody and of hardship and suffering for many.)

"I am assuming, perhaps erroneously, that this is a phase which we shall work out before it has been continued long enough to make a vital dent in our real well-being.

"Just how, then, does your correspondent figure that the corporations are proving a bad and heavy 'load' for the country in general?

"SUPPOSE WE look at one single corporation, the United States Steel Corporation. What would be the effect of breaking it up?

"We have to revert to the situation existing just prior to its organization. There were many individual units, naturally and savagely competing with one another—so savagely that the most drastic though inevitable economies had to be practiced; wages were maintained upon so low a level as could be held and yet retain the labor; the 12-hour day was in vogue; there were practically no welfare movements; illness, accidents, old age, were largely disregarded; shippers were granting secret rebates; and the ups and downs of the industry were so frequent and so heavy as to bring not infrequent periods of unemployment and distress for labor.

"WHAT I have described as to the steel corporation applies, of course, with equal force to most of our other great corporations. With respect to almost all of them it might, I think, be admitted that labor-saving devices have been put into effect making the arduousness of human toil much less. Scientific methods have been adopted, accidents prevented, and far more care for the human frame, far more real humanity in the handling of current problems have been worked out.

"Many of these corporations throw into their organization each year a certain number of young and vigorous college graduates who investigate the social aspect of the corporation's labor problems, and suggest the very latest thought in the solution of social problems, in the cooperation of capital and labor, in the happiness and welfare of the wage-earners, etc.

"How is it possible for anyone to contend that in the old days any such forward-looking policies as all these had even begun to be put into effect?"

"SOME PEOPLE make a great to-do over the so-called technological unemployment, unemployment arising from the increasing development of mechanical processes.

"Of course, it would be ideal if as such unemployment, temporary though it may be, is brought about, fresh labor could be found immediately for everyone thrown out of work. That is certainly an ideal to which the community must work.

"But as it so happens, with the increase which we have had in the last 15 years of our output in producing and consumption, increasing demand for manufactured products has prevented this technological unemployment from assuming a really serious phase. There is bound to be all the time a certain amount of readjustment and at times maladjustment.

"Interest is being shown by the intelligent members of our community in investigating the causes of these cycles of business exaltation and consequent depression, and in their determination to try to find some solution.

"The world cannot kill 10,000,000 people (counting in deaths from disease, etc.), maim and disqualify 10,000,000 more, plunge an additional 20,000,000 people into poverty and misery, and blow up what can readily be estimated as $200,000,000,000 of wealth—taking that amount of capital from reconstructive enterprise—without feeling the effects of it.

"If we are to avoid a still worse crisis and depression, we shall have to give ourselves over to perfecting methods for the prevention of war; we shall urge our country to take a part in the deliberations of the World Court; we shall take a more aggressive attitude toward disarmament and help the world to save some of those $5,000,000,000 that we are now spending each year on armament.

"If we make headway in those directions, I don't think we need worry so much about American corporations being a load upon the community or about labor being slave to capital, etc."

Security Markets Observing Holiday

Stock exchanges and the principal commodity markets throughout the country are closed today in observance of Good Friday. Banks in New York will remain open but the local banks will be closed. The holiday will be observed in many foreign countries also.

All banks and stock exchanges will resume business at the usual hours tomorrow. The New York and New Orleans cotton exchanges and the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange will remain closed tomorrow, making a three-day week-end suspension for these markets.

GMO'S POSITION STRENGTHENED

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP.)—Despite a decrease of 34.6 per cent in net sales, General Motors Corporation was able to increase its cash position by $51,685,541 during the depressed year of 1930.

The pamphlet report disclosed that cash, including U. S. government and other marketable securities, as of December 31, last, totaled $179,037,071, compared with $127,351,530 at the end of 1929.

Net sales, excluding inter-company and inter-divisional transactions, amounted to $983,375,137, as decreased from the $1,504,404,472 for 1929.

Net earnings, as previously reported, were $151,098,992, equal to $3.25 a share on the common stock, compared with $248,282,268, or $5.49 a common share, in 1929.

A sharp reduction in volume is usually attended by a much greater contraction in profits, said Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president, but this tendency was offset to an important degree by operating economies.

Net working capital increased $29,749,854 to $281,037,636 at the end of the year. Inventories were reduced by $52,174,108 to $136,298,891 as of December 31, 1930.

Total current assets as of December 31 were $364,817,496, against current liabilities of $83,779,860, compared with current assets of $368,960,945 and current liabilities of $117,673,163, December 31, 1929.

The report listed total assets as $1,315,813,059 as of December 31, compared with $1,324,889,764 at the end of 1929.

AUTO INDUSTRY ADVANCING SLOWLY

Normalcy Not Far Ahead If 4,000,000-Car Prediction Is Borne Out for This Year

DETROIT, April 3.—(AP.)—Something closely resembling normal operations is immediately ahead of the automobile industry if it is to make good early predictions of a total output for the current year of 4,000,000 units.

Entering the second quarter of what its executives have called the "recovery" year, the industry continues to gain momentum although somewhat slowly. Definite figures on production and distribution for the first quarter will not be available for at least a fortnight, but among the usually good guessers it is estimated that the output for last month will be around 275,000 cars and trucks.

Should this estimate prove approximately correct the total for the first quarter will be around 625,000 units for almost a full month behind the production of the first quarter of last year. There has been no inclination to revise the estimate for the total production of the current year. Instead it is pointed out that the output for the next two quarters should aggregate easily four times that of the first three months.

SPRING EXPANSION

Such a production expansion during the next six months would not be unusual. In the second quarter of 1929, big year of the industry, the output totaled 1,582,526 cars and trucks. In 1928, which automotive executives like to refer to as a more nearly normal year, 1,190,548 units were produced in April, May and June.

Although no new models will come from the assembly lines until well into next winter, preliminary blueprinting of many of them already is in progress. In some cases engine changes that may or may not be incorporated in the new models already have been tested.

So much secrecy surrounds the work of the automotive industry's research engineers that not even a hint of the 1932 motorcar's appearance has been permitted to leak out. It is this secrecy that subjects the industry to numberless rumors.

MODEL CHANGES RUMORED

The rumors have to do with almost every possible phase of the industry. They attribute gear box changes to one model, adoption or rejection of free wheeling by another, a new system of carburetion, further desertion of the six-cylinder field for the eight, new front-drive types and a variety of other possible mechanical changes.

That there will be mechanical changes as well as alterations in appearance of several models generally is accepted. It is because of the industry's ability to constantly improve the automobile that its leaders declare its future to be safe. They declare the day of the absolutely perfect car that will permit of no further improvement never will come.

WEEKLY LOANS DECREASE

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City, decreased $33,000,000 during the week ended April 1 to $1,875,000,000. This compares with $1,908,000,000 in the preceding week and with the record high total of $6,804,000,000 established October 2, 1929.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Stock exchange collateral borrowings of members at the close of business March 31 amounted to $1,908,810,494, an increase of $69,054,435 over the total of $1,839,756,058 on February 28, 1931, and against $1,720,345,318 on January 31.

January 31, 1931, was the lowest total since publication of the figures began in 1926. On March 31, 1930, these loans amounted to $4,656,302,339, while the high record for all time was established at the end of September, 1929, at $8,549,383,979.

Sees Return to Normal Business

JACKSONVILLE, April 3.—Lessing Rosenwald, vice president of the Sears, Roebuck & Co., on a visit here to the local store, stated that although business was a trifle slow there was every indication of a steady readjustment to normal conditions. The industrial centers and the agricultural sections of the Middle West, he pointed out, had been hit heavily and it would take time before a return to more prosperous conditions.

Hawaiian Pineapple To Issue Notes

NEW YORK, April 3.—Directors of Hawaiian Pineapple Company, Ltd., have decided to issue as of April 1 subject to approval by stockholders $5,000,000 5 per cent nonconvertible notes. To assure the company of adequate working capital for handling increased pack is the purpose of the issue.

Cleveland Reserve Notes Business Gain

CLEVELAND, April 3.—Further seasonal expansion of business during the last month was noted in the official monthly review of conditions in the Fourth Federal Reserve District, which includes Western Pennsylvania. Operations, however, were still much below normal.

Aluminum Net Slumps To $1.38 a Share

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE DECLINE IN BUSINESS activity showed itself in the annual report of the Aluminum Company of America. Net income for 1930 after all charges was $10,868,685, which was equivalent, after deducting preferred dividends, to $1.38 a share on the common stock. This compared with $24,128,509 or $10.37 a share in 1929 and with average earnings per share of $5.52 over the four years ended with 1930.

In commenting on the reduction in earnings, Arthur V. Davis, chairman of the board, said:

"Inasmuch as the tonnage of the materials sold in 1930 amounted to approximately two-thirds of the tonnage of the materials sold in 1929, and since the price of aluminum was reduced one cent per pound during the year, the results are reasonably satisfactory in the face of prevailing conditions."

Inventories Increased

THE BALANCE SHEET shows an increase of approximately $8,400,000 in inventories as compared with a year ago. No explanation of this was given in the report, but it is understood that this is due to the company's policy of accumulating stocks of material during periods when demand is light and liquidating these inventories when business is at its peak. This policy makes it possible for the company to meet the demands of abnormal periods of activity without making investments in plants which might only be working at capacity for a short time.

In the Aluminum Company the carrying of large inventories does not hold the same disadvantages as in other types of business. This is due to the fact that the company has no competition except that of foreign producers. It has sufficient control over the market for aluminum to make drastic price declines improbable.

Funded Debt Reduced

DURING THE YEAR the company reduced its funded debt by $1,427,000, leaving obligations of this class outstanding at $38,778,000 against physical properties carried at $111,502,665 and total assets at $242,986,667.

While the reduction in funded debt and the increase of inventory reduced the company's cash during the year, the ratio of current assets to current liabilities was still impressively favorable. Current assets of $74,949,848 were 4.2 times current liabilities of $17,750,223. At the close of the year the company had cash of $3,472,496 and marketable securities of $23,857,415. In addition to accounts payable and accrued the balance sheet showed bills payable of $5,252,500.

New Plant Completed

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC development on the Little Tennessee River, located at Calderwood, Tenn., was completed and put into service April 19, 1930. A number of other additions and betterments were completed during the year. Among the more important of these is the initial development of the Alcoa Power Company, Ltd., on the Saguenay River in Canada, and a heavy duty sheet and plate mill at Alcoa, Tenn., which has been put into operation since the close of the year. In consequence of these additions the company is in a strong position to manufacture on a favorable basis and to meet any demand which can be foreseen.

During the year the public utilities owned by the company, which operated in St. Lawrence County, N. Y., were transferred to the Niagara-Hudson Power Corporation in exchange for stock in that corporation.

Travers Asks Actress to Become His Wife

CHAPTER XLIII.

Mathews said steadily:

"If your mind is made up we have no right to try and dissuade you, not even your mother. And if you are being hard on Mary Lou Thurston in your thought—don't be. She was forced into this, too. Don't think she liked it! She's a very honest person. But she had to go through with it, for your sake, and she did so. You owe her everything. You owe her, even, this final honesty, this clarifying of all the muddled, darkened issues. You owe to her, even, the strength with which to meet them, face them and to resolve them."

He turned to Margaret.

"It's time," he said, "that Travers decided things for himself. You can't hinder him; you must not. If this contemplated marriage is not to your liking, Margaret, it is up to you to make the best of it. You've never failed Travers. Don't fail him now. And—"

"But it has been so long," she wailed. "He doesn't know her, nor she him! And they do not love each other!"

It had been said. Lorrimer paled, set his square jaw more firmly, said simply, "I loved her once—"

Asks About Mary Lou

But he didn't love her now. He never would. He was in love with Mary Lou's artistic conception of Delight Harford. He knew, as clearly as he had ever known anything, that Delight had never existed, save in his imagination apart from Mary Lou's playing of her role. And with that play-acting, he was deeply in love—still; even though he knew it for what it was, drama, comedy, even farce. As for the girl herself—this suddenly unknown girl with the little name, strange to him—how much of her was genuine, how much that inspired acting? He remembered all sorts of things now; situations from which she had cleverly extricated herself, evasions.

He'd have to find her. Have it out with her. Thank her, perhaps, for all she'd done. But this was a glossing over of his real motive. He'd have to find her, see her as she was, look into the eyes which had seemed so honest, so much his own, and try to discover there how much of her was real.

But as far as the woman upstairs was concerned—a woman equally unknown—he was committed, body and soul. His name would be hers and his possessions, and his loyalty. He wondered how much of that loyalty would be technical. But he owed it to her.

Mathews was talking to Margaret of Mary Lou.

"Where has she gone?" he was asking. "She mustn't be allowed to go like this—vanish, like a changeling."

That's what she was, thought Lorrimer, a changeling.

"Perhaps," Margaret said, "she has gone to Oakdale. I will try to get in touch with her. I'll telephone. No, she mustn't be allowed to go like this."

"You are angry with her," stated rather than asked the doctor.

"Yes. No. I was. Terribly. She'd promised me—silence. And she didn't keep that promise. But I see a little more clearly now. She did what she thought was right. It wasn't her fault if her plan went astray. And I suppose she had to follow her star, if what she thought right conflicted with her loyalty to me."

"There's a virtue in that," remarked Mathews, "for she cares for you, I believe, very deeply. Only a really courageous person would be willing to risk the anger and misunderstanding of someone she cares for in order to preserve her moral integrity." He wanted to add, "and not only risk the anger of a beloved but her entire happiness as well."

It hadn't even been just a risk with Mary Lou, but a certainty. Yes. She had courage. And Lorrimer, too. For Lorrimer also, however mistakenly it appeared to the older, wiser man, was following his own star.

Margaret went upstairs and into Mary Lou's room and sat there for a long time looking at the evidences of her departure. Looking at the clothes hung in the closet, each in its fragrant enclosure of chintz; at the shoes in their built-in places, and the bureau covered with all her small belongings, the things Margaret had given her.

The gorgeous fur coat was in its place. She recalled telling Mary Lou it was time to send it to the storage; the sable scarf was there; and on the bureau the wrist watch Margaret had given her. On Margaret's own finger, put there in abstraction and forgotten, was Lorrimer's sapphire ring, blue and clear and deep as Mary Lou's own eyes.

She'd taken nothing but a few things, long since discarded, she'd brought with her originally, the dress on her back, a hat and light coat, her toilet articles, her nightgown, slippers and the plainest of her negligees. Her books were there. Only, of her more personal belongings, some pictures of her people, kept in a desk drawer, were missing.

Yet everything here belonged to her; had been given her, out of love, out of disinterested affection, no longer as part of her "salary" but as her due as a virtual daughter of the house.

Margaret picked up the telephone book and, in Mary Lou's sitting room, she called Oakdale. Gram answered, and she was careful not to startle the old lady, merely telling her name and asking if Mary Lou were there. Upon Gram's immediate and excited denial—"Was she coming out?" Gram demanded—Mrs. Lorrimer said only that Mary Lou had gone to town and as she hadn't known her plans and wanted to get in touch with her, she had tried Oakdale first. She remembered, very carefully, to ask for Adelaide and Billy—for she had grown to know them through Mary Lou's vivid description.

Travers Perplexed

She replaced the telephone and went downstairs.

"You're set on this?" he had asked.

"Yes."

"It's quixotic, I understand, however. If I didn't I'd call you a damned fool."

"Perhaps I am. But—she needs me, she needs someone. I gave her a promise once; I'll not go back on it."

Mathews said, thoughtfully: "I know. Mary Lou figured that out, too, I think."

"I'd rather not talk about her," said Lorrimer briefly.

"That, too? She told me that you'd come to hate her when you knew," said the doctor casually.

"I don't hate her," Lorrimer burst out. "I wish to God I did. But she— Oh, it's all so mixed—how much was real?" he demanded, "how much was false?"

"The girl was real," said Mathews, "the situation false. Don't think it didn't give her sleepless nights, the most honest person I've ever had the luck to meet! Every thought, every word she said was honest. She was honest even in the part she played. Try and believe that."

"Perhaps," said Lorrimer slowly, "I'd better not."

Margaret came into the room just then.

Both men turned and looked at her, waiting.

"I telephoned Oakdale," she said, "and she's not there."

Lorrimer rose.

"Would Delight see me now?"

"I think so," his mother answered. "She's finished lunch. I looked in on her just now to see if she was comfortable."

Lorrimer, without another word, went upstairs. Margaret sat quite still in the big chair she'd selected, her hands in her lap. She said, urgently:

"Dan, he must be stopped. It's insanity, what he's planning to do."

Mathews said, gently:

"We've no right to interfere. And we reckon without the girl. What makes you think—?"

Proposes to Delight

"Oh," said Margaret, interrupting, her voice a little raised, "as if she wouldn't! Why, she hasn't anything, and he has everything! She'll jump at the chance, Dan; you know she will!"

"I'm not so sure. She was willing to go away and let things be straightened out, somehow, without her."

"We've only her word for that," said Margaret bitterly. "I—I can't understand Mary Lou, fully. Yet in a way, I can. Perhaps it's best, no matter what happens, to have things clear at last. I don't know."

"I do. It's always best," he said gently, looking at her, longing to comfort her, loving her so much and knowing himself inadequate.

Upstairs Lorrimer sat by Delight and listened to her nervous, quick recital of her adventures — covering the long years. The death of her cousins — the permanent estrangement with her parents—so Mary Lou and her conspirators had been right, after all, he thought, bitterly amused, in their fictionized tale—her removal from London at the time she heard of his death. "Lorry, I was frantic. I cried—quarts!" she told him at that point. Her drifting on to the stage, road companies, the colonies, her engagement for the revue which came to America. "You know the rest," she said.

He rose, stood over her, looked down. She looked pretty, in the pastel bed-jacket, the sheer nightgown Mrs. Lorrimer had lent her. Her hair, heavy and long, was fanshaped on the pillows, her face seemed rounder, younger, less hard. But she did not stir him. He had no least impulse to take her hand, touch her, kiss her. He said merely, very grave, very intent:

"Will you marry me, Delight?"

DAILY TRUE STORY — Swell Costume

Gangster Fails in Attempt To Put Man on 'Spot'

Burge Trevan shivered as he came down the dirty street to the docks where the Garvin shop was located.

There was still a little fog left, despite the chilly drizzle turning to sleet.

Burge thought of Blue Bayou down on the Mississippi, where it was warm and quiet. He wished he hadn't been so ambitious to make a small fortune. He wished for the thousandth time that he had remained there and not come north.

Burge Trevan was a natural-born "tinker," as they called him down home. He could do almost anything to a motor that ought to be done to make it hit on all its cylinders and run "sweet as honey."

He tugged at the door of the shop to open it against the wind and entered. Day after day it was the same thing—working on marine motors, getting his weekly pay, spending most of it just to live comfortably. It had seemed to Burge when he learned what they paid such mechanics up north that he could save two-thirds of it. He hadn't reckoned on the fact that it would cost him three times as much to live up north.

Down at Blue Bayou he had his little cottage and a garden, he had old Black Mary to keep house for him and what, with his garden and hogs, it cost him very little to live.

Assigned to Job

Garvin, his boss, was talking with some chap when Burge came in. Burge got into his working clothes and started to the bench where he was working on a job. Garvin beckoned to him and he went over.

"This boy will fix it up for you," Garvin said.

The stranger hesitated and looked questioningly at Garvin, who grinned and nodded.

"He's O. K. Sees nothing except what has to be fixed. He don't like clams because they talk too much."

The stranger grinned and nodded.

"The old tub has got the heebeejeebies," he said, drawling out the word, "it couldn't pass a scow."

Burge nodded and went to get his leather coat and cap.

"It's closed in, you don't need that," the man said.

Burge went out on the dock side of the shop. The "old tub" proved to be a handsome big speedboat with a large cabin. The deck was dirty and there was evidence that a cargo of some sort had just been removed.

Burge noted several little holes in the cabin window. The man saw that he understood.

"What happened—to the engine?" Burge asked.

"Don't know; we was crowding her—no need to explain why; you saw where the coast guard boys drilled us. If it hadn't been for the fog and plain bull luck they'd have grabbed us. We had 1,400 cases aboard."

Speedboat Repaired

"They couldn't hit the engine, could they?"

The man shook his head.

A man came down and started putting in new glass. Another man puttied up and painted over bullet holes in the woodwork.

Within an hour the motor was humming like a bird, as Burge pointed out.

To the man who seemed to be the boss Burge said: "Your man got too much interested in what was going on outside."

"What do you mean, boy?"

"Scared of getting hit, I reckon. He let the plugs get fouled up and he forgot to oil her. You got to feed her plenty oil when you're crowding her to top speed."

The man nodded.

"Garvin says you're O. K. All right, you didn't see anything. You never seen this craft, if anybody asks you."

"I don't know anything. I work inside the shop," Burge told him and smiled.

The man slipped him a $20 bill and went in to settle up with Garvin. After he had gone Garvin went over to Burge.

"Know that guy?"

"I never saw anybody. I wasn't out of the shop today," Burge told him, and he gave his boss a look at the $20.

"I'm not worrying about that, Trevan. Thought you might like to know—he's Sawtelle."

"No!"

Burge was surprised. His boss nodded.

Sawtelle, Burge knew, was one of the handful of men known as "king of runners." And the stuff they brought in was liquid and very much against the law. Burge knew the craft had been bringing in the stuff, but he had no idea that a big shot like Sawtelle would pay attention to any particular craft. He pictured him as the man higher up who sat in an office and directed things.

The twenty would come in handy. But Burge wished it had been a thousand. Sawtelle could afford a thousand as a tip as well as he, Burge, could afford a dime. And if Burge had a thousand he could go straight back to Blue Bayou, build himself a shop at his landing and get along famously.

He could also marry Viola Davis.

Burge had come north hoping to make a clear thousand within a year solely because he wanted to marry Viola and he couldn't ask her to marry him when he had no shop and merely went up and down the bayou picking up odd jobs.

He had been north more than a year and had saved less than two hundred. It was discouraging.

Burge decided to wait a day or so and then write her the truth about it. Viola didn't want to wait years and years. There were other nice chaps down home who wanted Viola. She ought to be told so that if she didn't want to wait, she could let him know and marry some other boy who could do better for her.

It was a week later when Burge sat down and wrote his letter. He had just finished it when Bob Collins came into his room. Bob had a room across the hall and they were rather friendly. Bob came from out west and both were about the same age. But Bob had worked in a night lunchroom and now was struggling along launching his own place. He always took one night off a week to play around while his kid brother run his place for him.

Gangster Angry

"Say, Burge," Bob drawled, "if you ain't got any dates to attend the horse show or lecture at Town Hall tonight, I know where we can have some fun—I got tickets."

"I reckon I can break my social engagements. What's up, Bob?"

"Lots of fun, plenty of nice girls—all it will cost us will be to hire some costumes, and I know where to get them cheap," Bob urged.

Burge and Bob went to a place for costumes. The man asked plenty, Bob thought. How-he could get a policeman's uniform for that would fit him—for $2 for the evening. By adding to this just a great red nose and walrus mustache, he would be all right, he thought.

After a while Bob, who knew the ropes around there, went down with Burge to a place. That's all, just a "place." They had a drink and came back. Burge didn't care for it—it was not like the stuff they made back in the canebrakes in his part of the country.

However, it livened him up considerably.

"Beat it, Burge; you're up against it—you been dancing half the night with 'Spug' Mellody's moll!"

"I didn't know it—and there was nothing wrong—"

"Sure, but 'Spug' is half loaded and sore. He has been tipped by some friends and swears he's going to put you on the spot. Being a member of this outfit he's going to do it outside when you come out and not in the hall."

Receives Bribe

"Not so good," Burge agreed.

"Come with me," Bob ordered. He took Burge to the rear and showed him how to get over to a roof and down to the other street. Bob had to stay to avert suspicion.

"This man's city isn't healthy for you, Burge—keep right on going," Bob wisely advised.

Burge didn't claim to be a hero. He'd fight with his fists, but he couldn't see being shot in the back. He got to the street and felt weak in the knees.

That "Place" where Bob had taken him was just half a block away. He went there to get a little Dutch courage. Burge had thrown away the false nose and mustache and appeared very much like a young cop.

The man behind the bar nodded at him, handed him a drink, shoved back the money and winked.

"Mail this for me, will you, officer?" he said, shoving an envelope to Burge.

When he got outside Burge noticed that the envelope was not addressed. Nor was it sealed. Burge naturally looked inside.

There were an even dozen one hundred dollar bills.

Burge smiled grimly as he hurried to his room and got into his own clothes, and packed his few things. He left his room rent on the table, got out the letter to Viola and tore it up.

He got away without trouble.

Burge always wished he could be back at that "Place" when the real collector came and was told that everything had been paid!

Governor Stands By

Abandons Part of Own Plan in Relation to Fair Rate Board Legislation.

Gov. Pinchot evidently is finding legislative barriers too lofty to be surmounted by a number of prominent pre-election purposes, publicly announced by Candidate Pinchot. First he found it necessary to abandon his stand for reduction of license fees for automobiles and drivers. Now he announces that the elective provision is to be eliminated by amendment from the bill to create a fair rate board, designed to be a successor to the Public Service Commission.

What will be saved from the wreck of this important administration legislation is for the future to reveal. It is said the bill, as ultimately amended, will make members of the board appointive by the Governor, with the consent of the Senate. There also would be the power of dismissal by the Governor, a power he does not possess in relation to members of the Public Service Commission.

With a man of Gov. Pinchot's probity in office that power undoubtedly would be a safeguard to the public—a big stick to keep members of the board on the right path. With a Governor subservient to the corporations, however, it also would be a big stick to keep members on the wrong path, possibly.

Mr. Pinchot, no doubt, desires the right of removal because of experiences with the Public Service Commission during his last administration, when he attempted to make use of the power and was balked by the courts.

There will be public disappointment over the fact that the legislative combinations, depletion of road moneys by the last administration and other unfavorable conditions impel the Governor to a policy of standing by and watching for a chance to do what he can for the public good, but it is a situation not of his own making. Even a Governor can go so far and no farther.

Throughout the state there will be hope that he go as far as he can in the right direction. The public still has faith in the executive branch of the state government.

Mr. Wettach "Explains"

Says He Received Only One Letter, But Ignores Visit of Delegation.

Representative James Wettach, home to face the public and his constituents, has "explained" his motion whereby the Moore bill to provide a means of obtaining a city manager for Pittsburgh might be obtained, was shelved by the House Elections Committee, of which he is a member.

"There was no evidence of general interest in it," he said. "I received only one letter favoring it. Mayor Kline or Senator Coyne never mentioned the bill to me, or sent any message regarding it, to me."

One letter is not very many, that is true. But if Mayor Kline, who, naturally, would be expected to oppose the bill, sent no word to him against it, it is unlikely that anyone else did, either, so it may be assumed that Mr. Wettach's one letter should have had some weight, through being at least one evidence of interest.

Then, there is to be considered the large delegation of public-spirited citizens that visited Harrisburg in behalf of the bill. Surely, each of them should count for at least a letter, inasmuch as it costs dollars to go to the state capital and return, whereas two cents would do for a letter. It is too bad our delegation didn't write letters to Representative Wettach instead of going to Harrisburg. In the time they took they might have each written a long one and their carfare, saved, could have paid for very extra special delivery.

If nobody spoke directly to Mr. Wettach, either way, and he did not know that some of his fellow citizens from Pittsburgh had been in Harrisburg to boost the bill, he still had left the little boy's method of finding out about "general interest"—to ask. Perhaps Mr. Wettach will be equally illuminating in explaining why he didn't.

Public Wants No Strike

Hopes Taxicab Companies and Employes Can Settle Differences Peaceably.

Echoes of one of Pittsburgh's most annoying strikes, that of the taxicab drivers, are heard. Men employed by the Parmelee Transportation Company, controlling the taxicab business here, had prepared to conduct a poll today to decide if the drivers shall strike. They claim their employers are violating the agreement made as a condition of ending the previous strike.

The public is not concerned about the points at issue, but it is greatly concerned about the matter of taxicab transportation. It will hope that there be no strike. It does not see why it cannot be avoided, even when there are differences, if both employer and employe get together in a spirit of fairness.

Yet it cannot help but reflect that something must be amiss, when it is considered that after years of local operation of taxicab companies, without a strike, there should be one a short time after these companies came under the control of an outside organization, and that now there is threat of another one.

Strangers—We Take 'Em In

Greensburg Residents Have Costly and Annoying Parking Experience.

On a recent evening two Greensburg citizens came to Pittsburgh. They parked their car in Penn avenue, after looking for, and failing to find, any notice prohibiting parking in that dimly-lighted locality.

Then they went to a show. Returning, they were unable to find their car. They had the expense of a taxi to a police station, of another to a garage to which the car had been towed, a towing charge of $3.55 and a tag calling for a $1 fine as a first offender. Also the annoyance of being two hours late at their Greensburg homes.

These two visitors will not drive to Pittsburgh soon again. They feel they have just cause for complaint about the treatment they received. Traffic laws were made to be observed, but strangers cannot be expected to know all local restrictions, which should be prominently displayed in all non-parking districts. Nor can they be expected to "know the ropes" whereby local people with a pull have such matters fixed up expeditiously and economically.

Peirce, American Mathematical Genius

By Archibald Henderson

The two greatest figures in mathematics and physics, produced by this country, are: Benjamin Peirce and J. William Gibbs. In any biography of Peirce will be found long lists of books he wrote, papers he published. If all else were blotted out and only his "art of formal logic," as it is called, were preserved, he would be remembered always in history as one of the founders of modern mathematics.

Benjamin Peirce was born in Salem, Mass., on April 4, 1809. He was graduated from Harvard in 1829, after which he busied himself with teaching for two years. From 1831 until his death in 1880, he was a member of the faculty of Harvard, first as tutor and afterwards as professor. This is the longest term, 49 years, ever held by a member of the Harvard faculty, with but one exception.

Peirce had a remarkable mind, critical and perceptive; and was able to grasp mathematical principles and equations with amazing ease and readiness. As a boy, he was shown by his playmate, Ingersoll Bowditch, a problem set by his father, the famous Nathaniel Bowditch. Young Peirce looked through it searchingly, and then pronounced it to contain an error. When the great Bowditch heard of this, he was greatly interested, and said: "Show me the boy who corrects my mathematics." The outcome was the establishment of a close relationship between the young and old mathematician. When Peirce wrote his masterly work, "Analytic Mechanics," he dedicated it "To the cherished and revered memory of my Master in Science, Nathaniel Bowditch, the Father of American Geometry."

Peirce was an industrious and capable writer of text-books, and made many contributions toward the improvement of mathematical teaching in this country. He was prominent in the movement for the establishment of the observatory at Harvard. He made many contributions to astronomy, in particular regarding the planet Neptune, discovered in 1846. Notable were his contributions to the study of Saturn and its rings, and this is regarded by some authorities as his greatest individual piece of work. A master mathematician, he demonstrated by mathematical, mechanical and physical principle, that "the rings, if solid, could not be sustained by the planet, that satellites could not sustain a solid ring, but that sufficiently large and numerous satellites could sustain a fluid ring, and that the actual satellites of Saturn were sufficient for that purpose."

Peirce was much interested in computing the orbits of planets and comets. For a considerable time he was in charge of the mathematical part of the "American Almanac," 10 volumes of which he prepared.

Peirce justified in later years the prediction of him as a Harvard man, made by his teacher, Nathaniel Bowditch, that he "would become one of the leading mathematicians of this century." The highest flight of his genius was displayed in the now classic work, "Linear Associative Algebra," which he himself said gave him the fullest reward for his mental labor in the novelty and breadth of the results.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Ever get "edgey?"

So "mad you could throw things?"

Sure you have—if you're human. And maybe you DID throw something. Heave a book. Or punch a pillow . . . Then you felt better, didn't you? A bit sheepish, perhaps, acting like such a kid! But it did you good. Took the tension off—somehow—broke that spell of blues. Good to let off steam that way. Funny how frazzled a fellow's nerves can get——

Yes . . . funny. Funny, provided he still has a right to have nerves . . . still has a right to take off tension by heaving a book . . . Still can look into friendly eyes, and clutch an understanding hand when life's flicking him on the raw.

BUT GOD HELP HIM IF HIS NERVES GET FRAZZLED AFTER HE HAS FORFEITED THOSE RIGHTS . . . GOD PITY HIM IF HE LETS OFF STEAM AFTER HE HAS CEASED TO BE A MAN AND HAS BECOME ONLY A NUMBER——

A NUMBER LOCKED IN A CELL.

Joseph Coakley could tell how much a man needs God's pity in a case like that. That is, he could tell if he were here. But he isn't. Joseph Coakley is dead. We killed him recently—in Joliet penitentiary.

Joseph Coakley was an active man of 34. It is hard for active men of 34 to be idle—cooped up. It does not matter whether they are good men or bad men, church deacons or robbers, they get edgey under those circumstances. Raise a rumpus. Joseph Coakley got edgey and raised a rumpus. He didn't do anything very drastic, even though he was a thief serving time.

So the guards took Joseph Coakley and put him into "solitary." "Solitary" is an unlighted, unheated, stone cell, the size of a coffin, stood on end. After the guards had Joseph Coakley inside solitary they handcuffed him, hung him by the hands from the top of the cell and gave him the Usual Works. Warden Henry C. Hill has admitted that they are the Usual Works. He says it is the customary and necessary form of discipline used with men who get edgey and throw bread on floors. He sees nothing amiss in it. It is done in all our penitentiaries. Ed Morrell, in his book "THE TWENTY-FIFTH MAN" describes how it was done to him at Folsom.

They called it "the Derrick" in Folsom. Ed Morrell "talked back" to a guard and was sentenced to 50 hours on the Derrick. He did not know what that meant. He found out.

"The torture chambers in Folsom," he writes, "were located in what was called the 'back alley.' They were boarded off from the rest of the cell houses. In there, the groans and moans of the victime were lost in empty air. I was one of 10 convicts to face the punishment machines the next morning.

"My cell door was the last of the 10 opened . . . The bright light of the corridor confused me for a moment and then I saw the horrifying spectacle of nine unfortunate human beings dangling from the ends of ropes. They were suspended each one by a block and tackle from a balcony above their heads.

"Two convict assistants helped the freeman (guard) to perform this gruesome task. My arms were extended backward and then a pair of handcuffs were snapped upon my wrists. One of the convicts began pulling the rope which was attached to the handcuffs, drawing me slowly upward. When my heels were just off the floor, the attendants made a move to tie the rope fast to a cleat on the side of the wall, but he was brushed aside by the dungeon warder who grasped it with both hands and, with the full weight of his body, gave it a savage jerk.

"It was cruel, unmerciful! The weight of my body caused the steel of the handcuffs to cut deeply into my wrists, as I swung limply at the end of the block and tackle. Now he released an inch or so of slack until I had regained a steadying position, the tip toes of my brogans resting on the stone flags on the dungeon corrider . . . My head was tilted downwards to the level of my waist, forced into that unnatural position by my arms being trussed up backward and held tightly by the cruel handcuffs."

So it began.

When, after two hours, he was revived by a hose playing in his face, he was idiotic from pain.

So it began. So it went on. Five hours a day. That was considered all a man could bear in Folsom.

Time meant very little to Ed Morrell when they lifted him down at last. It meant nothing at all to Joseph Coakley whom God, in His pity, released after four days of the Usual Works. He was strangely mild as they carried him away. He would not get edgey any more. Men with broken muscles do not throw bread on the floor.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Fallow Ground

My life was fallow ground
That bore no grain
Through all the swift year's round
Of sun and rain:
It had no teeming fields
Of fruits and flowers.
And all its ways revealed
No vineyard's bowers.
For long it lay at rest
And brought forth naught;
From out its barren breast
No deed, no thought.

Waste, fallow ground it lay,
Of little worth,
Until you came one day
And my bare earth
Like fresh-sown fields were stirred,
A fertile thing,
Quickened in act and word
To blossoming.

Text For Today Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before.—Philippians, iii:13.

Let's Face the Truth

Now Is the Time to Substitute a Practicable Temperance Measure for Unpracticable Prohibition.

By BAINBRIDGE COLBY

THE single element of value in the report of the Wickersham Committee was the unanimity with which its members recorded their conviction that PROHIBITION HAD FAILED.

The preponderant opinion, however, that the Eighteenth Amendment should be revised rather than repealed, thus recognizing that the solution of the problem still lies within the sphere of federal control, is a striking confirmation of the view voiced by the Hearst press, and notably by Mr. Hearst himself in his much-quoted radio address delivered long prior to the making of the Wickersham report.

Mr. Colby

It is fervently to be hoped that the diversity of individual recommendations by the members of the Wickersham Commission will not open up a new chapter of sterile debate and warring opinion on non-essential and secondary phases of this great problem SO URGENTLY DEMANDING A PROMPT AND RATIONAL SOLUTION.

The solution should not be sought—AND IT WILL NOT BE FOUND—in the naked repeal of the amendment and the restoration of control of the liquor traffic to the states. This is a simple formula, but too simple. It is like "a container that does not contain the facts."

WE have seen what unrestricted state action will do, in Nevada's legislation restoring wide open gambling.

And it was unrestricted state control that made possible the saloon and all of its spreading evils which finally culminated in prohibition.

Popular support cannot be had for any proposal in which there lurks even the remotest possibility of a return of the saloon. IF IT IS RESTORED IN ONE STATE, ITS LEPROUS CONTAGION WILL SPREAD TO OTHER STATES.

To quote Mr. Hearst:

"The weakness of this plan (to restore control to the states) is that it continues all of the evils of prohibition in the prohibition states and inflicts some of the incidental evils of prohibition on the other states from which law breakers may operate and in which they may take refuge."

COUPLED with prohibition as a social problem and inseparable from it, is the fact that crime for the first time in history finds itself in the position of a SUBSIDIZED CALLING or INDUSTRY—one is almost tempted to say, institution.

The traffic in liquor is NOT stayed by the existing laws. It has merely been converted into a vicious subterranean commerce, yielding no revenue to the government which has hitherto been able, by excise regulation, to exercise a salutary control in the interests of public health and social order.

Faced as we are with the huge national deficits in the revenue; with the prospect of new and intolerable tax burdens upon a people already overtaxed, and struggling under the weight of an unexampled commercial depression, the addition to the national revenue of a thousand million dollars per annum is not to be lightly dismissed, particularly as the restoration of efficient government supervision would be accompanied by immediate crime abatement and an expanded market for labor, now unemployed, and for the products of our fields and factories.

ASSUMING federal control—AND THERE IS NO ACCEPTABLE ALTERNATIVE—we will emerge from the welter of ills that now afflict the nation only when, with frankness and clarity of thinking and of action, we decide to allow the restricted manufacture of alcoholic beverages under federal licenses, and their distribution under a plan of regulated monopoly, which can assure proper standards in respect to quality and price and the due control of licensees.

Let us face the truth—the truth of our experience. The lesson has been painful. The cost in social retrogression and civil deterioration can hardly be calculated.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Too Many Sirens

It is every woman's solemn duty to be a young and raving beauty!

Be beautiful, fair maid, and let who will be good—or clever or intelligent. You GOTTA be beautiful—or you'll be sunk! The men demand it.

And HOW beautiful! If Cleopatra, Helen of Troy and Lillian Russell could all come back and walk down Fifth avenue, not a head would be turned to look after them. In fact, they would all probably rush to a beauty shop for repairs and face-lifts, after a glance at the passing galaxy of hand-made sirens.

There are no "outstanding beauties" today, because the whole mass of women are so dazzling, determinedly and obviously beautiful that not even Venus could stand out in the average crowd.

* * *

It's really no feat to be beautiful, if you have nothing but time, money and a great capacity for suffering. Glancing down just one small column of advertisements, we find the following glittering promises: "Faces Lifted," "Contours Restored," "Lines and Wrinkles Removed," "Noses Corrected," "Superfluous Hair Destroyed," "Warts and Blemishes Removed," "Permanent Waving," "Eyelashes Beautified," "Reducing Belts," "Rejuvenating Cream"—but why go on?

* * *

Oh, golden dreams! Oh, celestial Song of Hope! Just reading that column would turn the most despondent pessimist into a radiant optimist.

The only catch in it is that it has spoiled the men for a plain, unadorned damsel with nothing but an honest face and beauties of the mind to offer. And it has set the women a life task beside which the job of being a wife, cook, valet, nurse and mother is a mere sinecure.

By the time a woman has finished being peeled, carved, slapped, pummeled, parboiled, creamed, massaged, dyed, painted and fried, she hasn't a penny left with which to buy a good book or a moment left in which to cultivate a brain cell.

And all for what?

* * *

Has this intensive beauty culture stimulated romance? Has it made men more tender, more chivalrous or more sentimental? Has it made marriage easier?

* * *

Not if I see what I'm looking at! Too many sirens have made the competition too great. Too many hand-made beauties have dulled men's worship of beauty. And the feminine loveliness that a man once regarded as a heaven-sent gift he now demands as a matter of course. With the world full of sirens, getting a husband is more of a feat than it ever was—and holding one is a miracle!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 3.—Thoughts while strolling: Keats Speed has never laid eyes on Texas Guinan. That foolish feeling after steering away from someone you think is asking alms. But who merely wants to know the time of day. Little Rango was not killed by the tiger. That was faked.

Percy L. Crosby, a Brooklyn (N. Y.) boy, who made good in the city. Who remembers when the Little Club was the hottest spot in town? Marilyn Miller's "property smile." The pint sized comedian, Joe Laurie, Jr. Broadway is not the same without Louis Mann and his collar.

Derbied men who stand in front of magistrate courts, chewing cigars. Who is getting all the graft in this town? Jack Whiting and Frances Williams look alike. I can stand all day watching rabbits in a window twitch their noses. H. N. Swanson and his bride.

Those venerable "matinee boys" who indulge decently furtive peccadillos who are always home in time for dinner. Sinning like bloods. An old Winter Garden comedian running an elevator. No baseball heroes any more like Hans Wagner and Mike Donlin.

A paddock coat to me suggests a gigolo. Belle Bart, the astrologist. George Jessel looks like one of those old-time comic valentines. But he's just as funny as he looks. Harry Hershfield's hair is snow white. And with a red tie he would make a grand stage gambler.

The Park avenue debutante who leads a Siamese cat on a leash. And perhaps looks about hopefully for news photographers. Always a movie star or so around the Hotel Ambassador. Floyd Gibbons won't ride in an auto that hasn't safety glass. The musing stare of tenement children.

Rarely run across those insolent West Indian hall boys any more. The chauffeurs who sport tightly waxed mustaches, highly polished puttees and wasp-waisted overcoats. The robins tug worms in the park. Scudding clouds. The hurdy gurdy grinds. Happy days are here again, hooray!

Georges Carpentier, the French fighter, is said to have suffered humiliation as the result of the kidnaping he endured with Lita Gray Chaplin. On the stage he has been razzed for not resisting the hold-up man—if any. The worst jeer came when he stepped to the footlights recently and a shrill falsetto voice screeched: "Look—the Orchid Man!"

* * *

The wife of a wealthy gentleman is afflicted with a peculiar and remote neurosis. She cannot bear the daylight and rays of the sun are acutely agonizing. Most of the daytime she remains secluded in a darkened room, but when dusk falls is merry and bright—often the life of the party.

Also a comic calls Shakespeare "The Bird of Avon." And speaks of "hips that pass in the night."

On a fugitive shadowy path in the upper reaches of Central Park last night a shy, sad-eyed little man timidly approached and inquired if I happened to know where he could find work. "Anything respectable," he added. He fumbled among his pockets and brought out a soiled card giving his name and address. Then, after drawing him out, he produced a clipping of a good-looking girl. "That," he said with a deal of pride, "is my daughter." Over the telephone today a producer tells me the girl makes $125 a week in his show. If she is his daughter—and I believe she is—he needs her.

Night letter: "We are beauty prize winners coming to New York. Will you send us your home address just to see if you look as funny as we imagine?"

I live in a Sycamore tree in Yonkers and swing from limb to limb when approached by strangers.
